This report aims to give the parents more information about the child's school progress than can be stated by the single marks previously used. Accordingly the teacher will not only mark the child's growth but may call attention by the symbols explained on the next page to things for which he is to be commended or in which he may need to improve. It is hoped in this way to make clear what the school desires him to get from each so that teachers and parents may work together in guiding him to success.

Parents are cordially invited to visit the schools at any time and observe the work being done. They may confer with principals at any time concerning the progress of their children. Conferences with teachers, however, should be deferred until after the close of school when they can be held without interrupting the regular work of a class.
