Dear Mr. Takeda:

I wish to thank you for the very complete outline of celery cultures which you sent me on December 26. I have read this with considerable interest and have made use of it. I shall keep it in my files as a handy reference for your very excellent method of growing celery.

It may interest you to know that some of the people here who have taken up the celery growing are using some new methods, which involve transplanting with transplanters, single row culture, and a number of things which tend to decrease the cost of the crop. When you return, you will probably find many of these new methods in use. Celery continues to be extremely expensive, and we miss the fine celery which you used to furnish us.

At present, we are having a spell of very fine weather and are able to get the ranch in good shape. Another week of this weather would see us well along. We imagine you are finding some cold weather now, but hope this finds all of you well.

Yours very truly,

ASSOCIATED SEED GROWERS, INC.
