JAPANESE HONOR EMPEROR

Celebration of Mikado's Birthday Is Participated in by Many in Seattle.

Consul Entertains Countrymen and Will Receive All Foreigners.

The Japanese of the world are celebrating today the United States, wherever there is a group of subjects of the Flower Kingdom, a demonstration is taking place. It is in honor of the birthday of the Emperor of the Land of the Setting Sun. The celebration in Seattle began at an early hour this morning. S. Hisamizda, the Japanese consul in this city, is the prime mover in the activities. From 10 o'clock this morning until 4 o'clock this afternoon, he spent the day explaining the Japanese people of Seattle at his home, 326 Thirtieth Avenue. From 4 to 6 o'clock this afternoon he will receive all "foreigners" who desire to call, while tonight, in Germania Hall, the Japanese people will end the day and celebration. The entrance to the Hisamizda home is beautifully decorated with a large silken banner, symbol of the Japanese race and nation. The Japanese consul this morning was dressed in the uniform of his rank, which a bright gold-mounted sword hung at his side. Mrs. Hisamizda was gowned in white silk, with the conventional long train worn by the women of Japan at the court receptions. Mr. Hisamizda says that the celebration going on in his native country is similar in some respects to our own celebration of Independence Day. He explains that the Japanese people of the city at some time during the day will make offerings to the long life and prosperity of the Emperor and to their native land. All places of business will be closed and the time spent generally in the celebration of the Mikado's birth. This morning the consul sent a telegram of congratulatory wishes to the Japanese minister at Washington, D. C. In Japan the day started with the firing of the national salute in every city and village throughout the land. The day will be spent in song and thanksgiving, while in the larger cities, principally the seaport towns, special programs and fetes will be carried out.

MAN DIES IN A SALOON

Body of a Marine Engineer Found Dead in a Chair Where He Slept.

Samuel Edgar, at one time said to be a marine engineer, was found dead sitting in a chair in the Whales saloon at the foot of Main Street at 2:30 o'clock this morning. Nothing was found upon his person to indicate the whereabouts of his relatives and inquiry among the marine engineers of the city failed to bring to light any knowledge of the deceased's home. He is said to have been a frequent visitor of saloons for the past five years, and apparently had no occupation. His body was taken to the Bonney-Watson Company's morgue, where coroner Eloy will have a post-mortem examination either tonight or tomorrow morning.

YUKON OPENED BY WARM WAVE

River, Once Closed, Permits Three Vessels to Leave Dawson.

The Times Special Service. SKAGWAY, Alaska, Oct. 31.—Three steamers left Dawson yesterday for White Pass and a warm wave cleared the Yukon of ice and permitted navigation. Several days ago the river closed and it was supposed that navigation for the year had ceased. The warm weather came unexpectedly, and on the 29th the river began to open, permitting the passage of the boats. Transportation officials believe there is more than a mere chance that the three boats from Dawson will reach White Horse before the river again closes, though there is great likelihood that they will be caught in the second freeze and held in the grasp of the ice all winter.

ROW SPLITS THE CONVENTION

Delegates to Non-Partisan Territorial Gathering Walk Out.

The Juneau Meeting Declares Against Movement and for Other Things.

The Times Special Service. JUNEAU, Alaska, Oct. 26.—The non-partisan convention has broken up in a row, and one section has declared itself opposed to territorial government. The trouble was all caused by the refusal of the majority of delegates present on the day set for opening to await the arrival of the belated representatives. When a motion to postpone action was voted down, those who had voted in its favor withdrew, and the representation left decided the questions at issue without their aid. Delegates from Skagway, Haines, Portage, Egan and other points, including Lynn Canal points failed to reach Juneau on schedule time, though it was shown that they would arrive tomorrow morning. Sixty-three delegates were then present, and forty-three absolutely refused to attend the business of the convention. Among the delegates who walked out were those from Ketchikan, Wrangell, Sitka and other points, and the Delaney delegation from Juneau. Business was then hurried through. J. B. Hamlin of Sitka was chosen chairman, and W. W. Shortall of Treadwell secretary. In addition to the resolution opposing territorial government, the convention declared in favor of a survey of the coal lands, urging that money raised outside of incorporated towns be expended in the district; urging full powers of municipalities over misdemeanors; for big appropriations for the proposed Juneau capital building; an extra appropriation for the world's fair; urging that the cable be extended to Ketchikan; for an open season for salmon in southeastern Alaska; and repeal of the law permitting the location of mining claims by power of attorney. The delegates who left the convention and those who will arrive tomorrow are expected to meet in a separate convention. Nome, Valdez and the American Yukon are not represented at all. It is believed that a vote of all the delegates would be strongly in favor of territorial government for the district.

MINISTERS DIFFER OVER A BOOK

Tacoma Pastors, Who Have Not Read It, Object to "Rejected of Men."

The Times Special Service. TACOMA, Tuesday, Nov. 3.—The ministers of Tacoma are much divided on questions of dogma. At today's meeting of the Ministerial Alliance the book, "Rejected of Men," written by Henry Pyle, was reviewed by Rev. W. M. Mackie, the young pastor of the East Tacoma Presbyterian Church. Rev. Mr. Mackie was disposed to glance with a friendly eye at the teachings of the work, and in doing this awoke a storm of dissenting voices among the ministers present. Rev. A. F. Kirkpatrick, however, strongly sided with Mr. Mackie, stating that he had read the work in question and had given it to members of his church to read. The book contains statements which many of the ministers contend are pronounced heresy. One of these is as follows: "What we cannot really accept is the fact that this infinite creator, this omnipotent, omniscient, omnipresent divinity, should actually have become finitely incarnate upon the earth. It is still more impossible for us to believe with our reason that the humble wife of a common carpenter should have given
