

ALLEN TELLS WHY HE ESCAPED KING COUNTY JAIL

Man Wanted in Seattle or Charge of Murder Says He Strolled Away While Serving as Trusty.

HEMET, Cal., Saturday, Jan. 6.—"It was easy for me to escape. I had been a trusty for some time, and I walked out when a favorable opportunity appeared," said "Dr." Percival Allen today, following his arrest at San Bernardino by Constable Walker of Hemet upon advice from Seattle, where he is charged with the murder of Miss Anna Danielson of Minneapolis.

"Why did I escape? Because I learned that the heirs of my wife, formerly Miss Danielson, were planning on having me tried as soon as I was released from prison. I never wanted the slightest portion of her estate, but I have reason to believe that my arrest and conviction were inspired by a desire to shatter any claim I might make. It had means at the time I married Miss Danielson in Tacoma, but as a result of a long court fight I am now nearly penniless.

Worked as Barber.
"I escaped from the King County jail three months after being sentenced. My only reason for so doing was the fact that I heard that the other heirs were gathering evidence to have me arrested and tried for murder."
Allen says that since his escape in December he has been working in many places in Southern California, mainly as a barber. He had worked here two weeks as a barber when Constable Walker, suspecting he was the man wanted at Seattle, telegraphed North. Upon receiving advice from Seattle he arrested Allen at San Bernardino last night and brought him here. Walker thus earned the entire $500 reward.

AUTO HURTS AGED MAN ON CROSSING

Sheltering His Face From Rain With Umbrella, P. Benson Was Unable to See Car Driven by R. R. Fox.

P. Benson, a city street department employee, 64 years of age, living at 411 Melrose Avenue North, suffered a fractured right shoulder and a long deep laceration on the head when he was knocked down and run over by an automobile driven by R. R. Fox, manager of the Simons Saw Works, at 7:30 o'clock last night.

An investigating policeman and the testimony of witnesses indicated that the accident was unavoidable, although the testimony of a witness at the police headquarters on a charge of reckless driving was observed.

Benson, carrying an umbrella, was walking toward the approaching car, was struck. He went down and the car wheel passed over his head. He was picked up from beneath the car and taken to the city hospital.

GRAIN SESSION CLOSES

PULLMAN, Saturday, Jan. 6.—The eleventh annual convention of the Washington State Grain Growers' and Shippers' Association closed a three-day session here today. The meetings were held in the State College administration building in cooperation with the college faculty.

JAPANESE OF SEATTLE PUBLISH THREE DAILIES

This City, Headquarters of Nipponese Race in This Section, Home of Some Interesting Publications.

THEIR TYPOGRAPHY HAS ITS OWN PECULIARITIES

More Than Two Thousand Distinct Characters in Oriental Compositor's Case—One for Each Separate Idea.

HOW many readers of the Times know that daily newspapers are published in Seattle in the Japanese language?

Such is the case. Because of its commanding position in the Pacific Northwest as a commercial city, Seattle is also the headquarters for the Japanese of this section of the United States and three daily newspapers in the Nipponese tongue are published here. In addition, a score of weekly and monthly publications in that language reflect the life of the sons of Nippon in the home of their adoption.

Introducing our Oriental contemporaries: The North American, a thrice-daily edited and published by K. S. Arima, while the Great Northern Daily News is edited and published by K. Takeuchi. The third and youngest of the trio is the Asahi News published by N. Ishikawa.

While not possessed of the equipment that makes the Times one of the leading newspapers of the United States and the possessor of a plant second to none, the Japanese dailies have modern offices in the large buildings found in small cities and possess circulations that correspond. The North American Times boasts of 6,000 copies daily.

Linotype Not Workable.

Because of the peculiarities of the Japanese language, the linotype machine is an unknown quantity in the composing rooms. Even in the large offices in Tokyo and Yokohama, this Occidental invention is not used. The Japanese language is written in characters borrowed from the Chinese, and each word is represented by a separate character. Hence it is necessary to have as many individual types as there are words in the language. The "cases" of a Japanese compositor contain more than 2,000 characters, and publications wishing to go into technical writings require several times that number.

The type cases of the North American Times have a trifle more than 2,000 characters each, a sufficient number for ordinary newspaper needs. They are arranged according to their meaning, although a small case of extra size is situated in the center of the large cases, containing 500 or more words most commonly in use.

Sounds Simple Enough.

Simple, isn't it? Just like Aryans when they don't know how to spell one in their own dear orthographically-insane tongue.

In the language of the composing room, all Japanese type has the same "face." The dark, bold Gothic and the fine lined Roman are unknown. Imagine the room necessitated if type cases needing boxes to the number 2,000 or more for each font, were installed containing the variations to which the Latin alphabet lends itself. A live newspaper would have to rent the Smith building in order to find room for its type.

Picture the editor telling the "copy chaser" to tell the foreman of the composing room to get the printer to print in bold face italics.

LEARNING CASE IN JAPANESE IS NO SMALL JOB

Learning the "cases" for a Japanese compositor is a colossal task, according to those who have made a study of the mechanical side of newspaper publishing in that language. In English, the compositor learns twenty-six boxes for the lower case, small letters, while the upper case, or capitals, are arranged in alphabetical order. Japanese compositors handle more than 2,000 separate characters with which to contend, and in publications where a wide variety of vocabulary is desired, this number is often more than doubled. Under normal circumstances, a boy apprenticed at the age of 15 should have a fair working idea of the cases by the time he is ready to retire.

"That fat head in the front office wants this in italics," the editor shouts to the compositor on the forty-second floor. The elevator man would respond "That's Caslon condensed. They're down in the subbasement, the serifed and the blacked. Going down, bold faced Gothic, open faced Franklin, Italics and Niagara extended."

Taken the world over, in Seattle, Japan, Mesopotamia and Singapore, newspapers are never set in office and the variations are only in details. The reporters write their "copy" and hand it to the compositor.

Typewriter Not Used.

Because of the peculiarities of the Japanese tongue already described, the reporter does not use a typewriter as they do on the Times. They have not manufactured any yet with 2,000 or more characters. The writer uses pen or brushes on "copy paper" on which the lines are numbered and the paper ruled by a special machine. It is written in each square.

There, as on any other paper, the editor shows why he is editor, by wielding the fabled blue pencil with a free and easy grace that marks him as a man of design. It might be said, as in American newspaper offices, that the Japanese use a "blue" pencil. This fragment of the imagination exists only in the reporters' note books and do other strange and wonderful things. The reporter scores a "scoop" on the hated opposition, instead of having to use the office with a convincing alibi to prove why the man working opposite them is the luckiest fellow alive.

Have Outside Correspondents.

In addition to covering Seattle, the Japanese newspapers published here have correspondents in all coast cities of appreciable size. The North American Times has correspondents in Portland, San Francisco, Vancouver and Los Angeles, as well as having cable service daily from Tokyo containing dispatches that would prove of interest to the Japanese of this country.

While the greater part of the Japanese reporters are students, who have taken up the work to aid them in the pursuit of their studies, the editors are experienced men who formerly followed their profession in Japan.

By Way of Explanation.

It is as though an editor had been writing learnedly on anthropomorphic apes and following the use of the word "anthropomorphic" in the business of the press, "manlike in shape" by way of explanation. It's a good idea, might be adopted with appreciated results by writers who are inclined to indulge in polysyllabic monstrosities. See how many words an usual length

Linotype Not Adapted to Setting These Newspapers, and Reporters Have No Chance to Use Typewriter.

AUXILIARY ALPHABET IS SOMETIMES HANDY

Small Kani Type Employed Alongside Chinese Hieroglyphics by Way of Explaining What Is Intended.

They are able to get into a single paragraph. While devoting their attention largely to matters of sectional and racial interest, Seattle's Japanese dailies keep the reader posted on the more important happenings in the world at large. They are liberally patronized by the Japanese, Chinese, and other merchants, and not a few of the big stores uptown also have display advertisements appearing in their columns.

UNDERWRITERS TO GREET NATIONAL PRESIDENT

Puget Sound Association Men Will Give Banquet for John Newton Russell, Jr., Tomorrow Evening.

John Newton Russell, Jr., former secretary of the Pacific Mutual Life Insurance Company and president of the National Association of Life Underwriters, will be the guest of honor at a banquet to be given by the Puget Sound Life Underwriters Association tomorrow evening at the New Washington Hotel. The banquet will begin at 6:30 o'clock.

The coming of President Russell to Seattle is considered an event of the season in life insurance circles. He is said to be one of the most prominent men in the national insurance field at present. He is 52 years old and a native of Booneville, Mo. He is a member of the Puget Sound Life Underwriters Association, member of the Shrine and of the Society of the Sons of the American Revolution.

Nearly 500 insurance men of Seattle and vicinity have signified their intention of attending the banquet, which is planned to be one of the most elaborate in the history of life insurance in the Pacific Northwest. Mr. Russell will deliver an address on national insurance conditions.

CATCH AND SEARCH MAN AS HE PASSES

Frank Spencer Tells Police of "Strong-Arm" Operations in Which He Lost Purse Containing $15.

While making his way home early last evening, Frank Spencer, living at 4044 Fourth Avenue Southwest and Oregon Street, in West Seattle, observed two men slouching ahead ahead of him. He followed them and was in the act of passing, he was suddenly grasped from behind and held at a distance of forty feet. He was searched. The robbery took place at Thirty-ninth Avenue Southwest and Alaska Street.

The victim of the "strong-arming" business to the police sub-station several blocks away and reported his experience. He had lost a purse, containing $15.

SWITCHING SERVICE IS DISCUSSED BY EXPERTS

Plans to improve switching in Seattle Taken Up By Representatives.

Plans to improve switching service on railroads entering Seattle were discussed yesterday at a session of railroad representatives at the city station, and another meeting will be called in a few days to take up details. The session of experts on the railroad Avenue and to the pier leads was the principal subject discussed, shipping and passenger service, and the getting cars in and out. It was proposed that one line do all the switching for a certain time, the other lines alternating with it.

Those attending the conference included L. B. Gibson, general superintendent of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul; M. Buckley, general superintendent of the Union Pacific, with headquarters at Portland, and J. H. O'Neil, general superintendent of the Great Northern.

Doctor Says Crying Need Of the Woman of Today Is More Iron in Her Blood

TO PUT STRENGTH IN HER NERVES AND COLOR IN HER CHEEKS

Any Woman Who Tires Easily, Is Nervous or Irritable, or Looks Pale, Haggard and Worn Should Have Her Blood Examined for Iron Deficiency

Administration of Nuxated Iron in Clinical Tests Gives Most Astonishing Youthful Strength and Makes Women Look Years Younger

"There can be no healthy, beautiful, rosy-cheeked woman without iron," says Dr. Ferdinand King, a New York City physician. "In my recent talks to physicians on the grave and serious consequences of iron deficiency in the blood of American women, I have strongly emphasized the fact that doctors should prescribe more organic iron—nuxated iron—for their nervous, run-down, weak, haggard-looking women patients. Pallor means anemia. The skin of the anemic woman is pale, the flesh flabby. The muscles lack tone, the brain fails and the memory fails, and often they become weak, nervous, irritable, despondent and melancholy. When the iron goes from the blood of women, the result goes from their cheeks."

"In the most common foods of America, the starches, sugars, table syrups, refined, degreased, white bread, soda crackers, biscuits, macaroni, spaghetti, tapioca, rice, and other refined, degreased cornmeal no longer is iron. The iron has been removed from the iron of Mother Earth from these unwholesome foods, and silly methods of home cooking—boiling, baking, and frying—take the iron out of our vegetables as well as our meats."

"I have said a hundred times over, organic iron is the greatest of all strength builders. If you would only throw away the iron-destroying, iron-removing medicines and take simple nuxated iron, I am convinced that the lives of thousands of persons might be saved who now die every year from pneumonia, grippe, consumption, kidney, liver, heart trouble, etc. The real and true cause which underlies these diseases was nothing more nor less than a weakened condition brought on by lack of iron in the blood."

"On account of the peculiar nature of woman, and the great drain placed upon her system at certain periods, she requires iron much more than man to help make up for the loss."

"Iron is necessary to enable your blood to change food into living tissue. Without it, no matter how much or what you eat, your food merely passes through you without doing you any good. You do not get the strength out of it, and as a consequence you become weak, pale and sickly looking, just like a plant trying to grow in a soil deficient in iron. If you are not strong or well, you owe it to yourself to make the following test: See how long you can work or study. You can walk without becoming tired. Next, take two five-grain tablets of Nuxated Iron three times per day after meals for two weeks, then test your strength again and see how much you have gained.
