EN ROUTE WITH DEWEY COMMUNIST PARTY, Oct. 7.—(UP)—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, carrying his campaign for the presidency directly to President Roosevelt, said today that the "New Deal is attempting to gain greater and greater control of our daily lives."

"For 12 long years, it has been the objective of the New Deal to gain greater and greater control of our daily lives," he said. "If they continue they will be in a position to tell us what to eat for breakfast and what kind of pajamas we shall wear at night."

Governor Dewey said that by the "looks on your faces, I'm sure there isn't a New Dealer in the crowd." "Oh, yes, there is," an unidentified man on the fringe shouted back. "Well, I am going to go to work on you, then," Dewey said.

An hour before the service, huge crowds stood along Fifth Avenue and adjoining thoroughfares. They added to the 220,000 estimated by police to have filed silently by the open bronze caasket of the "Happy Warrior."

Smith's body lay in state in the cathedral overnight in an honor accorded only once before to a layman, Ignace Jan Paderewski, Polish pianist, in 1941.

The Mass was preceded by a pontifical procession of members of the Catholic hierarchy, led by cross bearers and acolytes. The procession entered the main entrance of the cathedral and the mass was begun at 11:10 o'clock.

F. R.'S ECONOMY PROMISE FALSE

—Says Bricker

ST. CLOUD, Minn., Oct. 7.—(AP)—President Roosevelt's order that his budget director plan a reduction in federal government employees was described today as "only a campaign gesture" by Gov. John W. Bricker.

The G. O. P. candidate for vice president, declaring that the number of federal workers had increased under the Democratic administration from 572,000 to more than 3,000,000, asked: "Why simply plan to get rid of some of these jobholders after the war as the President suggests? Why not do it now?"

Bricker Quotes Byrd Bricker, in a prepared text issued by his campaign staff in advance of his speech here, quoted Senator Byrd, Democrat, Virginia, as estimating that 300,000 to 400,000 civilian employees could be dismissed now without impairing government efficiency.

"On September 19," he said, "President Roosevelt ordered the budget director to make plans for liquidating war agencies and reducing governmental personnel to a 'peace footing'. That is an excellent idea, but very late."

Promises Broken, He Says "But the American people will refuse to accept that proposal as a promise that will be kept by the New Deal. . . Broken promises, subterfuge, fence-straddling and political expediency have characterized the entire Roosevelt administration."

"Immediate planning to liquidate the government's wartime agencies and cut back the great expansion of activities and personnel needs to be done. But it will not be done by the New Deal. This amounts to only a campaign gesture."

'F. D. R. Victory Bandwagon' Disrupted by Firecrackers

BOSTON, Oct. 7.—(AP)—The loud explosion of several large firecrackers threw the premiere of the Communist Political Committee's controversial musical revue, "F. D. R. Victory Bandwagon," into temporary confusion last night.

The sharp explosions came only a moment after Earl Browder, Communist Party leader, had finished speaking, but quick-thinking men in crowded Symphony Hall quickly calmed excited spectators.

Police Sgt. Frank Mullen, in charge of the uniformed and plain-clothes officers on duty, said his men found evidence of exploded firecrackers near an emergency exit through which the thrower apparently escaped.

Several persons rushed into the hallways as others rose from their seats. Booming masculine voices shouted: "Sit down, sit down," and Miss Ann Burlak, Massachusetts Communist leader, joined in the appeal over the loudspeaker system which she had been using to ask for financial support of the committee's effort to reelect President Roosevelt.

Police, some with drawn revolvers, converged on the scene of the explosions but found no one who was involved.

Browder, speaking between the acts, said John L. Lewis, mine workers' chieftain, had conspired to stir up strikes only because he had "the protection and collaboration of candidates Dewey and Bricker," adding that "the time has come when the whole country must join the labor movement in demanding that this unholy combination shall be broken up."

No Comment on Statement Browder made no comment on President Roosevelt's statement Thursday night that he neither sought nor welcomed the support of Communists or Fascists in the political campaign.

The revue was a satire on Governor Thomas E. Dewey and his Republican aides. Strong opposition to the production had been voiced by the Massachusetts Women's Political Club but the club's request to city officials and the management of Symphony Hall brought negative action.

Several club members, led by Miss Florence Birmingham, president, picketed the hall but there were no disorders. Miss Birmingham said, as she withdrew her pickets, her club was non-political and non-sectarian and that "we came here only to register our protest against Communism. In this campaign we are not for and not against anyone. We came here tonight to show we are not afraid to stand up for America."

20 Cities on Schedule Boston was the first of 20 cities where the revue was scheduled. Tonight it will be presented in Bridgeport, Conn. The cast is composed of professional talent under producer Edward Royce, New York art dealer. The performers included "Tamaris, The Dancer; Lou Williams, boogie-woogie pianist; and Comedian Bernie Hern. Both white and Negro players took part.

Hern offered one skit, with a doll as his prop. The doll was made up to resemble Dewey.

He called the doll "Little Republic," and assuming the tones of a baker in a side-show, called out: "He's a namby-pamby gadget which can do no wrong. He's guaranteed to balance the budget. All its mechanical parts are guaranteed to function all the time because they've been immersed in banana oil."

There are approximately 67,000 tenements with 2,000,000 tenants in New York City.

REVOCATION OF JAPS' CITIZENSHIP PROPOSED AT AUBURN MEETING

A few of the approximate 250 new members who joined the Remember Pearl Harbor League last night in Auburn, contributing $180 to the organization's expense fund, are shown making their donations. Hundreds protested return of Japs to the White River and Puyallup Valleys.

E. D. Phelan stabs the air with a forefinger as he proposes a constitutional amendment to revoke citizenship of all Japs.

J. W. Boddy, Coast Guard chief machinist's mate, happily accepted one of the placards urging banishment of Japs from the West Coast. Assigned in Seattle, Boddy's home is in Auburn.

W. B. Leber clenched his fist and said returning soldiers would find themselves "outflanked" by Japs who will have resettled in this area.

By ROBERT MAHAFFAY Backed by a "war chest" of $735 and a membership of approximately 900 persons, the Remember Pearl Harbor League, formed to block the return of Japanese to the White River and Puyallup Valleys, today was considering the introduction of a national constitutional amendment to achieve its ends.

Support of the amendment was urged last night by E. D. Phelan, Seattle attorney, at the third mass meeting of the League in Auburn last night. More than 300 residents of the area packed Fraternity Hall, as speakers demanded that every measure "short of violence" be used to prevent return of Japanese to the farms they operated before the war. There were no speakers for opponents of the League, which has met with strong criticism from church and other groups. Phelan's proposal for the introduction of an amendment which would "revoke the citizenship of every Japanese in the country" was accepted by the group at large and turned over to the board of directors for study. Corydon (Nifty) Garrett, Sunner newspaper editor, told the meeting the League soon will be incorporated. "We want the League to be perpetuated as long as our interest and our hearts are in this work," Garrett said. "We are discouraging violence of any kind, but we are going to exhaust all civil recourses. If we lose, God knows what will happen. "Thirty thousand Nisei Japs have been released from relocation center, and are on their way back. That means the war with Japan is right here and right away."

W. B. Leber of Kent, one of the most prominent farmers said, "While our boys are out fighting, are we going to let the Japs outflank us and come in the back? In order to prevent that, I say take every step short of violence!" Kemp Ross of Kent said it is possible the League's activities will be extended to Bremerton, Seattle and

Des Moines. The Teamsters' Union has been on record for months as opposing return of the Japs. John J. Steiner, secretary-treasurer for the Teamsters' Union in the Kent-Auburn area, told the group. "During the depression," said J. L. Anderson of Enumclaw, "Japs in Enumclaw were working for $1.50 a day. They gave 25 cents of that to a Jap boss who, we understand, on record for months as opposing return of the Japs. John J. Steiner, secretary-treasurer for the Teamsters' Union in the Kent-Auburn area, told the group. "During the depression," said J. L. Anderson of Enumclaw, "Japs in Enumclaw were working for $1.50
