MAUDE ADAMS THE HEALTH BILLS ARE ONLY "BABBIE"

Sweetest and Best Representative of Barrie's Dainty Scotch Heroine.

Gives Large Audience at the Grand Many Charming Surprises.

No more sweet, blithesome play has ever been given in Seattle than "The Little Minister," and surely no more dainty and winsome woman ever charmed a Seattle audience than Maude Adams. The play has been seen here before, several times, with the part of Babble in capable hands, and with support almost, if not quite, as good as that which appeared at the Grand last night—but not with Maude Adams. And not to have seen Maude Adams as Babble is to have missed, by a long way, the opportunity for the highest and most heartfelt appreciation of Barries little Scotch idyl.

Perhaps not more than a tenth part

Scotch idyl.

Perhaps not more than a tenth part of last night's audience had not seen and enjoyed "The Little Minister" before. Between acts one could distinguish amid the buzz of conversation all around the outlines of the scenes yet to come. Even those who had not seen the play had read the story and pleasurably anticipated the happy denouement.

read the story and pleasurably anticipated the happy denouement.

Many Surprises.

But with every entrance of the Babbie of last night came a series of delightful surprises, unexpected movements, quaint gestures, swift transitions from galety to tenderness, and the thousand little artifices so fitting to the part by which Miss Adams has placed it beyond hope of imitation. All else is lost to sight and hearing whith she is on the stage in watching and listening for what she will do and say next.

The "Gayin Dishart" of Henry Ain ley seems a little too impressionable. Youth of course, is the excuse for this; but while the witchery of Babble is irresistible, one might expect, as a result of strict Scotch Presbyterian training resistance a little more prolonged. From the moment of their first meeting Mr. Ainley proclaims the little preacher's susceptibility. He is a good-looking fellow, and undoubtedly realizes that he looks better when smiling than when stern. Of course he must yield but the proprieties argue against yielding so soon.

Has Good Support.

The parts of Nannie Webster by Mrs.

W. G. Jones and of the four elders by G. Harrison Hunter, John H. Bunny, Richard Pitman and William Henderson were exceptionally well done and well fitted into every scene of the play in which they participated. Rob Dow is a wild and untamable spirit, but Joseph Francocur makes him incline somewhat too much to noise and savagery. The dialect of all these, modified from the original for stage purposes, carried just enough of twang and idlom to demand close attention.

The one inharmonious feature of the production is the music, which runs without ceasing, through and between the acts. It is the music written for the original production, if memory serves, by William Feurst, and used by Miss Adams and all others who have given the play ever since.

Why and What Por?

Why and What For?

Why and What For?

How composer, player or manager can conceive that this music enhances the pleasure of the production or even blends with the spirit of the play is incomprehability. The waits are made tedious to the point of intolerance by the dolorous strains gone over and over again in seemingly endless iteration and the constant orchestral drooling during the acts is unrelieved by a single bright tone, unless one may except the evergrecurring theme, cribbed from anyold melody that marks each movement of the ladys Balbara.

The absurdity of it all is topped off at the close of the last act when the staid elders and members of the congregation striving to peep through the window and door of the manse at the happiness within, are made to prance and caper to a specially prepared dose in which the pianist runs the back of his thumb down the keyboard. One unconsciously waits for the clatter of the slapsticks, a funny fall and a clout on the big drum.

Contrary to custom no matince is given at the Grand this afternoon. "The Little Minister" will be given tonight for the last time.

BOYS ARE WELL MATCHED

New Aspirants for Boxing Honors Will Appear at Ranke Hall Tuesday Night.

Several of the bouts scheduled for the Phoenix Club amateur boxing show on Tuesday evening at Ranke Hall ought to prove hot ones. The main event will bring together a pair of fast big fellows who are more than anxious to get together and settle the question in the heavyweight class. McCarthy won hands down at the last tourney, but it together and settle the question in the heavyweight class. McCarthy won hands down at the last tourney, but it is pretty safe betting big Jack won't ave it all his own way with the huge soldier he will meet in this event.

Ton Morgan the Georgetown blacksmith, is booked this time with Frank Carstene, the boy that caused York Gleason to worry a lot in the last bout they had at the Athenian Club. Carstene is a strong, willing fellow that ought to put a fine go against Morgan. Chick Hudson and Tommy Fitzgeral are another pair sure to give a good account of themselves. Fitz made quite a fit at the last tourney by the way he laid it on Dougherty, but Chick is there with the goods and his many friends say he will make Fitzgerald think there are other amateurs outside of the Frisco bunch.

The bout between Tommy Kane and George Brown is sure to be a red-hot one. This boy Kane shows up splendidly in the tryouts and if Brown will oaly get an extra spurt on during the bout he will not only shine brighter in the estimation of his friends, but he will come pretty near landing the 128-pounds class.

Mike Maher and Bully Burns are two new entries in the bantam class who will be seen in the curtain raiser. Maher was to have made his debut at the last show and will be on hand this time without fail.

Al Pemberthy, the long, shifty lightweight from Kent, will meet Tommy Dolan, the firemen's particular choice. Pemberthy can come along faster than the Black Diamond Express when he gets started and a good many predict him a coming champion. He has had things very easy at the last two tourneys he has mixed in and the bout with form in fast company.

Charter Does Not Permit City Paying for Care of Indigent Sick.

Seattle's Treasury Has Saved King County Many Thousands of Dollars.

Every bill for the care of the indigent sick, other than emergency cases, which the city has paid in the past four years has been without authority. For all this time Seattle's treasury has stood for the county's indebtedness and lightened the showing of the county's expense several thousands of dollars.

The city charter makes no provision for the payment of this class of bills, and while, in the beginning, the auditing committee was willing to care for a share of the expense while it was light, the amounts each month have now become so large that the attention of the city council has been called to the charter.

All Bills Illegal.

All Bills Illegal. All Bills Illegal.

Every bill which the city has paid for this class of persons has been illegal, and payments might have been enjoined by any citizen. The whole responsibility of the burden of this expense rests with King County, and arrangements are now being made to have the commissioners take care of it.

It is the hope of the members of the auditing committee and Mayor Ballinger that this settlement will take place before the meeting of the advisory board on Monday afternoon, when a reorganization of the health department will be taken up.

Bills Held Up.

The commistee is still holding up bills amounting to several hundred dollars, contracted by the health department against the city in violation of the charter. The defense of the health department officials is that the applicants were sick and needed immediate attention, and the county would not receive them. The 'commissioners' have not yet explained their side of the controversy, but it is hoped they will before Monday after the control of the contro afternion.

Mayor Ballinger agrees with the members of the board of health that the sick without means must be cared for, but he is not willing that the city should foot the bills when it is a violation of the charter to do so.

Will Hold Conference.

The mayor, some time before the meeting of the advisory board, will hold a conference with Prosecuting Attorney Scott, and see if he cannot assist in some arrangement with the commissioners. It is, probable that Mr. Scott and the county commissioners will be present at the meeting of the board, or at least they will be invited.

Once the question of caring for the indigent sick is settled, the board will take up the plans of reorganization of the health board under a responsible head, who will be paid for devoting his entire time and attention to the conduct of the matters connected with the health department in every form. Will Hold Conference.

MORE CARRIERS FOR SEATTLE

Local Postoffice Is Allowed Six Additional Men by Washington Authorities.

A telegram reached the local postoffice last night announcing that six more carriers would be allowed here after July Postmaster Stewart has been working for this addition to the force for some time, and he had almost given up hope of ever getting it with the postmaster. The addition to the force will allow better, service to be given to the wholesale district, which for some time has been inadequately served, and also to districts lying out near Lake Washington, which up to this time have not been supplied with carriers at all.

ROBBED BY A FRIEND >

The police are looking for an ingrate who robbed a man who gave him shelter. John Svalien, a Polish laborer, was approached on the street last night by a man who told a hard luck story. He said he had no place to sleep and Svalien took him to his own room at 314 First Avenue South.

Some time during the night the stranger slipped from the room but he did not go until he had taken a $20 gold piece from Svalien's pockets. Svalien discovered the loss this morning and reported it to the police.

ORE COMES FROM JAPANESE WOMEN

Immigration Inspectors Detain Four on the Kanagawa Awaiting Inspection.

Three Japanese women will be deported to Japan by local United States immigration officers unless their prospective husbands reach Seattle from California the coming week. One woman claims to be engaged to a man in Los Angeles; another says her husband is a business man at Sacramento, and the third declares she is to be married upon her arrival at Alameda.

The inspectors procured the names of the three men and wired them at their respective cities. If they come to Seattle and satisfy the officers that they do not intend to violate the immigration laws by importing Japanese women, they will be permitted to take their wives off the Kanagawa Maru.

Altogether the immigration inspectors have held up four women passengers on the Kanagawa. The fourth has acted in a suspicious manner and the inspectors believe she has come over on the Kanagawa to meet Japanese of unsavory reputation. Her case is under investigation, and a board of special inquiry, will be leidd to determine whether she shall be permitted to remain In this country.

CHILE PREPARES HER BUDGET. Proposed Appropriations Amount to More Than $4,500,000.

More Than $4,500,000.

NEW YORK, Saturday, June 25.—The budget for 1905 contains appropriations of $4,680,900 for the extension of the foreign, debt, says a Herald dispatch from Valparaiso, Chile.

The President has asked Congress to postpone the laws for the redemption of paper currency until July, 1907, and to provide for the omission after that date of $9,000,000 paper, guranteed by a largely increased gold reserve.

The conversion was to have been carried out next January, but the postponement is asked for by the President because of the unpreparedness of the country and because a certain amount of the conversion fund was used for urgent expenses when the country was in grave danger of war.

General approval is given to the President's action.
