FATALITY STARTS QUIZ OF FIREARM SALES TO MINORS

Young Seagull Hunters Are Absolved in Man's Death, but Inquiry into Trade Is Suggested by Coroner.

An official investigation into the sale of firearms and ammunition to minors began yesterday as the result of the coroner's verdict returned yesterday in the death of Bert Renko, 52-year-old victim of boy shooters.

While the coroner's jury absolved the four boys, none of them yet in his teens, of intent to kill Renko, the jury recommended that "steps be taken to find out why minor children are allowed to purchase firearms and ammunition within the city limits."

Such an investigation already had been contemplated, Deputy Prosecutor William J. Wilkins, who attended the inquest conducted by Deputy Coroner Howard E. MacDonald, said, and the official inquiry was ordered immediately by Coroner William J. Jones and Prosecuting Attorney Ewing D. Colvin.

The four boys whose seagull-shooting escapade ended in the killing last Monday of their friend, "One-Eyed Charlie," all testified at the inquest yesterday. William Harrisberger, 12 years old, who fired the fatal shot, James Rankin, 11, and twin brothers, William and Charles McDermott, 12, who owned the rifle, "I didn't mean to hit him."

Frightened and white, the four, with their fathers, told their stories of the shooting, how they only wanted to "scare Charlie" and "I didn't have any intention of shooting Charlie. He was my friend," the Harrisberger boy sobbed. "I just shot at the chimney to scare him and I didn't know he was hit until he cried out."

William said he was forbidden by his father to buy cartridges. None of the parents knew of the shooting until the boys admitted, until detectives came to their homes.

The verdict of the coroner's jury was forwarded immediately to police, county and juvenile court officers.

LINDBERGH TELLS OF BRIGHT FUTURE IN AERIAL TRAVEL

Colonel Talks Informally of Improvements Certain to Take Place in Means of Plane Transportation.

LINDBERGH, the silent man of the air, yesterday talked for an hour on the only subject which will make him loquacious—aviation and its future.

Back from an inspection flight of the Pan-American Airways lines, during which he visited twenty-one countries in and around the Caribbean, Lindbergh's enthusiasm was what he exhibited informally, what he expects the air to bring in improved transportation, says the Associated Press.

With tousled hair, as he ran his hands through it while he talked, and with his customary scorn of a waistcoat, the airman told something of his conception of the airlines of tomorrow.

"In five years we will have planes—we have them—that simply won't land when you don't want them to," he said. "They just won't come down in forced landings."

Must Defeat Fog.

"We must be able to take off in fog in New York, for instance, and land in fog in Chicago, or any other mid-western city."

"They will come, there is not the slightest doubt in my mind as to that. Radio will help immensely."

The radio came in for warm praise from the colonel in his estimate of the development in progress and in prospect for air transportation.

"On our trip just ended we were in two way communication all the time," he recalled. "We used code, which is more readily available than voice, but voice, too, will be developed to the point of general and thorough satisfactory use. Traffic, of course, is more economical for it reduces the crew by one."

C. W. MYERS, flying a Great Lakes plane, today led the National Air tour in his hop from Des Moines to Cedar Rapids, Ia., said the Associated Press.

THE dirigible Graf Zeppelin landed at Friedrichshafen, Germany, shortly after 9 o'clock last evening, completing a flight of 48 1/2 hours over the Balkans, Austria and Silesia, said the Associated Press.

EXECUTIVES of four large air transport lines today reiterated denial of all knowledge of a prospective merger, and said a meeting in Kansas City would be held soon in an attempt to coordinate traffic.

Companies concerned in the coordination effort are the Universal Aviation Corporation, the Texas Air Transport, the Western Air Express, and the Standard Air Lines, said the Associated Press. The latter organization is owned by officials of the Western Air Express.

THE business of exporting airplanes to South American and Asiatic nations who are just now beginning to buy modern types is becoming an increasingly important one. Recent reports from the Commerce Department show the United States is obtaining a large part of this trade. This was corroborated by the announcement from the Ryan Aircraft Corporation that it has sold thirty Ryan biplanes in foreign countries in eighteen months.

A superiority of performance of American planes and their simplicity of construction which allows them to be piloted and serviced by comparatively inexperienced men, were advanced as reasons for the popularity of ships made in this country.

While some of the European manufacturers have placed emphasis on speed, American planes have been striven for ease of handling and a high safety factor, according to informed opinion in aeronautical circles.

A WESTBOUND Boeing airmail plane was destroyed by fire at Elm Creek, Neb., today. Pilot C. V. Pickup, by a quick landing, saved half the cargo of mail. He was not injured and the plane carried passengers, the Associated Press reports.

WASHINGTON, Friday, Oct. 18.—Inquiry by the House military committee of the War Department's interpretation and application of the National Defense Act and of the Army's five-year air expansion program will be sought by acting Chairman James of Michigan, when Congress convenes in December.

James pointed out that the aviation program was approved before Lindbergh and Chamberlin flew across the Atlantic and Matland and Heppenberger flew to Hawaii, and at a time when War Department experts said "we were on an air island; it would be impossible to fly across either ocean."

50TH YEAR OF LIGHT GLOBES CELEBRATED

Chamber Meeting Devoted to Observance of Edison's Discovery; Leonard Is Speaker.

Members of the Seattle Chamber of Commerce members' council celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of the discovery of the incandescent lamp by Thomas A. Edison, the luncheon program being devoted to this feature.

A. W. Leonard, president of the Puget Sound Power & Light Company, spoke on "Fifty Years of Light—What It Has Meant to Commerce and Progress." He reviewed the history of artificial light during that time and the development of illumination of cities, business houses and the homes and the effect lighting has had upon progress and development.

The Rt. Rev. S. Arthur Huston, Bishop of Olympia and father of Wilber B. Huston, protégé of Mr. Edison, talked on "The Genius of Edison."

Henry J. Gilles, general sales manager of the Puget Sound Power & Light Company, discussed "Light's Golden Jubilee."

The twenty-piece band of the power company furnished the instrumental music for the meeting and the girls' chorus of the company, fifteen voices sang "Edison Jubilee Song" written by George M. Cohan. Vocal numbers were given by Nell Duffly Holm, soprano, and Joseph Nebeider, tenor, member of the power company office force, and the Dore Sisters presented several musical offerings.

MAIL PILOT DRIVES FLAMING PLANE TO LANDING IN SAFETY

By United Press.

ELM CREEK, Neb., Friday, Oct. 18.—A flash of fire sped through the darkened sky near here today about dawn.

It was Pilot C. A. Bicup of the westbound express cutting through the skies literally like a meteor. His ship was ablaze and he was riding out the flames to a safe landing.

He steered the flaming plane through the air to a landing near here, saved seven sacks of mail and then watched what might have been his flying grand flaming coffin blow up. Part of the cargo went with it, but Bicup had stayed with his ship.

GIRL BREAKS UNDER GRILLING AT GRAVE

Admits Bullet-Torn Body Is That of Estwile Traveling Companion; Implicates Ship Officer.

By Associated Press.

NEW ORLEANS, Friday, Oct. 18.—Before an open grave on the shores of the Mississippi, Ione Ord, sophisticated city girl, gasped, swooned and finally admitted yesterday that a bullet-torn body was that of Jack Kraft, New York newspaper man and adventurer, with whom she had started out to see the world.

A small tattoo of an Indian head on the forearm furnished the identification along with a scar on a knee, which George Kraft, older brother of Jack, who had come from New York, said established the identity beyond any doubt.

The girl swooned a half dozen times and attempted to fight her way free once.

The scene was on the banks of the Mississippi, fifty-five miles below New Orleans and one mile below the spot where her traveling companion's body went hurtling from the Creole, New York-New Orleans boat.

She said neither she nor Sam Epstein, ship's steward, had shot Kraft, but would not swear that John McGouldrick, second officer, had not shot him. She declared she did not know who had shot him.

She said both McGouldrick and Epstein had come to her assistance when Kraft was beating her in a jealous rage. She declared she had seen Kraft leap overboard. She could not explain the coroner's verdict that Kraft was dead before he hit the water.
