CINCINNATI, Thursday, Oct. 30. -(A)-The Most Rev. John T. Mc-Nicholas, writing to priests and laity of his Catholic arch diocese. said today the late Pope Pius XI.'s denunciation of communism "was not given as a moral direction to governments regarding aid or re-fusal of aid to Russia in case of a war of defense. The same must be said regarding diplomatic re-lations with Russia."

After quoting from the Pope's encyclical on atheistic communism, the archbishop declared:

"If we keep in mind the clear "If we keep in mind the clear distinction that Pope Pius made between the system of atheistic communism, which he condemned, and the Russian people, whom he loved, we shall be able to rid ourselves of much perplexity regarding the Russian question. The saintly Pope made the same distinction between the system of Naziism and the German people. The archbishop said that "our country is rightly concerned not only about the total war of many nations but also about the total loss of freedom under two systems that seek world dominance—Na-ziism and Sovietism. "We are horrified at the religious persecution and at the brutal murder of unnumbered persons because they would not give up their personal, their family, and their re-ligious freedom," the archbishop added. "The disease that will spread from war zones and from the starving people of occupied countries will become in all probability a world epidemic, taking a greater toll of lives than the war "In the interest of souls, of truth, and of the unity of our people, we wish to give an objective interpretation which we base on a study of the document, atheistic communism, and of the mind of t munism, and of the mind of the late Pontiff. It is necessary that we again recall that Pope Pius XI. kept clearly before his mind the distinction between the system of sovietism and the Russian people."

Pointing out that the Holy Father condemned, without qualiff-cation, atheistic communism, Archbishop McNicholas commented:

The questioning, conducted over the objections of United States Attorney Mathias Correa, was permitted by the court after a long conference.
