

RED CROSS FUND $423,679; STATE NEEDS $714,500

Chairman Arnold of Advisory Committee, Foresees Goal by End of Week; City and County Lags

Red Cross chapters of the state had reported war-fund contributions of $423,679.65 yesterday, John N. Zydeman, state representative for the American Red Cross, announced. The state's quota is $714,500.

Although only six of the 40 chapters had reached their goal, many were nearing their quotas as the campaign became intensified.

Thurston and Okanogan Counties and the city of Anacortes were the most recent chapters to reach their quotas. In Thurston County, a $10,000 goal was exceeded by $4,000. Okanogan County over-subscribed its $3,000 quota by $277.49, Zydeman said. Anacortes yesterday met its $2,250 quota.

End Believed in Sight

Lawrence M. Arnold, chairman of the state advisory committee to the American Red Cross, expressed a hope that Washington's quota will be met by the end of this week.

"Our state has been asked for a relatively small portion of the $50,000,000 Red Cross war fund," Arnold said, "particularly when one considers that the Red Cross may have to spend, right here in Washington, many times the amount our citizens contribute."

"Should disaster strike here, the American Red Cross will meet Washington's need. Washington should quickly do its share in helping to meet the need of the Red Cross for adequate funds to carry on its work of mercy."

Spokane Way Over Top

Four counties, in addition to Okanogan and Thurston, have gone over the top in the drive. They are Spokane, where an $80,000 quota was over-subscribed by $20,000; Columbia, Garfield and Yakima. In the latter, a $30,000 quota was over-subscribed by more than $6,500.

In Seattle and King County, where the campaign for $300,000 has been lagging, organized solicitation is underway for the first time since the drive started, and Red Cross officials expect a brighter showing this week.

SCHOOLS READY TO GUARD PUPILS IN CASE OF RAID

Fleming Explains Policies Adopted; Children Would Be Sent Home Whenever Time Element Permitted

Steps taken by Seattle Public Schools to protect children in possible air raids were explained yesterday by Acting Supt. Samuel E. Fleming.

Seattle schools are well prepared in air-raid precautions, having made a study of British experiences several months prior to the United States' entry into the war, Fleming said.

Principals Formed Plan

Monday, December 8—The first school day after the bombing of Pearl Harbor—principals met and adopted a program which will govern in an emergency. Since then, custodians and other employees have been trained in civil defense.

Gas Attacks Foreseen

Should an air raid occur on the way to or from school, children have been instructed to return home unless they have almost reached school. If they are nearer the school they should go into the building.

In the event gas is used, children will be sent to the top floor, instead of the lower floor, where they would be during a bombing.

Payroll-Bond Buying Used In 223 Firms

Defense savings-payroll allotment plans are now in operation in 223 Washington plants and business establishments it was announced yesterday by Saul Haas, defense-savings administrator for Washington.

A total of 126,921 men and women are employed in these concerns, Haas said, and several of the larger payrolls are being increased daily.

Boeing Aircraft Company is the largest enterprise in the state to inaugurate the plan under which its personnel may purchase defense-savings bonds through regular payroll deductions. Participation of employees in the plan exceeds 65 per cent, according to officials of the Aeronautical Mechanics Union, Local 751.

Other concerns, with a large number of employees, to adopt the plan include the Pacific Telephone & Telegraph Company; Carnation Milk Company and Seattle-Tacoma Shipyards.

In Seattle, 104 enterprises had installed the program; in Spokane, 39; in Everett, 11; and in Ellensburg and Yakima, eight and seven respectively.
