FOREST MEN TO DISCUSS FIRES

Plans for combatting incendiarism in forests will be the principal topic at a dinner meeting of the Northwest Conservation League at 6:15 o'clock Friday in the Y. W. C. A. Tea Room.
 Addressing the meeting will be C. S. Cowan, chief warden of the Washington Forest Fire Association, and H. L. Plumb, supervisor of the Snoqualmie National Forest. Officers of the league declare that considerable public uneasiness exists because of dangers of forest fires resulting from sabotage or even incendiary bombs.

Evacuated Japs Assured Share Of Crop Return

Urging Japanese farm leaders to continue crop production until evacuated, Walter L. Cline, Farm Security Administration agent, yesterday said Japanese will be allowed to share in returns from the crops they plant.
 Cline, special agent in charge of disposition of Japanese and Japanese-American farm lands, said offices of the Puget Sound area have been instructed to aid in every way possible the protection of Japanese interests.

Cline said that while no federal funds were available for such reimbursements, the administration field offices will help Japanese and qualified farmers who will be willing to take over their property on such a basis.
 This may be either in immediate cash payments or on a "share-crop" basis, Cline said. In either event, he said, the F. S. A. will supervise the transactions and in cases where necessary, will arrange farm credit loans.
 Both white and Japanese farmers interested in transfer of farm lands should report in Seattle to the F. S. A. emergency offices at 808 Second Ave.

Navy Man Will Speak To Reserve Officers

Lieut. Comdr. William Miller of the 13th Naval District will speak on "Naval Aviation in Connection With the Army," Tuesday noon in the 40 and 8 Veterans' Club, 519 Third Ave.
 The meeting is in line with part of the regular instruction of reserve officers, according to Lieut. Col. George E. Mathieu, president of the Seattle Reserve Officers Group.
 The meeting will be open only to present and past officers of the armed forces.

SABOTAGE SEEN IN TRESTLE FIRE; SUSPECT SOUGHT

Man Reported Near Scene Before Blaze; Damage to Line West of Ellensburg Estimated at $30,000

Believing sabotage was responsible for a railway trestle fire near Ellensburg Wednesday, special railway agents yesterday were searching the area for a man seen near the trestle just before the fire.

Damage to the trestle, on the Milwaukee Road where it crosses the Northern Pacific tracks about five miles west of Ellensburg, was about $30,000.

F. R. Bartles, assistant general manager of the Northern Pacific, said E. J. Boyle of Auburn, engineer of a westbound freight train, reported having seen a man near the trestle about 30 minutes before the fire was discovered.
 Boyle told J. F. Alsip, division superintendent of the Northern Pacific, that the man was carrying a hand pump or device that could have been used to spread inflammable material.

The investigators also learned that the blaze, originally reported to have started in weeds near the trestle, actually started in the upper structure.

Service on the main line of the Milwaukee Road was disrupted until Friday evening. Meanwhile, the line used Great Northern tracks.

The early ambition of William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, was to be a minister.

Cupid Ahead of Time For Nippon Evacuation Special

MIR. and MRS. ROBERT HOSOKAWA
'We hadn't planned to get married quite so soon'

Love that laughs at locksmiths also smiles at curfew, evacuation orders and travel restrictions.

And so, more Japanese names than usual are scattered along the daily lists of those filing notices of intention to wed, which means that many Japanese will be going into the unknown, when definite evacuation orders come, with a companion by their side instead of alone.

There are Robert Hosokawa, 23-year-old Whitman College graduate, and Yoshi Yoshizawa, pretty 20-year-old Willamette University junior from Milwaukie, Or.

"We hadn't planned to get married quite so soon," Hosokawa said yesterday, before the wedding.

"Not today, anyway," interrupted Yoshi.
 "But, you see," Hosokawa went on, "those travel restrictions went into effect and I got worried, so Wednesday night I went down to Salem and kidnaped Yoshi right out of school."

"I was waiting for him all the time," whispered Yoshi.

"We just got the license this morning," Hosokawa said, "and we're going to be married this afternoon. Arthur Bateman, a schoolmate of mine who's an attorney, got a waiver so we needn't wait three days—"

"Oh, they were all so nice!"
 "And we called up the Rev. Alexander Winston at University Unitarian Church and he said he could marry us at 1:30 or 4 o'clock and we said, 'Make it 1:30—we've just got time to change our clothes and buy a corsage. We had to borrow a ring.'"

"But we'll buy one Monday," said Yoshi, who was wearing a very sparkly diamond engagement ring, not borrowed.

"I'd like to have all my friends see us get married," Hosokawa said regretfully, "but they're all in the Army. Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Beach, parents of my best friend, Bill Beach, now in the Army Air Corps, are going to be at the wedding."

Brother at Wedding
 Attendants at the little wedding yesterday afternoon were Hosokawa's brother, William Hosokawa, executive secretary of the Japanese-American Citizens' League, and his wife.

Hosokawa, a salesman, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Setsuzo Hosokawa, 158 22nd Ave., and his bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. Yoshizawa, who were not able to come up for the wedding. Both families are awaiting evacuation orders.

There was a double wedding Thursday, when Toraiichi Sao, 29-year-old salesman living at 1212 1/2 Main St., and Hatsumu Murakami, 23, of Auburn, were married at the same time as were Hatsumu's brother, Keo K. Murakami, 25-year-old Auburn produce man, and Yukiko Kato, 26, of Kent. The Rev. U. G. Murphy of the American Bible Society officiated.

'We'll Go Together'
 "I got worried about the travel regulations, too," Sao said. "And then we thought wherever we go, we'll go together. Her brother and his bride felt that way, too, and now we hope all four of us can go to the same place."

During the past few days notices of intention to wed were also filed by Motoi Naito, 24-year-old former University of Washington student, 507 Tenth Ave., and Lillian Hiyure Ichihara, 29, 827 20th St. S.; Oliver Kinomoto, 22-year-old restaurant man, 111 12th Ave., and Sure Tsutsumi, 22, 312 14th Ave. S.; Frank Y. Torihara, architect who was graduated from the University, 123 17th Ave., and Ruth S. Matsumoto, 1815 Lane St.

Also filing were Akira Maveda, 27, 855 20th Ave. S., and Taeko Nikami, 21, 3020 23rd Ave. S.; Masami Satomi, 22, of National, and Chiko Oyeda, 20, 1018 E. Alder St.; George Shigeo Abe, 25, Snoqualmie Falls, and Dorris Sumi Akimoto, 22-year-old former University student, 1018 E. 45th St.; Joe Tamura, 21, Route 9, Box 10-H, and Mabel Uno, Puyallup; Kanich Iwami, 24, 316 Union St.; and Sachiko Sumioka, 20, 121 1/2 Main St.; Koyi Norikane, Auburn, and Mary Shizuko Hiramatsu, Kent.

Other Japanese filing were Chajo Yabe, and Yao Kabowashi, both 64, 415 Sixth Ave. S.; Al Takaono, 25, 115 18th Ave., and Misao Morimoto, 25, 1221 Remington Court; Takeo Muramoto, 24, 1820 Jackson St., and Rosemary Kikuno Oshio, 23, 1423 King St.; K. Takasugi, 46, 604 1/2 Main St., and F. Itano, 45, 602 Main St.
