At the Front With Hal Boyle: Bradley, Most-Proven Field General, Just 'Home Folks'

By HAL BOYLE
Associated Press Foreign Staff
TWELFTH ARMY GROUP
HEADQUARTERS—Three kings look over the shoulder of Gen.

Omar Nelson Bradley, who has come a long way from a Central Missouri center to direct the forward thrusting American armies in the Battle of Germany, as he sits in his present headquarters. The kings are plaster busts of the three last monarchs of Belgium, whose tiny but aggressive country was liberated by troops fighting under this tall, lean Army group commander from the "Show Me" state.

At 52 years of age, Bradley is in the curious position of being perhaps America's most-proven field general—yet he is relegated to a job that ordinarily lies him to rest far from the battlefield where he would prefer to be.

Talents Not Excelled
In Tunisia and in Sicily, as a corps commander, Bradley demonstrated tactical talents not excelled by any subsequent combat leader. None who came after him has exceeded his masterful record—the "last round-up" in Northern Tunisia, the taking of Hill 609, the cracking of the German line at Troina in Sicily, the long, swift, hard march to Messina and the Normandy conquest.

But in the long-term strategy of international war there are jobs even more important than those of corps or army commanders—and there are few men who have the talent to fill them. Good division commanders are rare, corps commanders are even more rare, army commanders are still scarcer—and fine group and over-all commanders like Bradley and Montgomery are few indeed. They must plan strategic objectives weeks and months ahead and get a wide temperamental subordinates to pull in harness together.

Bradley, who looks and acts like a kindly country doctor, happens to be doubly gifted. He is stern enough to drive and direct troops to victory in the white heat and agony of battle and he is diplomatic enough to channel the high abilities of his strong army commanders to a common purpose and mutual goal.

General Bradley is the nearest thing to Abraham Lincoln in uniform that the American Army has produced. He has the elemental qualities of goodness: good will, tact and shining simplicity. With that simplicity goes shrewdness, judgment and a psychological insight one ordinarily doesn't connect with the professional soldier.

Bradley is the least changed man by success I ever have met. He leads the same quiet, semi-Spartan existence he had when he first went into the field in Tunisia.

'Same Old Omar'
Temporarily his surroundings border on the magnificent. This home-for-the-moment happens to be a splendid room in a palace with electric wall lights cupped in decorative Cupid hands and soft, rugged floors, but he retains the same homely "old-shoe" personality ingrained in him since birth. His old neighbors from Moberly, Mo., might stare a little at the furnishings, but after ten minutes' visiting with the general they would say with the same pride they have in another Missouri son—Blackjack Pershing—"We'll hear he's the same old Omar."

I called on the general the night the announcement was made that his Third Army under General Patton had stormed across the Rhine, joining Hodges' First Army, which earlier had forced this great river barrier by opportune seizure of the Ludendorff Bridge at Remagen.

Bradley was jubilant over Patton's bold stroke and praised him highly. He stayed up until almost midnight that night—he is an early riser—talking over old times in Tunisia and Sicily and discussing the wind-up campaign in Germany. The mess sergeant had managed to obtain some fresh oysters for the general's chow that night to celebrate the crossing of the Rhine by a second 12th Army Group unit and everybody enjoyed them, but Bradley, who passed them in favor of two dishes of ice cream for dessert, "The general is allergic to shellfish," one of his aides explained.

ANTI-JAP LEAGUE BANS OPPOSITION

After prefacing their remarks with an avowal of belief in free speech, organizers of a Japanese Exclusion League at Bellevue last night told 500 persons in the Overlake School they wanted no debate from the opposition and threatened to oust anyone who tried to take the floor.

In the midst of the speeches by George H. Crandell, Seattle attorney and Hunts Point resident, and A. E. McCroskey, Seattle executive organizer, about 100 opponents were told to "shut your own hall to heckle in," and if there are any more outbreaks you will be ejected.

Opposition Is Predicted
Opposition to the league's anti-Japanese stand was predicted after the meeting by Mrs. Thomas C. Rabbitt, East Side resident.

McCroskey asked all those "who favor exclusion of all American-born Japanese from this country" to raise their hands. About 400 hands went up. "Now," he said, "all those who think it's worth a few dollars to join this organization raise their hands." There was some hesitation and he waited until almost 400 hands went up. He then instructed ushers to pass through the audience with envelopes.

"I think it's well worth $10 to join this organization," he then added: "Now we will have door prizes . . . and get your name and address so representatives can call at your home and explain our objectives."

No. 1 Jap Hater

The door prizes, he said, would be busts of "America's No. 1 Jap hater," made by "the Northwest's famous sculptor, Alonzo Victor Lewis." Feeling a bust from one of them, he triumphantly displayed a bust of General MacArthur, declaring that "any patriotic American would be proud to have this in his home." There was a burst of applause.

Active in organization of the league was Arthur Ritchie, recent proponent of a scheme to sell Lewis' busts of President Roosevelt to Democratic committees to raise campaign funds in the national election.

Ritchie said initiation in the league, founded by Ralph Hannan, treasurer, of Gresham, Or., cost $10 and dues are $1 a month.

Many Pay $10 Fee

Ritchie said today about 200 persons joined the league, paying the $10 initiation fee or a portion thereof, the balance to be mailed. Others indicated they would mail checks or postal money orders. He said the meeting should net a total enrollment of about 300 members.

McCroskey, who described himself as an ex-soldier, is a petroleum engineer, having resided in Seattle about eight years. He was sent here by an oil company to conduct a geological survey of the state and since resigned his position and entered business for himself.

Pearl Harbor Unit Will Be Organized

A Seattle unit of the Remembrance Pearl Harbor League, Inc., will be organized at 8 o'clock Thursday night at 2336 15th Ave. S., Lloyd Young, Seattle glass and mirror establishment operator, said today. He said admission will be free. Initiation fees and dues are $5 a year.

Bids will be called in May or June for that part of the University of Washington's new Civil Engineering Building which will house a huge structural testing machine now being constructed, Nelson A. Wahlstrom, acting University controller, announced today.

The machine, which will weigh more than 2,000,000 pounds, is being built by an East Coast engineering firm. The testing wing of the building will be completed and the machine installed by fall, Wahlstrom said.

The machine will be the only one of its kind in this area, and is expected to be used extensively by Boeing. Designed to test strains and stresses, it can crack an egg without breaking it, or smash apart a two-ton item.

The new building will be erected between the present Engineering Building and the Mines Building.

Injury Cases Cost City $32,829 in '44

Out of 51 cases involving $460,682.35 for personal-injury claims pending against the city last year, 21 cases were won outright by the city, Corporation Counsel A. C. Van Soelen declared in his annual report filed today with City Comptroller W. C. Thomas.

In seven cases, in which plaintiffs sought $55,174.07, the city paid $11,809. The remaining personal-injury cases, involving $146,832.28, were settled without trial for $21,020.

Polio at Ft. McClellan

FORT MCLELLAN, Ala., April 3.—(AP)—Thirteen cases of poliomyelitis—two of them fatal—have developed at this military post, the public-relations office announced. The announcement said the peak of the outbreak apparently had been passed. One service man died last week and the other yesterday.

LIEUT. CHAFFEE ON MISSING LIST

First Lieut. Arthur R. Chaffee, 22 years old, only child of Assistant Police Chief and Mrs. Arthur L. Chaffee, 6811 Fremont Ave., has been missing in action in Burma since March 24, his parents were notified today by the War Department. His wife is the former Catherine Goldberg, also of Seattle.

Pilot of a B-24 bomber, Lieutenant Chaffee went overseas June and nearly had completed his assignment there. He was commissioned a second lieutenant at Fort Sumner, N. M., in the summer of 1943.

A graduate of Lincoln High School, Lieutenant Chaffee attended the University of Washington. His father was a lieutenant in the Signal Corps in France during the First World War.

Capt. O'Laughlin Ex-Policeman, Dies in Action

Capt. Frank O'Laughlin, former traffic officer in the Seattle Police Department, was killed in action on Palawan Island in the Philippines March 6, his family was notified today by the War Department.

Captain O'Laughlin is survived by his mother, Mrs. Mary O'Laughlin, 8002 Stroud Ave.; his widow, Mrs. Marjorie M. O'Laughlin, 3408 15th Ave. S., and a son, Philip, 3 years old. He has been in the service since 1941, and was expected home soon, his mother said.

An infantry officer, Captain O'Laughlin was commissioned a first lieutenant before leaving for overseas duty. He spent some time in Australia, and was wounded in the invasion of New Guinea. Besides the Purple Heart he also held the Bronze Star Medal.

Two brothers, Lieut. A. J. O'Laughlin and James J. O'Laughlin, are serving overseas. Lieutenant O'Laughlin is in the European theatre, as a bombardier, and James, with the Navy, is in the Philippines.

Private Degler Is Wounded

Pfc. Hugh A. Degler, 19 years old, son of Mr. and Mrs. Claude S. Degler, 2403 30th Ave. W., was said the meeting should net a total enrollment of about 300 members.

Private Degler was a member of the Yankee Cavalry Division of the Third Army. He joined the Army last June after graduation from Queen Anne High School, and went overseas in December. He is a member of the Queen Anne Chapter, De Molay, while in school he received recognition for designing and building of airplane models.

An uncle, 1st Lieut. Max L. Garland, a pilot in the Army Air Force, is also serving with Patton's forces, on reconnaissance duty, but the two have not met since going overseas.

Sergeant Goulet Killed in Action

Staff Sergt. Frank R. Goulet, 22-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. R. R. Goulet of Sunnyside, Yakima County, and brother of Mrs. O. H. Hare, 66 Roanoke St., was killed in action in Germany March 1, and was buried in Belgium, according to word received recently by his family.

Sergeant Goulet had been in the Army six years and was a member of General Patton's Third Army. He had served with the Coast Artillery at Pearl Harbor, and went to the European theatre last December.

The sergeant's widow, Jean, and 1-year-old daughter, Alice Marie, live in Virginia, Minn. Also surviving are a brother, Pvt. Wallace Goulet, Army Air Forces, and three other sisters, Mrs. T. S. Keck, Jr., Seattle; Mrs. Perry McDowall, Bremerton; and Mrs. Ivan Delano, Portland, Or.

WAR CASUALTIES

Keith Morgan,
Long Missing,
Listed as Dead

Flight Officer Keith W. Morgan, who has been missing in action since June 14, 1944, was killed in action, according to information received recently from the War Department by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Corbin A. Morgan, 3846 46th Ave. N. E.

Morgan, who was a bombardier on a B-17 bomber, was missing after his ship was badly damaged over enemy territory and the crew was forced to bail out over the English Channel, according to the letter of confirmation. Four of the crew were saved and three others, including Morgan, drowned.

Young Morgan was administering first aid to the wounded tail gunner when the crew was forced to abandon ship, the father said. They were returning from a combat mission over Le Bourget, France.

Flight Officer Morgan held the Purple Heart, the Air Medal and a Citation of Honor, awarded by Gen. H. H. Arnold, posthumously. He attended school at Portland, Or. His parents moved to Seattle two years ago, where the senior Morgan is associated with Fibreboard Products, Inc. Young Morgan was an only child of the couple.

Sergt. Bickley, Missing, Was Killed in Reich

Previously reported as missing in action, Staff Sergt. Vernon E. Bickley, now is listed officially killed in Germany, the War Department has notified his mother, Mrs. Myrtle Bickley, Seattle.

Sergt. Bickley, a veteran of nearly a year's overseas service, was "killed March 17, by an enemy anti-tank fire, directed at a tank upon which he was riding," a government letter revealed.

"His instant death precluded the possibility of rendering medical aid and he was buried in a military cemetery in Holland," the letter continued.

"Vernon was held in the highest regard by the members of his company and his loss will be deeply felt by his many friends."

Sergeant Bickley was a former pupil at Yakima High School, where he played quarterback on the football team.

Entering the Army in January, 1944, he was trained at Camp Wheeler, Ga., before he was sent overseas in July, 1944, with the 331st Infantry. He was decorated with the Bronze Star in February, by Maj. Gen. Robert C. Macon.

Surviving besides his mother, is a sister, Mrs. Edris Hunsinger, Seattle.
