Both players fought hard every inch of the match. In the first set each man won his service until in the last of the set when Sanders lost. Sanders took the first five games in the second set but then he acquired a streak of bad luck and his playing crumbled to pieces. Chamberlain, playing a steady, consistent game, overtook the lead his opponent had built up and won the set, 7-5.

Featured by hard line drives, the third set was taken by Sanders.

In the last set, Sanders was on the small end of a 4-1 score when he railled and put up a great fight that gave him the next three games. Chamberlain headed off his opponent at this point and won the set and the title.

Famous Blue Devils Of France Collect American Baseballs

While the "Blue Devils" of France were watching the Yankees and Athletics at the Polo grounds recently a foul ball was knocked into their ranks. A wild eyed fan who sat in the grand stand near the French heroes hurried forward and grabbed the ball out of a soldier's hands. A scrimmage followed in which other fans and several American fighters took part. The ball was finally wrenched loose and was handed back to one of the Blue Devils, while the crowd loudly cheered in approval. The Frenchman examined the pill with evident curiosity, and then, taking a tip from the American soldiers, he put it in his pocket. Later one of the French officers was delighted when a spectator caught another foul ball and presented it to him with a low bow.

San Diego Mayor Gives Glad Hand To Benny Leonard

Seldom has an athlete received a more unique or better reception than that accorded Benny Leonard, the lightweight champion of the world, when he arrived in San Diego recently with Billy Gibson and James W. Coffroth to hox Johnny Stanton for the purpose of raising funds to supply the soldiers with equipment.

The greeter-in-chief was Mayor Wilde, who met Benny at the Plaza, shook his hand and introduced him to a big crowd.

"We like you, Benny Leonard." said the mayor, "because you're a fighter, and a clean fighter, and this is the day of the fighter. We honor the man with a punch in either hand who knows how to use that punch for right and justice."

The lightweight champion made a short address in reply and said that he hipsed his punch would be of benefit to his country.

Huggins Deserves Much Credit for Yankees' Showing

Miller's Ability to Handle Pitchers Largely Responsible for Success.

MIDGET MILLER HUGGINS, boss of the Yankees, is a Hindoo when it cames to getting work out of the pitchers. His manipulation of the sharpshooters, more than anything else, has been responsible for the show of life made by the Yankees of 1918, and while the heavy-hitting members of the team have done their share in the way of making runs, it has been the pitching staff which turned back the opposition. Huggins was a stranger to the members of the Yanks when the squad invaded Macon, Ga., last spring, and his players were strangers to him for the most part. He had seen one or two of his men in action, but that was all, and he had to make his calculations regarding the value of this or that player on comparatively short notice.

Shawkey Entlists.

Then, just about the time the team was ready to quit camp and start northward. Bob Shawkey found that he had been placed in Class I-A of the National Army draft, and left the team to enlist. The loss of Shawkey was a hard blow, but Huggins grinned, set his iaw and went after the remaining members of the pitching staff, determined to mould them into a combination of winners.

The secret of it all lies with Huggins and his generalship in handling his hurlers. In Caldwell, Mogridge, Love, Russell and Thormahalen, Hug can't be said to have a world-beating corps of wigglers by any means, yet he has awakened new ambition in the erstwhile erratic Ray Caldwell, and is handling the rest of his men with a master hand.

West Siders Are Drubbed Again in Copious Contest

Colman Grammar School Team Wins, 37 to 8-Box Scorers Go on Strike,

Some ambitious individuals started in to keep a box score of the "play-over" game between the Colman and West Seattle grammar schools at Lincoln Park yesterday afternoon, but they soon became buried in a sea of hieroglyphics and then quietly slipped their books in their pockets and tried to appear very nonchalantly.

It is known however, that Colman won 37 to 8. That's about all that was definitely established.

After Colman hadd defeated West Seattle Saturday by a score of 11 to 8 for the championship of Class A in the Grammar School League the west siders filed a protest on the grounds that the umpire had called a fly ball a fair one at a crucial moment when men were on bases. Pollowing an investigation the claims were verified and allowed and the game was ordered played over. As things stand now West Seattle would be more contented if, the game was not played over. Colman opened the bombardment on the west siders as soon as events perfors and a walk. From then on it was easy salling for the champs.

Saturday afternoon Colman will play Fairview, leaders in Class B for the grammar school championship of the city.

Youth Dropped by Sox Making Good With Uncle Sam

Andrew Slight, a Chicago boy who once tried to be a White Sox catcher, is making good in Uncle Sam's service helping build docks for shipping.

Slight showed such ability that he has been promoted twice, and naval men who know say he will go a long way in the navy at the rate he has started.

Urges Removal of Bars to Orientals

Dr. Sidney L. Gulick, author and lecturer, in an address before the China Club yesterday afternoon made a plea for removal of the "humiliating race discrimination" in America against the Chinese and Japanese.

"These countries do not expect free immigration," explained Dr. Gulick, "but they do ask that we recognize and respect their national honor and dignity and live up to our treaties with them." nity and live up to our treaties with them."

Dr. Gulick said the doors of citizenship should be opened to Chinese and Japanese, to as many as this country can Americanize, the maximum to be a definite per cent of the total Americanborn children plus those who have become naturalized. The latest census, he said, should be the basic for the work.
