JAPANESE EVADE ANTI-ALIEN LAW

Utilize Services of Whites as Dummy Incorporators in Organizing Companies.

PHELAN EXPOSES RECORD

Universal Service, Special Cable, via Leased Wire.

SAN FRANCISCO, Saturday, April 5.—United States Senator Phelan yesterday declared that the Japanese have found a means of evading the anti-alien land laws of California, and are using white men as "dummy" incorporators to gain control of California lands. This charge, he said, was based upon statistics furnished him by the corporation commissioner of this state. These statistics, according to the senator, show:

That the number of Japanese who have made application in the last three months for power to form corporations equals the number who have applied for incorporation papers in the past two years. Senator Phelan said:

"This shows the necessity of repealing Section three of the antialien land law which provides that aliens can form corporations with the provisions that the majority of the incorporators be citizens or be eligible to citizenship in the United States."

This section, he stated, at the time of the passage of the law was considered a preventative measure, but "the Japanese have been slow in taking advantage of its flabbiness."

Senator Phelan's statemnt in full follows:

"To sucessfully combat the legal advice employed by the Japanese to evade the law of the state, the Legislature must pass the Inman bill.

"It has become necessary for me to appeal directly to the people of this state for support in securing the passage of this measure.

"In 1913 the antialien land law was passed by the California Legislature and Section three of that bill provided that aliens could form corporations with the provision that the majority of the incorporators be citizens or be eligible to citizenship in the United States.

"The ineligible Japanese who wished to form corporations secured as their incorporators white men, citizens of the United States who act as dummies. Statistics furnished me by the state corporation commissioner show conclusively that in most of the corporations the majority of the incorporators are white men and in this way the Japanese successfully evade the real meaning and intention of the law makers.

Record of Incorporations.

"In California there are 104 Japanese corporations and fifty more have made applications to the corporation commissioner to incorporate since January 1, 1919. The 104 corporations have a combined capital stock of $2,348,000.

"In addition, the Japanese have four foreign firms incorporated under California laws with holders in Japan with a capital stock of approximately $53,000,000. The largest of these which withdraw big profits from California, is the Mitsui Bussan Kabaschiki Kaisha, capitalized for $50,000,000.

"The other three companies are the Tokyo Marine & Fire Insurance Company, Ltd.; the Oakada Company, and the Ushida Trading Company.

"This shows how the Japanese have been taking advantage of the loopholes of the California and alien land law.

"The greatest number of corporations controlled by the Japanese is in Fresno County, where forty-one companies have invested approximately $925,000. All are interested in farming.

"In San Francisco there are ten Japanese corporations. These are, for the most part, engaged in trading, real estate, general merchandise, importing and exporting and promotion societies. The combined capitalization of these concerns on paper is $320,000.

"The records show the Japanese corporations in other cities: Los Angeles, nine; Sacramento, eight; Merced, five; Oakland, four; Placer, three; Tulare, two; Dinuba, Watsonville, Loomis and Lodi, one each.

"There is a scattering of others throughout the state, the principal locations being Sonoma, Hanford, San Bernardino, San Jose, New Castle, the Santa Clara Valley, San Diego, Oxnard, Livingston, San Fernando, Vacaville, Guadalupe and San Lorenzo.

"The majority of the corporations have been formed to promote the immediate interests of the Japanese farmers and land holders. The Japanese farmers in one region forms a corporation and together they manage to obtain benefits through the control of land which they would find impossible to obtain individually."

He rejoined his regiment during the battle of Argonne and saw active service through the rest of the war. On November 12 he started with the Army of Occupation for Germany and was within fifteen miles of Coblenz when he was assigned as commanding officer of the 12th Field Hospital of the 30th Division and was sent back to France.

Major Cullen was decorated for bravery, and letters of appreciation from the division surgeon and division sanitary inspector give him the highest praise.

STARTS CAMPAIGN UNDER NEW LAWS

Seattle Safety Council to Discuss Plans to Reduce Accidents at Session Tonight.

TO ENFORCE REGULATIONS

Marking the beginning of a statewide campaign, under the new industrial insurance code, for the enforcement of safety regulations in all industrial plants, a meeting of the Seattle Safety Council will be held tonight in the Hotel Washington Annex. Industrial Insurance Commissioners Harley J. Hughes and Donald A. McDonald, together with Capt. F. A. Bird, who is to be the commissioner's new medical examiner when the revised code becomes effective June 13, will attend the meeting. It is expected about forty Seattle firms, most of them engaged in the lumber industry, will be represented at the gathering.

Captain Bird, formerly of Kelso, has been stationed at the base hospital at Camp Lewis and was induced by the Industrial Insurance Commission to accept a temporary appointment as assistant medical examiner until the new law, increasing the salary to $6,000 a year, becomes effective. Dr. John W. Mowell, now chief medical examiner for the board, will become chairman of the first-aid board under the new law. His salary will be the same as that of the chief examiner, the two positions being better paid than almost any other that the state provides.

The safety first campaign, which in the future will have the active support of the Industrial Insurance Commission under its enlarged powers, is an effort to induce both employers and employes to minimize the danger of accident from careless handling of machinery.

Under the new law industrial plants that provide safety appliances and which give regular instruction to workmen of danger in handling machinery will be given a rebate on their industrial insurance premiums. Those plants that neglect safety precautions will be required to pay a penalty.

The Seattle Safety Council was organized under the direction of a national association that is carrying on a widespread and comprehensive fight to reduce the number of accidents in industrial plants. Under the auspices of the national organization several meetings have been held in this state, but tonight's gathering is the first that has been called since the last Legislature revised the industrial insurance code.

WARNS FILIPINOS OF FATE OF KOREA

Hitchcock Sounds Keynote at Luncheon in Washington—Islands Need Protection.

Universal Service, Special Cable, via Leased Wire.

WASHINGTON, Saturday, April 5.—Fear of Japanese aggression in the Philippines, if independence should be granted the islands, will cause Congress to go slow in considering the plea for freedom presented to Secretary of War Baker today.

Senator Hitchcock of Nebraska, retiring chairman of the foreign relations committee and one of the administration spokesmen in the Senate, struck the keynote of the situation in his speech at a luncheon tendered by the Filipino delegation to Secretary Baker yesterday.

The senator said he favored independence of the Philippines but not at this time. In his judgment the matter should be held up until the outcome of the peace conference is known. If there should be a league of nations he thought the integrity of the Philippines, under an independent government, could be safeguarded.

Points to Korea.

The Filipinos are able to govern themselves internally, Senator Hitchcock continued, but they have not sufficient forces to repel foreign invasion. He referred to the fate of Korea as a living example of the dangers confronting a weak nation.

Japan was not mentioned by the senator, but the inference was plain.

Manuel L. Quezon, president of the Philippine Senate and head of the independence mission, stated to Universal Service last night that his government would accept any form of independence the United States should offer. The Philippine delegation formally presented their appeal to Secretary Baker at the War Department yesterday.

In a letter before his departure for France on March 3, President Wilson wrote that he hoped the visit of the mission "will result in bringing about the desirable end set forth in the joint resolution of the Legislature approving the sending of the commission to the United States."

Sentiment for Freedom.

Secretary Baker said that President Wilson believes the sentiment of the people of the United States to be that "the time has substantially arrived when the people of the Philippine Islanus should be allowed to sever the formal political tie that binds them to the United States."

Mr. Quezon, who delivered the address on behalf of the forty members of the delegation, said that the granting of independence to his country would prove to the world that America is a "liberating rather than a conquering nation."

TO GIVE EGYPTIAN DANCE

Imogene Seton Will Be Featured at Junior Girls' Vaudeville.

Egyptian impressions, by Imogene Seton, will be the feature of the junior girls' vaudeville at the University of Washington given in Meany Hall tonight.

The Egyptian dance takes place in a mysterious temple. A mummy which has been entombed there for years rises up from her resting place and gives the dance. Miss Seton is well known in Portland, her home, and in university circles, for her dancing ability. She will be accompanied by four priestesses, Olive MacDonald, Eula Charroin, Majery Avery and Catharine Roberts.

The vaudeville is made up of five acts, with an overture by the university orchestra. A comedy dancing and singing act will be presented by Ray Ryan, Roy Rosenthal and Frank Preston. This will be followed by a skit entitled "The Little Shop Around the Corner." Those who will take part in this skit are Ruth Kerr, Clarence Shawler, Harold Hutchinson, Mary Worsham and Jonathan Trumbull. Marie Broulette, known for her musical ability at the university, has developed a pianologue which will be particularly interesting to university students as she has made many personal references in it.

The grand finale of the vaudeville will be the "Junior Follies."

UNLEAVENED BREAD FOR JEWISH BOYS

Each One of 60,000 Soldiers Abroad Will Receive Five to Six Pounds of Matzoths.

WILL OBSERVE PASSOVER

PARIS, Saturday, April 5.—The approximately 60,000 Jewish soldiers of the A. E. F. wil receive an average of five to six pounds of matzoths from the Jewish Welfare Board to enable them to observe the Passover holy days, it was announced today at the continental headquarters, 41 Boulevard Haussmann.

Arrangements have been made by the board for the purchase of 206,000 pounds of matzoths in France. In addition, 160,000 pounds left New York City aboard the transport Santa Paula on March 22, and arrived in France on April 2.

General Pershing has offered the welfare organization the facilities of the Quartermaster Corps in the distribution of the unleavened bread among the Jewish soldiers.

The distribution of matzoths forms but a small part of the arrangements being made by the Jewish Welfare Board for the observance of Passover. The fifteen large centers and the dozens of small Jewish Welfare Board huts in camp will be scenes of "seder" services such as the boys knew at home. Twenty thousand "haggadahs" or Passover service books, have been printed.

French Jews have been canvassed by the Jewish Welfare workers and many of them have offered to be hosts to one or more American soldiers during the holy day. Jewish soldiers of the A. E. F. will be given furloughs wherever feasible, army headquarters have announced.

CARNEGIE'S DREAM NOW COMING TRUE

Daughter Gets License to Wed Son of Man Who Used to Be His Chum Long Ago.

HIS HOPE OF MANY YEARS

Universal Service, Special by Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, Saturday, April 5.—A long forgotten and but recently remembered dream of Andrew Carnegie, the steel king, will be fulfilled when his daughter, Miss Margaret Carnegie, who took out a marriage license yesterday with Ensign Roswell P. Miller, U. S. N., weds the young officer on April 22.

Miss Carnegie who gave her age as 22, was born of a late marriage, for the great iron master did not marry Louise Whitfield, the heiress' mother, until he was 52. More than a score of years before his marriage, when Mr. Carnegie was a hired man in a Pittsburgh steel mill, was known as "Andy," the young workman, then 30, was chatting with his bosom friend, Roswell Miller.

They had formed a strong friendship during the Civil War, Miller having fought as a lieutenant in the Third New York Artillery, and young Carnegie working in the office of the superintendent of military telegraphs.

No Doll for Him.

The two men were looking over some steel rails ordered by Miller, then a railroad contractor. A young woman flounced by and Carnegie, glancing at her remarked to his friend:

"Ross, if I ever get married and have a daughter, I'm not going to let her grow up to be a doll. She is going to know something about making her home."

"And if I ever have a boy, Andy," responded Miller, "I hope he marries that girl of yours, or some one like her, because he is going to earn his own living and know how to do it with his own hands."

Twelve years after his marriage, Margaret came to brighten the home of Andrew Carnegie, then 64 years of age. He is now 86 and she is 22, yet they are chums and have been ever since she could lisp and toddle about the room. When the steel king was 75 he spent a very busy birthday, for Margaret, then 11, had managed to beat him at billiards. He was more tickled than if he had just launched a new $100,000,000 corporation. Reporters tried to squeeze an interview from them. They got it. It ran something like this:

Too Busy to Talk.

"My daughter has managed to beat me at billiards. I'm too busy to talk; I want to see if she can do it again."

With never a thought of the dream he and his friend Miller had voiced many years before respecting their possible offspring, Andrew Carnegie and his wife who shared his democratic views, set about making a real American woman of the girl who will inherit such part of the ironmaster's $300,000,000 as he has not given away. She was taught to cook, sew and clean house. When she first went to school at the age of 15 she knew far more about housekeeping than most young women know when they marry.

She could market and make clothes, and the miniature apartment set apart in the Carnegie mansion at 2 East 91st Street for her special use and experimentation had been finished and refinished and arranged and rearranged by her until it was perfect.

And then, about a year ago, if Andrew Carnegie had lost recollection of his long dream, Dame Nature stepped in to remind him. Margaret Carnegie was a school friend of the sister of Roswell P. Miller, son of Mr. Carnegie's old chum. He had been driving an ambulance in France, but returned to take service in the American navy. He and Margaret Carnegie formed even a stronger attachment than had existed between their fathers. She was just the kind of girl young Carnegie, the mill hand, had promised Mr. Miller she should be. The attachment ripened into love and finally Ensign Miller asked Andrew Carnegie for his daughter's hand. Then it was the ironmaster remembered the dream of over a half century ago and told about it.
