WASHINGTON, June 5.—(AP)—A suggestion of a Seattle miller that ships be assigned to transport Army flour from the Puget Sound mills to Oakland, Calif., has met some favor in official circles.

The proposal was advanced by J. L. Locke, secretary-manager of the Fisher Flouring Mills Company, as a means of meeting the shortage of railroad cars.

Shipyards Deliver 112 Vessels in May

WASHINGTON, June 5.—(AP)—Merchant shipyards delivered 112 vessels aggregating 1,120,594 deadweight tons in May, the Maritime Commission reported today.

This brought deliveries since January 1 to 586 ships aggregating 5,948,735 deadweight tons. This is almost half of the construction schedule of 12,000,000 tons for the entire year.

Graving Dock O.K'd for Huge Flying Boat

LOS ANGELES, June 5.—(UP)—The War Production Board yesterday authorized construction of a $203,400 graving dock for launching the mammoth Kaiser-Hughes flying boat, now under construction.

The 200-ton plane, capable of carrying 750 fully-equipped troops, is expected to be launched in December or January.

The dock, to be built at Long Beach, will be used for assembling the giant craft, joining the 30-foot wings to the 220-foot hull, installing the eight motors, and outfitting the interior.

U. S. Trawler Men Fined For Entering B. C.

NEW WESTMINSTER, B. C., June 5.—(AP)—Crew members of the American beam-trawler Starlight were fined $200 by customs officials here today after their vessel was seized by fisheries officials in a British Columbia harbor.

The crew was then sent to Seattle to face a further charge of having halibut aboard the boat. This is the first American vessel seized this year in Canadian waters for violation of federal fishing regulations.

American beam-trawlers are permitted to enter British Columbia harbors only in case of bad weather. Skipper of the Starlight is A. B. Wick of Seattle.

Fishing Vessels
The Fish and Wildlife Service today reported the arrival of 12 otter-trawlers, three trollers and four trucks with fish. The otter-trawlers had 152,510 pounds of petrale sole, 161,825 pounds of rockfish, 126,233 pounds of ling cod, 16,510 pounds of true cod, 230 pounds of English sole, 126 pounds of sturgeon and 71 pounds of sable fish.

The trollers brought 2,270 pounds of large red king salmon, 2,332 pounds of small red king salmon, 1,370 pounds of white salmon, 399 pounds of silver salmon, 453 pounds of ling cod and 504 pounds of halibut.

The trucks had 9,154 pounds of large red king salmon, 5,070 pounds of silver salmon.

FERRANDINI TO LEAVE FISHERIES

Ralph A. Ferrandini, Alaska area coordinator, Office of the Coordinator of Fisheries, with headquarters in Seattle, announced today that he has resigned effective June 30 to accept a position in private industry.

Ferrandini said he would announce his future plans later. He will make his headquarters either in Seattle or San Francisco.

Entering government service in June, 1932, as a temporary assistant in the Pribilof Islands of Bering Sea, Ferrandini, expert in every branch of the fishing industry, was promoted to assistant agent and remained in the islands two years. In 1935, he was transferred to the salmon service as fishery agent in the Alaska Peninsula from Chignik to Dutch Harbor.

In 1937, Ferrandini was detailed to Washington, D. C., for conference work on Alaska fur-seal and fishery activities, and in the following year, was promoted to special agent in charge of United States whaling activities. He spent the summer at the Port Hebron and Akutan, Alaska whaling stations and then returned to Washington, D. C., for conferences regarding certain phases of the Whaling Treaty.

Ferrandini prepared the report on United States whaling industries, submitted through the State Department to the Bureau of International Whaling Statistics, Oslo, Norway. Duties of this position necessitated a trip to the Antarctic with the Byrd Expedition, which Ferrandini was unable to make, and he was transferred back to the Alaska Fisheries as fishery management agent. He was in charge of the Kodiak, Alaska, Fisheries Patrol in 1939, 1940 and 1941 and then was transferred to Washington, D. C., and promoted to administrative assistant in the Division of Alaska Fisheries.

In October, 1942, Ferrandini was detailed to the War Production Board to assist a special committee in the study of problems confronting the Alaska salmon industry. The report of this committee resulted in the issuing of a government order giving official sanction to the Alaska salmon-concentration plan.

Ferrandini was appointed field administrator of the salmon-concentration plan in May, 1943, and later designated as area coordinator for Alaska. His successor in his present position has not been announced.

United States bans against naturalization of Chinese were removed in 1943.

Loss of Two Arms Ships At Okinawa Told

Details of the sinking of two munitions ships blown up by Jap suicide planes off Okinawa six days after the first American landing, were revealed with the recent arrival in San Francisco of 74 merchant-seaman survivors, according to a report to W. Walter Williams, president of the Seattle-King County War and Community Chest.

The Logan Victory and Hobbs Victory were in the first convoy of merchant ships to arrive at Okinawa. Both sank shortly after the attack. Survivors were rescued by naval vessels transferred to the repatriate ship and returned to the United States.

Knowing the anxiety of the seamen's relatives, United Seamen's Service, an agency of the War and Community Chest, obtained a list of the survivors, notified the next of kin and arranged for reunions with relative and friends.

This agency also arranged for advance wage payments, long-distance telephone calls for those relatives were unable to be present, and obtained hotel accommodations and transportation.

Halibut Season Close Extended

The International Fisheries Commission announced today that it has decided to extend the limit of catch of halibut in Area No. 2 will not be attained by the previous announced date of June 12 at midnight, it has substituted June 15 at midnight for closure of halibut fishing in this area, except that one pound of halibut to seven pounds of other species may be taken. The commission estimates that three more days of fishing will be required to reach the catch quota of 24,500,000 pounds in Area No. 2. The regulations automatically apply to Area No. 1. These areas are defined as follows: No. 1—All waters southeast of a line running northeast and southwest through Wilapa Bay Light on Cape Shoalwater. No. 2—All waters off the coasts of the United States, Alaska and Canada between Area No. 1 and a line running through the most westerly point of Glacier Bay, Alaska, to Cape Spencer Light, thence south one quarter east.

Mine Worker Dies, Two Hurt At Newcastle

A mine worker was killed and two were injured seriously when a derailed mine car sent a timber plunging about 270 feet into an open-pit mine near Newcastle about noon yesterday.

Nick Finamore, 62 years old, of Renton, was killed when the huge timber struck, coroner's deputies said. The two injured, Harold Petersen and Jim Steppen, were taken to Harborview County Hospital. Their condition was described as grave.

The three men were working in an open-pit coal mine operated by the Strain Coal Company.
