

HAMBURG BEER WILL ARRIVE IN SEATTLE MAY 11

Seattle will get its first taste of real German beer—specially brewed to meet American alcoholic contents regulations—next month.

The motorship Oakland of the Hamburg-American Line will discharge 800 cases and 300 kegs of draft beer from Hamburg breweries May 11.

In the middle of June the steamship Schwaben of the North German Lloyd fleet will discharge 4,000 cases of Pilsener which was loaded at Bremen.

Johnson Line agents deny rumors Swedish beer is en route here. In answer to Sheriff Claude G. Bannick's declaration he would not arrest anyone for selling 3.2 beer without a county license, Commissioner J. C. Stevenson said yesterday that constable commissions will be given the county's two beer license inspectors, empowering them to make arrests.

The inspectors are E. J. Miller, state representative, in the North District, and Harry Katz in the South District. Katz, however, has submitted his resignation, effective May 1.

Stevenson said the board will hear protests at its meeting tomorrow against its rule restricting the number of beer stores in the county to twelve. Applications for licenses for several times that many have been received. A commissioners' resolution permits sale only of bottled beer in such stores, to be consumed at least 1,000 feet distant.

'Get Rid of Those Fowls,' Park Zoo Director Is Told

Dr. Gus Knudson, director of the Woodland Park Zoo, has a new assignment. He has been made the Park Board's chief dickering in disposing of a varied assortment of aristocratic ducks and geese, tame, Japanese silky fowl and other feathery headliners.

If the park executives had given Dr. Knudson that assignment in the first place, George W. Roberge, secretary of the Board of Public Works, would be a happier man today; at least a 3.2 per cent rating with his own family.

But the park commissioners recently had another idea. They asked William A. Gaines, city purchasing agent and superintendent of the city building department, to call for competitive bids on the surplus birds. The experiment was not a success. The bids were rejected by the board as too low. Then, Dr. Knudson was directed to sell the birds at the best prices he could get at private sales. The virus of the rivalry got into Secretary Roberge's veins. He doubted the offer of an "outside" bidder on a buff Cochon bantam rooster and hen. He got more trouble than if he had trumped his partner's ace.

Soon there were murmurings around the Roberge neighborhood about the new voice in the community—particularly disturbing at the first peep o' dawn.

Roberge is a sound sleeper; a former sheet metal worker to boot. He was dubious about the complaints until he was roused out of deep slumber by Mrs. Roberge's prying elbow early the other morning. "George, George! Will you just listen to that?" the distressed wife demanded. It was the bantam rooster, with voice pitched to the shriek of a faulty brake band, "eek-eek-zrooing" his salutation to the rising sun. Yesterday Mr. Roberge, convinced and abashed, was trying to swap his buff Cochon pets to "Doc" Knudson for three midget minorca bantam hens on the Zoo's "for sale" list; provided the hens were guaranteed not to crow.

5 Japanese Will Talk On Citizenship

Five young Japanese-American speakers from Seattle high schools will compete in an oratorical contest on "Good Citizenship" at the Japanese St. Peter's Mission, 16th Avenue South and King Street, at 8 o'clock Friday evening.

They will vie for the honor of representing Seattle in a Northwest meet at Portland next Labor Day, at which a regional champion will be chosen to compete in a national contest in San Francisco the summer of 1934.

The contests are sponsored by the National Japanese-American Citizens League, formed here several years ago to inculcate the precepts and responsibilities of American citizenship in American-born Japanese.

Attorney Clarence Arai, an organizer and a leader in the league, will preside at the Friday night contest. Miss Sada Seki, Takeo Nagaki, Saburo Nishimura and Jiro Aoki are assisting him.

The speakers will be Ayako Yamashita and Sayo Tanagi, Roosevelt High School; Frank Yoshitaki, Garfield; George Hisayasu, Cleveland, and Kikue Asano of Broadway.

The judges will be Robert H. Harlin, L. A. Williams and Judge Austin E. Griffiths. There will be similar contest at Puyallup, Auburn, Yakima and Portland.

Crop Shortage Puts Price of Almonds Up

SAN FRANCISCO, Saturday, April 22.—Shortage of the foreign and domestic 1933 crop, coupled with the general tendency of commodity markets to advance, has strengthened the almond market during the past week, according to a report of the California Almond Growers Exchange.

Twenty carloads of California shelled almonds have been contracted by eastern candy firms for shipment between now and the 1933 harvest and growers with almonds on hand undoubtedly will receive higher prices for their product. T. C. Tucker, manager of the exchange, said.

Socialists to Meet "Waste in Capitalist Production"

King County's Best Orator

Jim Hunter

King County's champion orator was the title bestowed on Jim Hunter, Bothell High School orator, at the recent county declamatory contest at Renton. The title of his winning oration was "The American Flag." Betty Hall of Auburn took second place in the competition in which twenty schools were represented. Hunter's success was the second county laurel in public speaking to be captured by the Bothell school, its debate team having won the county debate championship a few weeks ago. Gordon Smith is head of the school's oratory and debate activities.

WIFE COMFORTS SENTENCED MAN

While his wife stood at his side and comforted him, Walter Calhoun, 29 years old, was sentenced yesterday by Superior Judge Clay Allen to serve from eighteen months to five years in state prison for conviction on an assault charge, growing out of an attack on an Auburn girl last March 12. After hearing the sentence, Calhoun told the court he was innocent. He was convicted by a jury.

Fuel Dealers Of Inland Empire Elect Officers

By United Press.

YAKIMA, Saturday, April 22.—Election of officers of the Inland Empire Retail Fuel Dealers Association was completed today when Rees Bungay of Spokane was elected president and H. Whitman of Wenatchee elected first vice president.

Other elections were Louis Eifer of Walla Walla, named second vice president and William Ramage of Spokane treasurer. The most important resolution agreed upon was a proposed petition to railroad on the revision of fuel freight rates to the level of 1916.

Girl Falls From Window Trying To Escape Raid

Seeking to escape Prosecutor Robert M. Burgunder's county vice squad last night, Jean Day, 25 years old, was injured when a bed sheet, with which she was lowering herself out of a window, tore loose from the bed to which it was tied. She fell twenty feet and was taken to the county jail infirmary. Twelve girls were jailed.

Hundreds at Lynden For 'Daffodil Day'

LYNDEN, Saturday, April 22.—This community, center of Whatcom County's bulb-raising industry was entertaining hundreds of visitors today at its second annual "daffodil day" celebration. Acres of golden colored blossoms, in full bloom, were being visited as was the big flower show, a feature of the celebration. Another feature of the festival was the juvenile parade.

Deputy Arrests Man After 2-Year Chase

FORT WORTH, Tex., Saturday, April 22.—It took nearly two years of traveling through West Texas cattle towns and East Texas oil fields, but Deputy Sheriff Ed Galloway finally got his man. Seven officers surrounded a farm house near here, closed in and arrested Glenn Williamson, 48. He was charged with theft of five cows in April, 1931.

Blacksmith Also Artist

ARLINGTON, Wis., Saturday, April 22.—A blacksmith with the delicate hands of an artist is Alexander Jargo, 58 years old, who each Sunday deserts his forge and anvil for an easel. He has been painting for twenty-eight years and although he has had no instruction in art, critics have found feeling, life, imagination and color in his pictures.

Deserter Tries Suicide

COLON, Panama, Saturday, April 22.—Horvan Segerson, 22 years old, of Reagan, Tenn., who deserted from the United States Army at Fort Sherman three weeks ago, attempted to commit suicide today by slashing himself over the heart with a razor blade when his sweetheart insisted that he surrender. Physicians said he would recover.

ELMER THUNE OF TACOMA HEADS SCHOOL MASTERS

Elmer Thune, Tacoma teacher, was elected president of the Puget Sound School Masters Club, which closed its spring meeting yesterday at the University of Washington. Following a fifty-year-old custom of alternating visiting Seattle and Tacoma, the fall meeting will be held in the latter city. The retiring president is Prof. Willis L. Uhl of the department of education at the University. The club is open to all men teachers in the Puget Sound district.

S. E. Fleming, assistant superintendent of Seattle schools, presided at the roundtable conference on curriculum, school economies, student guidance and instruction.

Among the conclusions reported to the general assembly were the following:

1. Economics in current school expenses should be effected in a manner least likely to damage the public school educational system.

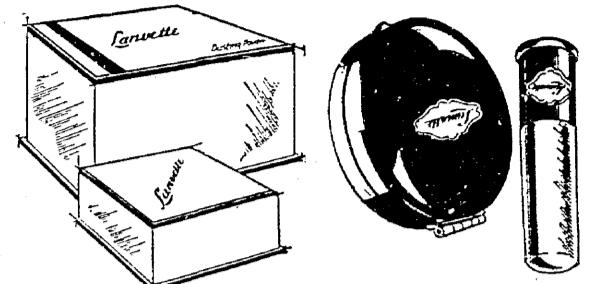

2. The influx of students to the high schools is one of the results of mechanized industry and must be regarded as a permanent condition. The secondary schools must adopt a program which recognizes the fact that high school attendance will constantly increase.

The resolutions committee sounded a warning against increasing the "teacher load" or adding to the number of pupils for each instructor as a measure of school economy. There is a point, the educators asserted, beyond which school economies cannot go without destroying the value of instruction.

Blazing Rum on Thames
LONDON, Saturday, April 22.—Thousands of gallons of rum blazed in the Thames River today. It came from the West India rum docks, completely destroyed during the night in London's most spectacular fire in years. Damage was estimated at $15,400,000. Firemen estimated the fire would burn for three days.
