JAPANESE MAKE LEAD

SHOW BIGGEST CENSUS INCREASE IN THE U. S.

White Population Grows but 16 Per Cent in Decade and Negroes but 6 Per Cent.

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Friday, June 24.—The racial composition of the population of the United States in 1920, as announced last night by the Census Bureau, shows 94,822,431 white persons, 10,463,013 negroes, 242,959 Indians, 11,025 Japanese, 61,856 Chinese and 14,433 others. The increase exceeded the rate of growth in the last ten years of all other classes.

Unofficial estimates of the increase in the white population of the Pacific Coast, were borne out in the official tabulation which revealed a rate of expansion of 53.9 per cent. California absorbed 20,596 of the growth of 383,147 persons. On January 1, 1920, there were 71,952 Japanese in California. The rate of increase in the New York state was 17.283; Oregon, 4.151, and Utah, Colorado and New York with between two and three thousand each.

The white population showed only a 16 per cent expansion and the negro 6.5 per cent. Both the Indian and Chinese groups dwindled 8.5 per cent and 13.5 per cent, respectively. The growth in the white population was somewhat less than in the decade of the previous decade, which was 22.3 per cent. This decline, the statement said, was due principally to the reduction in immigration during the war.

The rate of increase in the negro population was the lowest on record, according to the statement. Evidence of the migration of the negro to the North and West was found in the figures showing nearly three-fourths of the increase in the negro population, or 472,418 of the 536,350 gain in these sections, consisted of only 162,832 or about one-fourth, was reported for the South, despite the fact that 70 per cent of the total negro race is still there. The percentage increase of negroes in the West was 6.5.

Decrease in the Indian race in the last decade was probably the greatest in part, it was said, to the enumeration, as Indians in 1910 and as whites in 1920, persons having only slight traces of Indian blood.

Of the total decrease in the Indian race, 72 per cent for the greatest part, 18,876, was in Oklahoma. The only pronounced increase was reported for North Carolina from 361 to 824. Other states where increases occurred were Louisiana, Texas, Montana, Arizona and California.

BOOZE BONFIRE PROBE EXONERATES DEPUTY

Department of Justice Bureau of Investigation, and John M. Boyle, United States marshal for the District of Western Washington, are directed toward allegations made against the methods used by L. J. Flanagan, chief deputy United States marshal, in carrying out the court order for destruction of the liquor, at Blaine.

Investigation upon court orders was predicated upon letters written to Judge Neeter by the Rev. George Wood, pastor of the First Congregational Church of Blaine and J. V. Shoemaker, editor of The Blaine Journal, in which newspaper editorial clippings were included. The investigation committee, in its summary, reported that while it found that some liquor was destroyed through the result of studied initiative and boldness would have undoubtedly been great, the small and insignificant loss sustained through Mr. Flanagan's method. The committee held Flanagan and his deputy in contempt for not effectively and efficiently carrying out the order. It commended him for the part he played in the destruction.

Not All Consumed by Fire. Liquor involved in the destruction was that seized by customs agents at Blaine in two separate shipments in freight cars from Vancouver, B. C., billed to San Francisco and Salt Lake. The liquor had been packed in the freight cars beneath household goods and lumber. It was ordered destroyed, and the household effects and lumber were ordered sold after a court hearing late last month.

Chief Deputy Flanagan's method, which aroused a storm of criticism, and which resulted in the federal investigation, was to build a bonfire in a vacant lot, on an elevated position, and to have the liquor thrown into the fire in cases. He opened the boxes or cases. It was alleged that bottles rolled down an incline, that small boys dived from the crowd of spectators, seizing the stray bottles and running away with them.

Ideal Location Selected. The spot where the liquor was destroyed, the committee found, "appears to have been selected for the purpose of concealing the destruction. The bonfire was contained in two lots, one of 251 cases of liquor, and the other of 125 cases of 12 quarts each. When the kegs had been destroyed, the party worked a fire on a bench about ten feet below the top of the lot, and set the bottom of the lot.

The 261 cases were from time to time thrown into the fire, and the 125 cases, approximately, in the larger containers were carried out of the lot, and were dumped into the street. The fire was extinguished by the fire department, and the burning pile of bottles taken by boys.

C. H. Dodd, employed by the deputy marshal to assist in the destruction, said numerous men and boys assisted to witness the destruction, and that he was given an axe to keep the fulfillment of the court's order. He stated that he had no authority to keep the persons away from the spot, but that he had boys while he was there. He stated that a number of cases in the warehouse were destroyed before the destruction was complete, and that a boy at the Blaine mill had been discharged from employment because he refused to give up two cases.

He stated that there might have been ten cases stolen in all, and that doctors in Blaine on the night of the theft had had many calls to attend mere children. He said that during his watch at the bottom of the pile he had heard voices in the brush and had gone in to discover six men seated on the ground, each with a bottle in his hand. He said he tried to kill him, Dodd said, according to the report, and he left. His statements were disputed by the committee, who said that in Blaine it would be impossible for Dodd to see six men who had been discharged from employment because he refused to give up two cases.

Deputy Collector's Statement. Blaine deputy collector of customs at Blaine, said that all of the sealed liquor was intact, but that George Wesselt, proprietor of the Del Monte Hotel, told the committee he found that certain small boys grabbed empty bottles, filled them with sea water and sold them for $1 each to persons in Blaine as white goods, telling them that they had been stolen from the scene of destruction.

Other persons interviewed by the investigating committee were J. W. B. Merritt, city attorney; Pinkney Howard Merrill, deputy sheriff; O. E. Stephenson, Thomas J. Quinn, postmaster; Paul O'Dell, secretary of former United States Senator Samuel H. Piles, and Editor Shew's. The committee for its collective experience, the official report stated, "is appreciative of the difficulties incident to the task assigned to Deputy U. S. Marshal Flanagan in a city the size of Blaine. It realizes that if this consignment of bottled liquor was

Alien Land Law To Be Passed Upon Soon

Federal constitutionality of the alien land law passed by the Washington Legislature is to be passed upon by three United States judges sitting at Tacoma this afternoon. The hearing is expected to last several days. The case which brought the law before a federal tribunal was the suit filed in the federal district court at Tacoma June 12 by Mrs. Terrace and wife of White River Valley against L. L. Thompson, state attorney-general, and the state of Washington, the complainants charging that the law is unconstitutional and violates the treaty between the United States and Japan. Terrace and his wife are owners of farm land in the White River valley which is under lease to Japanese. Representing the complainants are E. J. Quigg, speaker of the House of Representatives opposing passage of the law in the Legislature. The judges sitting en banc are E. L. Cushman of Tacoma, general court of appeals; W. B. Gilbert of San Francisco, members of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals.

FRIENDLY KNIGHTS NOT FORGOTTEN

ELLENSBURG, Friday, June 24.—Equity Lodge No. 41, Knights of Pythias, Ellensburg, is convinced that gratitude is not a lost faculty. Twenty years ago members of the lodge befriended J. P. Jube, affiliated with a sister lodge in Oregon, when Jube fell and broke a leg while riding a bicycle from Roslyn to Ellensburg. Jube was given the best of care and treated kindly, and upon his departure was given a loan to smooth his path until his again was on his feet. A few years later the loan was paid back in full.

Nothing more was heard of Jube by the local lodge and members had entirely forgotten him. Yesterday notification was received by the lodge from a county clerk in Oregon stating that Jube had died two years ago and that a bequest of $200 left by him to the Ellensburg lodge had never been paid, but that it would be sent immediately.

SAN FRANCISCO, Friday, June 24.—The special reward of $200 for the capture of Roy Gardner and Morris Pyron authorized by Attorney-General Daugherty will be divided equally among the four persons responsible for the apprehension if they are willing. United States Marshal James B. Holman announced yesterday that the four are Louis Sonny, the Central City, Idaho, arrested Gardner; Mrs. Marion Howell, the hotel keeper who informed Sonny of her husband's whereabouts; W. A. Carroll, the Castle Rock boy who first found Pyron hiding in the grass, and W. A. Pratt, who forced Pyron to surrender.

The attorney-general's telegram authorized $100 for the capture of each man or information leading to his seizure. Holman said he had written to the four people suggesting that they accept $50 apiece.

It realizes that if this consignment of bottled liquor was poured into the streets as advocated by Editor Shew's, that it would require a number of days and would leave the fulfillment of the court's order open to charges that have been in the past frequently made under similar circumstances—that the liquor was destroyed in this manner for the reason that it would not be subjected to proof test and had been substituted for water or other ingredients impervious to fire.

men suspended last May 24 for lack of funds, back to work. Director McDonald is primed with information gathered during the lull in enforcement work as to violators of the federal liquor statutes, gathered by his inspectors Gordon B. O'Hara and Sylvester A. Moore. These inspectors remained at work, although only two of the 15 agents were retained for the last month. The federal director said he will concentrate his force in raids as soon as it is assembled. No preliminary investigation will have to be made for several weeks. Vacation for bootleggers and smugglers running liquor by automobile across the Canadian boundary line will be brought to a sudden halt.

"A diving rod" to detect whiskey caches was discovered yesterday with the arrest of W. B. Serfuss, 7041 Ell Ave. N. W., by Gordon B. O'Hara, federal prohibition officer. He claimed that he was not a whiskey trafficker, but that he found nine cases of Old Crow in caches along the beach by means of his "rod," declared Officer O'Hara. "If there is any truth in the ability of Serfuss to find cached whiskey by means of a diving rod, there is no doubt but that he would be a valuable employe of the government in the prohibition enforcement department."
