CALLS WORK ROAD TO LABOR PEACE

College President Says Prosperity Waits on Restored World Surplus.

SAVE AND INVEST, PLEASE

There can be no durable prosperity until the world has laboriously restored the economic surplus the war exhausted, which can not be done until the nation has industrial peace, President William T. Foster of Reed College, president of the Seattle Chamber of Commerce and Commercial Club members council at a weekly luncheon at the Masonic Club today.

World's Greatest Problem. "The problems of the relation of labor and capital are the most serious that now confront the world. These can never be solved until employees, employers and the public understand a few fundamental principles of economics, politics and social psychology."

"We must understand that industrial peace, like peace among individuals, can be maintained only through respect for the law. Any body of men, employers, employees or unemployed, that seeks a better order through resort to force outside the law, as much as any body of mankind as the infamous German war lords, and for the same reason, has advanced the price of alfalfa from $18 a ton to $12 per ton. The difference in the drying of the alfalfa brings the difference in price. Alfalfa dried by ordinary methods appears a dingy brown. Through the process invented by Mr. Bassler, the alfalfa retains its original color. It is because of this Mr. Bassler is able to get twice as much for his patent dried alfalfa. His invention is a steam drier in which green alfalfa is put in a chamber on a Kansas ranch of 2000 acres, and it is then put in bags and shipped to any part of the world without spoiling. Mr. Bassler runs his big machine day and night, rain or shine, and it works like a charm. The alfalfa made in this modern way is said to have 17 per cent of protein compared with 12 per cent under the old way. Mr. Bassler says he can dry anything. He has built big grain driers as well as big hemp drying plants. He claims that with his drying plants he can take the garbage of any large city and convert it into the finest feed for hogs. Any large city can make a profit of its garbage if handled in this way."

Let All Become Capitalists. "In the second place, there can be no lasting industrial peace until men know the outlines of economic history. When all understand that we would still be living in dugouts and log cabins, traveling in the mud and depending on candles, unless somebody had saved money and found a safe social order in which to invest it, there will be no further condemnation of capitalists. There is no other way to break down the line between capital and labor."

"We cannot get along without labor; we cannot get along without capital. We should all become laborers; we should all become capitalists. The war has brought us nearer that goal. On the one hand it has shamed many idlers into action. On the other hand it has created several more capitalists—holders of government bonds."

Alfalfa dried by ordinary methods appears a dingy brown. Through the process invented by Mr. Bassler, the alfalfa retains its original color. NORTHWEST ROADS HAVE 30 DAYS' GOAL

No Orders Received in Seattle on Commandeering Supply, Say Rail Officials.

The railroads serving the Pacific Northwest have received no instructions from the government to commandeering coal supplies for the operation of trains, railway administration officials said today.

The only commandeering they had heard of was that ordered in Colorado, which they said had been based on local conditions.

The railroads running into Seattle and other Puget Sound cities, they asserted, were well equipped with coal for immediate needs and probably would be able to make the reserve last a month.

N. F. Has Own Mines. The Northern Pacific Railway owns large mines in the Roslyn-Cle Elum field and burns coal exclusively. The Oregon-Washington Railway also burns coal. The Southern Pacific, which serves California and extends into Oregon, burns oil exclusively.

The Great Northern burns oil on its Coast lines as far east as Spokane. The Milwaukee also burns oil and uses electric locomotives and is not dependent on coal. Its Coast lines or between Avery, Mont., and the Coast.

Railroad officials said that while it would be possible to convert coal burning locomotives to oil burners, it would take considerable time and be costly.

Oil Not Sufficient. For several years before the United States went to war oil was largely used on Pacific Northwest railroads, but as wartime measure many locomotives were converted to coal burners.

Railroad officials pointed out, however, that while oil would enable the railroads to maintain Coast line service, it would not solve the problem of maintaining transcontinental service, as oil could not be transported far from the Coast.

WORKERS IN CHEHALIS MINES PLANNING TO WALK OUT TONIGHT. CHEHALIS, Friday, Oct. 31.—Miners in the Chehalis mines are expected to walk out tonight, although it is said not many of them are keen to strike. Superintendent Wing of the Superior mines said that a number of business men have told him they will help work the mines if necessary to keep people from freezing. Most people have coal in their bins in preparation for the strike.

STATE OFFICERS, THOUGH READY, EXPECT LITTLE STRIKE TROUBLE. OLYMPIA, Friday, Oct. 31.—Decision of the Washington mine owners to shut down and not attempt to operate in this state during the strike has been met with a number of business men have told him they will help work the mines if necessary to keep people from freezing. Most people have coal in their bins in preparation for the strike.

164 BELLINGHAM MINERS WILL QUIT WORK TONIGHT. BELLINGHAM, Friday, Oct. 31.—Officials of the local union of the United Mine Workers announced today that the 164 union men employed in the Bellingham coal mines would quit work at midnight tonight in obedience to the strike order.
