

PROCACCIO TRIAL OFF UNTIL FALL

The first-degree assault case against Tony Procaccio, 50-year-old gardener, will not be tried in Superior Court until fall, it was disclosed today.

Presiding Judge James T. Lawler late yesterday granted Defense Counsel Adolf D. Koch's motion for a continuance after the state entered no objection. Koch said the motion was made so that friends of Procaccio could have more time in which to raise funds to pay expenses of expert witnesses which Koch said he would call at the trial.

Procaccio is accused of shooting Police Sgt. Herbert D. Bakenhus March 5, as Bakenhus sought to protect Della McCoy, a domestic, from Procaccio.

City Declines To Decorate For Fourth of July

The city government will not assist in providing funds for decorating the streets for the Fourth of July and Fleet Week, the City Council decided late yesterday.

The Council considered a request from the Fourth of July committee of Seattle Post No. 1, American Legion, and from the Fleet Week committee of the Seattle Chamber of Commerce, asking city aid for the street decorations.

Council members pointed out that the state attorney-general has ruled that appropriation of city funds for this purpose is illegal.

The Council voted to direct Building Supt. H. C. Ritzman and the City Light Department to decorate city buildings for the summer celebrations where this can be done without expense.

TRAIN INJURES SLEEPING MAN

Sleeping beside railroad tracks last night cost Charles Magnus, 55 years old, one of his hands. A Northern Pacific switch engine crew failed to see the sleeping man in time to stop the locomotive.

The accident was near East Marginal Way between Charles and Connecticut Streets. Magnus was taken to Harborview County Hospital. His condition today was serious.

CITY AUTO TEST EXTENSION FAILS

Efforts to amend the city automobile testing ordinance, to include tests of automobiles by residents of King County outside of Seattle, were defeated yesterday by a vote of five to four in the City Council.

Mrs. F. F. Powell and Councilmen Frederick G. Hamley, W. L. Norton and Arthur B. Langille voted to support the measure, but it was postponed indefinitely by the other five votes in the Council.

Chinese in Jail On Charge Of Dope Smuggling

Yee Dung Jung, 42-year-old Chinese, was held in the King County jail today in lieu of $10,000 bond after arraignment late yesterday before United States Commissioner H. S. Elliott on two counts of attempting to smuggle $15,000 worth of illicit opium into Seattle last Saturday.

Yee's final hearing on the charges will be held Thursday. Yee was arrested when he claimed his baggage at the Lenora Street Dock after a trip by boat from Victoria, B. C. Customs agents said they found the opium concealed in the false bottom of a camphor chest. Two other Chinese are held as coconspirators with Yee.

Council Votes Four Resurfacing Jobs

Four street resurfacing projects were adopted late yesterday by the City Council. They included repair of brick pavement in Dearborn Street from Airport Way to Rainier Avenue; repair of asphalt in Westlake Avenue from Hamlin to Martin Streets; repair of pavement in Westlake Avenue from Fourth Avenue and Pike Street to Virginia Street, and resurfacing in Eastlake Avenue from Boston to Hamlin Streets.

Maj. Gen. Frederick W. Boschen, United States Army chief of finance, was a Seattle visitor today, inspecting Army finance activities administered by Capt. H. F. Christian, local Army finance officer.

General Boschen, who was wounded in service in France, became chief of the allotments branch of the War Department upon his return. As chief of finance, he is in charge of disbursement of all War Department funds, including money for the Civilian Conservation Corps.

Clerk Asked For Traffic Division

Police Chief William H. Sears asked the City Council today for an additional clerk in the Police Traffic Division to help take care of additional work necessitated by the new state law requiring new blanks for automobile accident reports.

Sears said the new blanks contain 264 blank spaces to be filled in by clerks instead of thirty-four which formerly were filled out by the drivers themselves.

Ordinances Provide For New Equipment

Expenditures for new equipment and added personnel were provided for three city departments in ordinances introduced in the City Council late yesterday.

Bills provided appropriations of $10,000 for automobiles for the Police Department; $3,500 for automobiles and mowing equipment for the Park Department, and money for an additional battalion chief for the Fire Department at $240 a month.
