

BENNY ESCAPES IN YACHT FIRE

Two men and three youths were saved from drowning in Puget sound near Port Blakely last night after a double boat mishap, and Jack Benny, radio and screen comedian, and a party of ten Seattle relatives and friends escaped death when their yacht Nokomis caught fire and was destroyed in Hood Canal.

Survivors in the near tragedy in the sound, rescued after clinging more than two hours to their capsize rowboat, are Harry Rude, 46-year-old carpenter, 842 Rose St., Seattle, and his nephew, Billy Green, 13, of Camp Walker, near Port Ludlow; Rocky Nelly, 19, Olympia automobile mechanic; his son, LeRoy Nelly, 9, and Don Trale, also 13 and of Camp Walker, a companion of Green.

Rescued by Steamer
Capt. George J. Ryan, 5702 Admiral Way, commanding the steamboat Mohawk of the Puget Sound Freight Lines, picked up the five when they were almost exhausted. The crew of the Mohawk, bound for Bellingham from Seattle, heard a cry of distress from the party for help had failed to attract a passing boat a half hour before.

The five started out yesterday afternoon in the small fishing tug Cumtux, owned by the Port Ludlow Mill Company, which ran aground at 8:30 o'clock, less than three miles from Port Blakely. Fearing the youths' relatives would worry about them, Rude and Nelly and the three boys set out in a small skiff which capsized in the rough water and heavy tide. They clung to the moored boat until picked up by the Mohawk.

Nelly clung to his son, who is unable to swim, and Rude hung on to Trale, also not a swimmer. All five were recovering in a Port Ludlow residence today.

Eleven Injured
Benny and ten others escaped without injury when the Nokomis was destroyed by fire which started in the engine room, the Coast Guard reported today. The party were Arthur Sereth and Louis Wagner of the Camlin Hotel, 1619 Ninth Ave., owners of the yacht.

The near tragedy occurred when the fifty-one-foot Nokomis was at anchor in Hood Canal near Lofall, on the east side of the canal, opposite Port Gamble. The yacht was beached and members of the party leaped safely to shore, several getting wet to the knees.

The radio and screen comedian telephoned the Coast Guard, which dispatched the cutter Atalanta and Patrol Boat 270 from Everett to the scene, guided by a huge signal fire the party built on the beach near the burned boat. Survivors boarded the Atalanta at 11 o'clock, five hours after the fire broke out.

Wife Telephoned
Mrs. Benny (Mary Livingston) telephoned the Coast Guard when she heard in Los Angeles that "the boat had blown up." She was assured everyone was safe.

Two girls and two youths were saved from drowning in Union Bay yesterday afternoon when their borrowed twelve-foot sailboat overturned and pitched them into the water. John Bracken, 15 years old, 2365 Eastlake Ave., John King, 18, of 216 E. Boston St., borrowed the sailboat from a friend and asked Eileen Gury and Doris Richardson, both 15, of 2329 Eastlake Ave., to go for a ride.

The small boat tipped over when a squall filled the mainsail. Miss Richardson had sunk beneath the surface of the water when J. B. Babcock, contractor, of 3314 1/2 Furman Ave., and a friend, Arnold Nelson, visiting him from Los Angeles, appeared in a cabin cruiser and pulled all four, exhausted, from the water.

It tells of Erwin Trowbridge, a pathetic genius with a passion for writing verses for greeting cards, and a sort of a mystic flair for picking race winners which he calls mental betting. He gets a salary for the verses, bets with money for fun, puzzles his wife, bamboozles his brother-in-law and in the basement barroom of a cheap hotel begins to flabbergast a clique of racetrack touts who try to capitalize on his knack for picking horses."

"Bonnie Scotland," heading the current double feature program at the Paramount, is rated the funniest and most ambitious of the feature-length comedies co-starring Stan Laurel and Oliver Hardy.

With a wee bit of delightful romance and heaps of good old-fashioned attraction for the lady, the two famous funsters together again after a brief separation which, for a while, threatened to end disastrously for their legion of fans throughout the world.

With Scotland and India as the background for most of the action—of which there is plenty—the story advances through seven reels of almost continuous laughs, punctuated occasionally by a smile or a sigh. For there is a thread of pretty romance in this sparkling presentation of love story interpreted by June Lang and William Janney, two screen youngsters of unusual promise.

A great laboratory on a hilltop, filled with advanced electrical appliances, is the scene of their labors, and it is here that success crowns their efforts. The accompanying stage program features a girl revue.

JOE E. BROWN ON ORPHEUM SCREEN

Joe E. Brown, star of First National's new comedy with music, "Bright Lights," which is showing at John Hamrick's Orpheum, not only played the stellar role but acted as a dialogue director in the production.

A score of complete speeches from the wording of the manuscript of the screen play were made at the star's suggestion. These embrace not only his own speeches, but those of Patricia Ellis, Ann Dvorak and William Gargan.

"Joe has an instinctive feeling for laugh lines and for lift and tempo," said Berkeley. "As a consequence we rewrote the dialogue on the set during production whenever it seemed to require a build-up."

MURPHY AGAIN DANCES IN FILM

When George Murphy, star of the musical stage and the screen, plays eight games of handball, eighteen holes of golf and three sets of tennis in one day, he is combining business and pleasure. For dancing demands a supple, healthy body, and dancing is what Murphy has been drawing pay checks for for years.

In his three previous pictures, George was not permitted to dance, but in Columbia's novel musical picture, "After the Dance," showing on a double bill at the Liberty Theatre, he once more reverts to the feet that made him famous.

Four days of rehearsing were necessary before the routines, enacted against a background of Albertina Rasch girls, were ready for the camera. Nancy Carroll, who is co-starred with Murphy and is seen as his dancing partner in the film, found the days strenuous but not exhausting, for she has also discovered the importance of keeping physically fit.

WILL ROGERS IN COLORFUL FILM

Fox Film has again brought together the star, authors, producer and director of Rogers' hit, "Judge Priest," to produce another rousing story of the Southland for the new Will Rogers picture, "Steamboat Round the Bend," which is now on the 5th Avenue Theatre screen in its Northwest premiere.

"Steamboat Round the Bend," adapted from Ben Lucien Burman's novel, is a drama-filled, down-to-earth story of life along the Mississippi in the roaring 1880s, the most colorful period in the great river's history.

The picture is the story of a couple of stammbating rivals, Will Rogers and Irvin Cobb, their hilarious rivalry and their great race which brings the story to its spectacular climax.

Most of the humor and drama of "Steamboat Round the Bend" arises from Will Rogers' efforts to get right the lives of a pair of youngsters who are in love. The lovers are played by Anne Shirley and John McGuire. Stepin Fetchit, the sepio, slow-motion star, Eugene Pallette and Bertion Churchill are prominent in the supporting cast of "Steamboat Round the Bend."

There are two attractive short subjects on this bill. One of them is a new Pete Smith oddity, "Prince, King of Dogs." The other is a Colored Classic cartoon, "Poor Little Me."
