

Japanese Alaskan Arrested by U. S.

KETCHIKAN, Alaska, Friday, Dec. 12.—(Passed by censor)—Authorities today held a prominent Japanese business man of Ketchikan, said to be a reserve officer in the Japanese army and a relative of a Japanese general.

Officers refused to comment on the arrest. It was understood they had no direct evidence that the Japanese was un-American. He was among Japanese residents who pledged their support to the United States this week.
