Endorses Pe-na for the Climatic Diseases of Hot Weather.

The Dangers Attending Summer Colds—How to Avoid Them.

THE most dangerous cold of the whole year is that cold caught during the summer months. The night may start in hot. A person goes to sleep without any covers. Before morning the weather turns cold. A severe cold is caught in this way. There are a thousand other ways in which a cold can be caught during the summer time besides exposure during sleep.

Neglected Colds Become Tenacious
Perhaps the victim pays no attention to it. The cold becomes settled. Such a cold is more apt to affect the lungs or kidneys than colds caught during the winter months.

Depressing Effect of Hot Weather
The depressing influence of summer weather, together with the cold, results in greater depression than when the system is invigorated by the cold, bracing weather of winter.

Therefore it is a recognized fact by many physicians that a summer cold is by far the most dangerous.

The Remedy That Cures
The moral of this is that at the slightest appearance of a cold in summer, Peruna should be taken.

There should be no "let up" in the use of Peruna until the cold has entirely disappeared.

Learn by Experience of Others
A great many people have discovered this fact through the expensive school of experience.

It is much better to be forewarned upon this subject.

Baron Vandenheim's Interesting Testimonial
Baron J. M. Vandenheim, 1225 G Street N. W., Washington, D. C., writes: "For a long time, until I came into this climate, I had congratulated myself upon having a perfectly sound pair of lungs."

"But I began to have little coughs and annoying colds that shook my faith in my breathing apparatus."
"This continued until I had lost health and strength to an alarming degree."

"Peruna cured me and restored my strength."

"You are at liberty to use my heartiest endorsement of Peruna as a medicine and tonic for colds, coughs and as a tonic."

The Cause of Consumption Often a Common Cold

Nine cases of consumption out of ten occur in this way:
People catch cold. The cold is not properly cured, and they quickly catch

PRINCE JONAH KALANIANA'OLE

Prince Jonah Kalaniana'ole, Delegate in Congress from Hawaii, in a recent letter to The Peruna Drug Mfg. Co., says: "I can cheerfully recommend your Peruna as a very effective remedy for coughs, colds and catarrhal troubles."

PRINCE JONAH KALANIANA'OLE.

another one. This cold is dilly-dallied with by no treatment, or some treatment that is ineffectual and the cold continues.

Then they catch another cold and begin to cough. Then they take cough syrups which do no good.

By and by they get tired of taking medicine and give up in despair. Their cold continues; and their cough grows worse.

When they apply to a doctor, only to find that they are in the first stages of consumption.

At any time during the progress of the catarrh, from the first onset of the cold to its final settlement in the lungs, Peruna can be relied upon to check the progress of the catarrh.

Sometimes after a diagnosis of consumption has been made by competent physicians, Peruna has permanently cured.

We have testimonials from many people who have been given up to die of consumption, who claim to have been cured by Peruna.

We do not recommend Peruna as a consumption cure, but we do claim that it will prevent consumption if taken before the disease is thoroughly established.

Per-ri-ri Cannot Be Imitated

Some things may be successfully imitated, but Peruna cannot be. Everyone purchasing Peruna should look out for imitations. Examine each package carefully. If you have ever used Peruna, or if you have ever tasted it, you are not in the slightest danger of being misled by these imitations, but all those beginning the use of Peruna should beware.

KEEP JAPS OUT IS THEIR SLOGAN

Mongolian Exclusion Society of This City, Will Try to Stop Oriental Immigration in Interest of White Labor.

Formed for Purpose of Fighting So-Called Yellow Peril, Society Appeals to Press of the United States.

"Exclude all Japs and Chinese from the United States."
This is the slogan of a newly formed organization of this city. It is called the Mongolian Exclusion Society and its members seem to have little use for the little brown men who come to America from the Far East to make their money.

A. E. Fowler of 2719 Elmwood Place is the secretary of the society. He is also secretary of the Federal Labor Union. In the Mongolian society are many labor union men, and the aim to make the movement a national one.

A day or so ago The Times received three printed postal cards in the same mail signed by different people making an urgent plea for national support of the society. They are headed in large letters, "To the Press of the United States," and their contents follow:

"This circular is part of the propaganda of the Mongolian Exclusion Society, and is a request from the undersigned, a member of the Chinese Exclusion League, that the influence of your publication be cast on the side of American citizenship and rights, and in opposition to the immigration of Chinese, Japanese, Korean, and other branches of the Mongolian race for the purpose of displacing white labor."

"Hawaii is already 90 per cent Oriental. White labor has been driven out of the islands. Millions of Japanese contract coolies are arriving in the United States ports. United action for their exclusion is imperative."

"Forty-five per cent of all the immigrants to the State of Washington in 1904 were Japanese."

"While Seattle was doing her best to show honor to Baron Kormun and other distinguished members of the Japanese peace legation a reporter of The Times journeyed out to 2719 Elmwood Place in order to get from Mr. Fowler the right idea of why the Mongolian Exclusion Society yearned so much to keep Oriental immigration out of the United States, and how they intended to do it. Elmwood Place runs from Twenty-seventh South to Vancouver Street, between Norman and Judkins Street. It is not exactly in the heart of the city, and is reached only after a dogged and thorough scramble over fences."

Oriental Menace to Americans.
Mr. Fowler was not at home. His house is for rent and is evidently not for sale. Neighbors were unable to tell where the secretary of the society now resides, although he is seen in the neighborhood occasionally. A search down town, however, resulted in the discovery of a man named Smith, who covers the work of the organization and who himself has sent out a number of the postal cards asking for the cooperation of the American press. Said Mr. Smith:

"The postal cards practically all the necessary information. The society believes that the presence of Orientals in the United States is a menace to the prosperity of our white workers. We, therefore, want an exclusion act passed against the Japanese and the Koreans the same as that which excludes the Chinese. We would like to exclude all the Orientals now in the United States, we will be content to see the immigration cease from now on, and let the fellows who are here stay if they want to."

"Papering the walls of the United States are receiving our circulars. We hope for a great general support of the movement. It is our belief that Congress is forced to take up the subject and pass the necessary exclusion laws. If it has got to come some time, and might as well come immediately."

"Do the Japs enter into serious competition with American labor at the present time?" asked the reporter.

Yellow Peril at Our Doors.
"They certainly do," replied Mr. Smith, "although not so much so as the Chinese. The yellow peril is right at our doors. The Japs and Chinese have lowered wages scandalously. American labor is being driven out of the country. The Japs are the first chance."

The postal cards received by The Times show that the signers all have foreign names and the handwriting is distinctive of Germany, Sweden and Norway. The names were taken from the list of names of the signers of the bars that stood between him and liberty a few days ago. During the eight or ten days that the bars were in front of the jail Arthur Ross, aged 12 years, visited him every day and spent the greater part of the time being taken care of by the youngster, who had so eagerly begun a career of law-breaking.

When the door to the jail opened through out the day so that the younger lad might enter and peer through the bars, Arthur Ross came in the morning at 8:30 o'clock and stayed until noon, when the boy behind the bars would share with him the lunch carried to the cell. In the afternoon the same program was carried out. Arthur would remain in the cell in the afternoon when he would wander away sorrowfully.

The little boy was arrested on a charge that did not lose its seriousness on account of the extreme youth of the offender. He was incarcerated for a serious crime. The youngster, when told that he was being released, expressed himself as willing to go. He admitted that he had been a bad boy, but that he would never again put where temptation would not stand so strongly before him, as soon as the other little fellow had the opportunity of the taking of his friend to the reform school. He said that he wanted to go home. When told that he could not be sent he maintained that he had been as bad as Ray and said that they had been in jail together.

Young Clark was released after he had been in jail for more than a week, much to the joy of his chum.

FALL ENROLLMENT ALMOST 1,000

Attendance at State University for College Year 1904-5 Falls a Little Short of Number Expected by Authorities.

The authorities at the State University had expected to see the attendance at the institution pass the 1,000 mark for the college year which, however, they hopes seem deemed to disappointment, as the total enrollment for the regular session was 814, while the summer session which closes next Friday has an enrollment of but 160, making a total of 974 for the entire year. The failure of the summer school to enroll as large an attendance as was anticipated is explained on the ground that a large number of teachers, who had planned to attend, spent their vacation in other parts of the country. An analysis of the attendance of the summer students shows that while not so large as the winter attendance, the attendance was anticipated, the character of the preparation of those who did attend was of a high school diploma. Forty-seven of the students, or 30 per cent, are graduates of colleges or universities. Twenty-four or 15 per cent are normal graduates, thirty-seven or 24 per cent are freshmen or above, and eight are high school graduates, making a total of 100 per cent of the attendance being fully registered college students. Only twenty-nine of the students do not hold at least a high school diploma. These are found only in a few of the special courses, such as library work and manual training.

DOG'S BITE WORTH $6,000

P. A. Silverstone Was Chewed Up by Inhospitable Canine a Year Ago and He Thinks the Owner Should Pay Damages.

Because a bulldog, belonging to C. P. Behre, of Beacon Hill, munched the left shoulder, arm and hand of P. A. Silverstone more than a year ago, Silverstone now wants the court to award him $6,000 damages.

Mr. Behre lives at 1508 Ninth Avenue South and runs a tin shop next door to his residence. In May, 1904, Mr. Silverstone was in the yard of the Behre's house to see about getting work. As he opened the gate he averts that a large and ferocious bulldog sprang upon him and began making a meal of his left shoulder.

Mr. Silverstone used to be a dry goods clerk. He was not in very good training when the bulldog jumped upon him, but a student of the law, he was of the kind of a fight he would have liked. Had it not been for the kind assistance of neighbors, who helped him to get help, he is convinced that the bulldog would have kept chewing until his victim was dead.

Mr. Silverstone, in his complaint, swears that he was severely injured and munched up by the ill-mannered dog, and that he has not been able to work since that time. He says that the bulldog, L. N. Rosenbaum, drew up papers for a suit for damages about a year ago, but the parties were not able to settle. Mr. Silverstone thought he would wait and learn the extent of his injuries before suing the damages. He was not satisfied with the amount that he was offered, and he thinks $6,000 is about the proper amount that Mr. Behre should pay.

After he was wounded, Mr. Silverstone says, he inquired into the reputation of the bulldog and learned that he was a bulldog, and a menace to the neighborhood. When he skulked along the fence, showing his teeth and growling, he was a menace to the children of the neighborhood who were wont to play in the yard. He had before had a reputation of gameness and his teeth between their legs and skulked for home, and he was the unscrupulous dog.
