ASSISTS IN PASSAGE OF LABOR LEGISLATION

Session in Seattle to Consider Several Important Questions, That of Politics Being Among Foremost.

By GEO. T. MENAMARA.

(Former Editor of the Seattle Union Record and Former Delegate to the American Federation of Labor.)

TO the average citizen of this country, the American Federation of Labor is simply the highest body of organized labor, and they are of the opinion that all orders for strikes, lockouts and boycotts are at the direction of that body and its executive committee. They are not aware of the fact that the laws of the American Federation of Labor make strikes impossible where possible to avoid them through conciliation and arbitration. The belief is also prevalent that wages and working hours are the only ends sought to be attained through the efforts of the organized toilers of the land. These opinions have been disseminated in communities where the trades union movement is crystallized and the workers are active to their own interests.

When the call was first issued for the formation of a congress of federated trades in 1880, the intent was for the formation of a body similar to the Congress of the United States, for the enactment of laws in the different trades unions that would tend to bring about a closer unification of unions of the same craft, but seven or eight national or international unions being in existence at that time.

It is true the Knights of Labor were in existence and a power for good in the economic field as an educational and political organization, but it was not concerned so much about the working conditions and wages as it was for legislation. The slogan of the Knights of Labor was "Eight hours for work, eight hours for sleep and eight hours for recreation." Another of its declarations was by the sweat of thy brow shalt thou eat thy bread. Not of these declarations were good at that time and are as good today.

Knights Seek Control.

With the call for the congress of federated trades, the Knights of Labor attempted to take control of the labor movement and then organized and formed the international and national unions in a body into their organizations as district divisions. The first step was thought the solution of the problems then confronting the workers of the nation. Some of the international unions, affiliated as district councils with the Knights of Labor; others did not. The International Typographical Union was thought the next meeting was to be held in Cleveland, Ohio, was selected as the most centrally located city. September was fixed upon as the month. At this meeting, the name of American Federation of Labor was adopted and a comprehensive plan of the federation of all trades, each union retaining its autonomy, granting charters to local unions, was presented. The American Federation of Labor to organize and grant charters to men in the various trades, and to the International Union, was elected president; Charles Evans, of the Miners' Union, was elected secretary, and John E. Leahy, of the Cigar Makers' International Union, was elected treasurer. With this lineup came the development of the purposes of the federation.

Purposes of Federation.

The American Federation has for its purpose bettering the conditions of life in all walks of life, whether on land or sea, and whenever an opportunity presents itself in any cause, whether the workers are organized or not, cheerfully lends its assistance. The enactment of laws for the benefit of the workers and the enforcement of legislation for the public good generally has received cordial approval.

When the national banking act was before Congress, the American Federation of Labor pointed to the danger of the concentration of the wealth of the nation in the hands of the few. When tariff legislation was introduced, the same men warned the nation that such legislation would lead to the organization of monopolies and that the nation would become a money oligarchy and a republic as a republic was in danger of destruction.

The first bill presented to Congress through the efforts of the American Federation of Labor was one for the protection of the telegraph lines. This was caused by the nationwide strike of the telegraph operators and other lines formerly employed men exclusively. The rate of pay was much less than that for men doing the same work and the American Federation of Labor sought equal pay or equal service.

This was bitterly combated by the owners of the mills and factories, and then the men went on strike, men from their lands were imported to take their places. The struggle was unequal.

Immigration bills were proposed which, it was thought, would remedy this evil, and the right to come to our shores. Finally a measure to prohibit the importation of labor was introduced and after several battles, passed. The law was a dead letter for several years because the influence of the steamship companies and the manufacturers importing the laborers was greater than that of the American Federation of Labor.

Another of the problems of the early days of the American Federation

MINERS' LEADERS TO SEEK SETTLEMENT AT RENTON AND NANAIMO

Determined Effort to Be Made to End Local Difficulties Which Have Lasted Many Months.

THAT a determined effort to bring about an adjustment of difficulties of long standing between miners and operators at the Renton coal mines, as well as in the Nanaimo district of British Columbia, will be made while so many high officials of the United Mine Workers of America are in Seattle, is a foregone conclusion.

It was expected by representatives of the Renton miners that Charles H. Meyer, president of the Western Federation of Miners would arrive in this city last night and arrangements were practically completed for him to meet with the Renton representatives and the miners' union officials last night.

GAMINETTI COMING TO LOOK INTO HINDU IMMIGRATION MATTER

Commissioner to Enlist Aid of Shipping Men in Endeavor to Restrict Influx of Undesirables.

By M. M. MATTISSON.

A. CAMINETTI is coming here to make the support of steamship men in a fight he is making to restrict the immigration of Hindus to this Coast. In a new immigration bill which he probably will have introduced in the regular session of Congress, Caminetti will have Hindu travel. The bill is expected to have the support of the national administration and there probably is enough administration support in both houses to pass it.

The commissioner of immigration, however, wants to enlist the support of the shipping men first. He believes

Queen Mother of Gompers Household, Who Is Delighted With Seattle Beauties

MRS. SAMUEL GOMPERS.

Mrs. Samuel Gompers, wife of the president of the American Federation of Labor, though she takes no part in the meetings, is a familiar figure at the national conventions of the organization, having attended all of these sessions for many years. Mrs. Gompers is a guest, with her husband and daughter, at the New Richmond Hotel. She never has been west of the Rocky Mountains before and is delighted with the wonderful natural charms of the city.

For thirty-six hours, Mrs. Gompers has suffered an acute attack of illness, but is already on the high road to recovery and is expected to be an interested spectator at tomorrow's convention sessions.

PREACHES GOSPEL OF BETTER CONDITIONS FOR LABORING GIRL

Mrs. Raymond Robins, of Chicago, Will Arrive in Seattle Tonight to Attend Great Labor Convention.

WILL PUT IN BUSY WEEK IN THIS CITY

Has Been in Public Work for Betterment of Downtrodden Female Worker Since Her Girlish Days.

By RUTH DUNBAR.

PREACHING the gospel of awakening for the laboring girl, Mrs. Raymond Robins will bring to the men and women of this city her vision of light and life for the human soul and body that will get them free from the mechanical drudgery now enslaving them.

Mrs. Robins comes primarily to attend the labor convention which probably no one of the delegates will be so much in demand. Ever since it was first known that she would be present, calls have been coming in for her to speak at every conceivable kind of gathering.

Mrs. Robins will arrive tonight at 8 o'clock on the Milwaukee Railroad, having just returned from a visit to E. M. Rindinger of Adrian Court, who will be her hostess. Mrs. C. E. Evans of the Labor League is looking after Mrs. Robins' assignments.

Tuesday night the visitor will speak before the Federated Club of Y. W. C. A. She will be honor guest at their usual 6 o'clock dinner, and will remain with them until 9 o'clock. From 9 to 10 o'clock she will speak at the Labor Temple.

Wednesday afternoon from 4:30 to 6:30 o'clock she will be honor guest at an "at home" given at the residence of Mrs. John Windlow, 1622 Pearl Avenue, by the Washington Women's Legislative Committee.

Thursday she will be the guest of the Women's Commercial Club and the Home Consumers' League.

Saturday she will be entertained at luncheon at the Washington Annex by the College Women's Club.

Next week hours of eight and eight hours will entertain for her, the date of which has not yet been set.

In these affairs Mrs. Robins will speak.

Mrs. Raymond Robins, before her marriage was Margaret Drager of Brooklyn, N. Y. She was educated privately. In 1905 she married Raymond Robins, now in the employ of the Chicago, St. Paul and Northern Pacific Co. She now lives with her husband in the top flat of a tenement building in the congested Seventeenth Ward of Chicago.

Mrs. Robins took up public work at an early age. At 12 she was treasurer of the Brooklyn training school for nurses. It was through her experience with the school that she became convinced that the only way to correct conditions was to prevent them. She found that much of the sickness and suffering among the poor was the result of poor food, and poor food the result of the low wage.

She was one of the founders of the Municipal League of New York, and chairman of its legislative committee in 1908-09. In that capacity she was active in securing the enactment of legislation licensing and regulating employment agencies in order to protect young girls.

President of League.

She is president of the Women's Trade Union League, a prominent member of the National Women's Trade Union League. She led the working women's rights fight in Chicago, Illinois. She is a member of the committee on industrial education of the Chicago Federation of Labor.

Her interest in the laboring girl led to the four biennial convention in St. Louis June 2 included among other questions vital to working women, the most important being the question of the proposal that a training school be established for women trade union organizers.

She is associate editor of "Life and Labor," the working women's magazine, and the following extract from an article by her in the publication expresses well one of the great ideas she is trying to get out: She says:

"Now, it so happens that in the ranks of the army of labor upon whom the toilers of the world depend, there is a battle for social democracy there are several million young working girls. Upon their vigor and health depends the hope of a whole great people. But they are children, young girls just growing into womanhood.

"Give us our love, our play time, our rest, our leisure, our life, in the forefront of the battle line?"

The close of the eighteenth century witnessed an unheralded and momentous revolution—the introduction of machinery. At any machinery existed and these placards, "This machine does the work of ten men." This machine can be run by a woman." Any child can run this machine."

All But the Brain.

"As one of our leading Chicago labor men has said, 'The only thing the machine needs is that amount of bone and brain to fill with the work. Now they could not put in with metal and other things, and so the operator is put in as the last attachment. Now, nor a woman in control of his own invention, but a last attachment to a heaving piece of mechanism. If she has any ability, she must use it in physical strength and power of endurance are no longer as essential as formerly, and let us have the child, the girl, the woman, forced by poverty and utilized by the machine, entering the modern labor world as untrained workers. No joy of creation; no chance to think out or work out new plans in answer to an inner need and a growing knowledge—no master here in control of her tools—only the last attachment to a machine."

It is not surprising that the woman is slow to learn that her economic problem today is no longer a personal one to be solved by her individual effort, but a social one, to be controlled by social and collective action. Engrained in her mind is the idea of a debilder in the labor market, and her own worst competitor, putting the working mothers in the sweat shop and the working fathers on the tramp. Unorganized she has to accept conditions as she finds them. Her wages, long hours, abusive language, unsanitary conditions, locked doors, dangers of fire, work destructive of her physical strength, and the loss of her own future, work destructive of her moral development. Alone she cannot change these conditions. Alone she cannot even protest except at the risk of losing her job. She has tried; she now knows she loses her job when she asserts her fundamental right to have a voice in these conditions. Self-government is free people and self-government in the day's work can be had only by the united action of the workers. How can this be brought about? By the union shop."

Holland Union Growing.

The carpenters' union in Holland has doubled its membership in the past five years.

Labor Leader Who Says It Was Honor To Do Grand March With Mrs. Pankhurst

John Mitchell, secretary of the American Federation of Labor.

SURE, MITCHELL WAS PANKHURST'S PARTNER AND PROUD OF IT, TOO

Noted Labor Leader Led Grand March With Militant Suffragette at Chicago Union Ball—and Felt Honored.

THAT the American Federation of Labor was the first great American organization to recognize and approve the theory of woman's suffrage, and that the movement to enfranchise women everywhere is more heartily endorsed by the federation today than ever before, was the unanimous statement made yesterday by John Mitchell, second vice president of the Federation.

The statement came about as the result of an attempt to "josh" the labor leader for having led a grand march at a Chicago union labor ball recently with Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, English militant suffragette.

"Certainly I did," replied Mr. Mitchell, when faced with having performed the job of squire to Mrs. Pankhurst. "I consider Mrs. Pankhurst a wonderful leader—one far ahead of her time in England—and it is necessary that they have a right to express their opinions and their belief in the direct action destruction is a proper form of demonstration in the labor world. I still have a right to vote in the affairs of the Federation."

"Then it is safe to assume you are one of Mrs. Pankhurst's supporters?" he was asked.

"Well," came the guarded reply, "you may say for me that I am an earnest believer in woman suffrage. I consider Mrs. Pankhurst a wonderful leader—one far ahead of her time in England—and it is necessary that they have a right to express their opinions and their belief in the direct action destruction is a proper form of demonstration in the labor world. I still have a right to vote in the affairs of the Federation."

JOHN P. WHITE MAY SUCCEED MITCHELL IN BIG FEDERATION

President of United Mine Workers Is Spoken of as New Second Vice-President of International Body.

By C. D. STRATTON.

THAT John P. White, for three years president of the United Mine Workers of America, the most powerful organization affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, will at the coming session of the Federation in Seattle be elected to succeed John Mitchell as second vice-president, is conceded by the international delegates now assembled here awaiting the fall of the gavel.

John Mitchell, immediately after his arrival in Seattle Friday night, confirmed the report that he had just received from the most powerful organization, it became a foregone conclusion that White would step into Mitchell's shoes and his election on the last day of the Seattle convention is now regarded as certain, although it is quite probable that Mitchell's name will be proposed and that he will receive a complimentary vote.

The miners' union has a membership of nearly 400,000.

Whether the change in the governing board of the Federation will in any way change or modify the policy of the body is still a matter for speculation, though among labor leaders White is regarded as a thoughtful and Western Attitude Surprising.

"I am surprised to find in the West an attitude of surprise that we approve the suffrage for women. If we will consider the labor movement for the last twenty years, it must be realized that we gave women a vote on matters pertaining to their own welfare at a time when the rank and file of the citizens were willing to concede that woman's highest art was the proper turning of a hotcake without splashing butter."

"The federation declared many years ago that women ought to have equal right with men, and gave them the right to vote because they are employed in industrial work in large numbers and it is necessary that they be able to express their opinions as to the conditions under which such labor shall be performed, what the wages shall be and what hours of service are right and just. I may say in passing that women have exercised their right of voting in the affairs of the labor world in a splendid manner, expressing personal opinion with a due consideration for the viewpoint of the employer."

Unfortunately women workers are paid lower wages for exactly the same

Western Immigration Conference Goes on Record as Opposed to Free Admission of Orientals.

PROSPECTIVE EUROPEAN INFUX GREAT MENACE

Recommendation That Illiteracy Test and Increased Per Capita Tax Laws Be Urged in Congress.

By K. B. SMITH.

IMMIGRATION, its effect upon the present labor situation in the United States and the nature of legislation necessary to restrict it, as well as the best method of bringing such legislation about, is a problem that will take up no small part of the deliberations at the A. F. of L. convention during its coming session. The problem of immigration, as well as recommendations concerning it, will be put before the convention in a concrete form as a result of the deliberations of the Western Labor Immigration Conference which adjourned here last evening after a two days' session in the Labor Temple.

One of the important steps of the conference was taken a few moments before its adjournment, when upon motion of Paul Scharrerberg, of the California State Federation of Labor, the conference went on record as unanimously favoring the extension of the Chinese exclusion act so as to include the exclusion of Japanese, Koreans, Hindus and, in fact, all Asiatic peoples. During the session of the conference stirring addresses were made by the delegates, most of whom are from states of the Pacific Coast, in which every argument favoring the restriction of immigration from Southern Europe, as well as the Orient, was advanced.

The keynote of the anti-immigration sentiment seems to rest upon the "capitancy test" and the increased per capita tax and both of these propositions the conference went on record as favoring. At the session yesterday afternoon a resolution was adopted favoring the enactment of laws requiring an alien to be able to read and write his own language before being eligible to admission to already states.

Changes in Immigration.

The undesirability of unrestricted immigration was brought out in addresses to Charles Terry Taylor, secretary of the conference, Paul Scharrerberg, of California; E. P. Marsh, of Washington; E. P. Marsh, of California; Frank Morrison, secretary of the A. F. of L.; Olaf Tveitmo, of California, and a score of other speakers.

Mr. Taylor pointed out that from the close of the Civil War until 1882, immigration to the United States came principally from Great Britain, Ireland, Scotland, the Scandinavian countries, Germany and Holland, and that the character of that immigration was high and easily assimilable. Later, when the great manufacturing industries were firmly established, the demand for cheap and unskilled labor increased and then started the influx of aliens from the south of Europe which has continued to the present time and which forms a constantly growing menace to workmen already in the country and to organized labor, as it is hard to organize aliens of twenty or more different nationalities.

Statistics were quoted showing that in the state of New York alone, forty-two per cent of the population of the same asylums are of foreign birth and that during a recent year, the prison population of New York included 1,350 natives of that state, 878 natives of other states, 521 naturalized citizens and 1,000 paupers.

Other speakers urged the improvement of living conditions abroad, thereby making it most profitable to their native lands, as the only real solution of the immigration problem. Removal of restrictive taxes on foreign property in this country was also urged as a means of caring for many of those who are already here.

Legislation Asked.

The A. F. of L. is already back of a bill asking for an increased per capita tax as well as providing for an requirement. This bill was passed recently by the Senate and House and was vetoed by President Taft. The conference favored the presentation of the bill in practically the same form to the next session of Congress, believing it would be passed under the new administration.

The fight on the conference yesterday was on the question of whether or not the Western Labor Immigration conference should effect a permanent organization to work in conjunction with the A. F. of L. for the enactment of desirable immigration laws and should merely make recommendations to the A. F. of L. convention for its guidance and action. After hours of debate the latter course was decided upon, although a motion was made and adopted to the effect that the officers of the conference should move alive by taking up their deliberations and recommendations at the annual convention of the A. F. of L. representatives of the Mine Workers of Colorado, Washington, urging laboring men to form an industrial organization instead of craft organizations to oppose the present system of immigration and providing for an interchange of union cards. These matters were initiated by the resolutions committee, but that portion of the resolution asking for the appointment of a press agent or correspondent to keep European labor papers and other periodicals informed as to the true labor conditions on the Pacific Coast and thereby stem the tide of immigration, was adopted and such action by the A. F. of L. will be recommended.

Changes Recommended.

A summary of the recommendations to be made to the A. F. of L. through resolutions adopted by the immigration conference follows:

That Congress be urged to make appropriations for the construction of proper immigration stations, and as appropriations to properly handle the increase in immigration to the Pacific Coast which will result from the opening of the Panama Canal. Appropriation to properly enforce existing immigration laws are also urged.

That an alien be required to be able to read and write his own language before he is eligible to enter the United States.

That the per capita tax be increased, as provided for the bill introduced by the A. F. of L.

That owing to the tide of immigration and the ever increasing use of mechanical appliances by which products are increased, workers be advised of the desirability of shortening the working day.

That the A. F. of L. at its coming convention reiterate its demand for needed immigration legislation and direct its national officials and executive committee to aggressively press the enactment of such legislation at the next session of Congress.

That the A. F. of L. at the conference yesterday afternoon upon the presentation of a resolution urging legislation requiring foreigners to be
