Fairbanks Plan Fails.

The idea of trying to override the President's personal caotee proved repulsive to the majority of the national committee, and the Fairbanks-flemenway plan failed. Cortelyon is familiar with the details of the campaign that was planned against him, and has a copy of a stirring editorial criticising him, which appeared in the Indianapoils Journal. NEW OPPOSED TO Lakeside M. E. Church Will Be Dedicated Next Sunday FAIRBANKS

REV. HARRY C. WILSON.

New, acting chairman of the Republican national committee, is opposed to the nomination of Vice-President Fairbanks for President in 1998. But it is equally certain that Capt. New has too high a conception of his position at the head of the national committee to permit bimself to be used in that capacity, either for or against any of the candidates mentioned for the Republican nomination in 1998. There is a mistaken impression that Harry S. New historial the dislike for Fairbanks which his father, the late John C. New, chershed. The Benjamin fair ison. Gen, therefore, the late John C. and South, Southeast Scattle, will be dedicated next Sunday morning by fishop Moore, of Portland, Or. The bishop Moore, of Portland, Or. The bishop will arrive here within the next few days from an extended Eastern trip.

The church, which was organized about a year ago by Rev. Lorenzo Jean, has attained its present strength and has erected a beautiful house of worship through the energetic pastorate of Rev. Harry C. Wilson, appointed to the charge at the last Methodist Episcopal Conference.

The present building was started in August and the auditorium is inished and furnished for the dedication which will take place Sunday. The dedicatory services will open at 11 o'clock, under direction of Bishop Moore, with a number of clergymen assisting. In the evening at 7:30 c'clock Rev. W. T. Randolph, pastor of Grace Methodist Episcopal Church of this city, will preach the sermon.

That which is a source of greatest satisfaction to all is the fact that the be agreed upon as to the size of battle-ships hereafter to be built. I have found, however, that it will indoubtedly be impracticable to reach any such agreement in the near future. We cannot afford to fall behind, and we shall fall behind if we fail to build first-class battleships ourselves.

"Unless we intend to go on building in the fact we should abandon every effort to keep the position which we now hold. Our justification for upholding the Monroe doctrine and for digging the Fanama Canol must rest primarily our willingness to build and maintain a first-class fighting fleet."

Sixteen-Year-Old Lad Writes Gruesome Lines of Hope and Despair Before Turning On Remarkable Verses, Composed by Youth in Dying Hour, Show Unusual Literary Power and Depth of Thought.

The poem, contained in a letter written to a young woman friend, was received two days after the youth's death, with the accompanying letter, it reveals the fact that before closing the keyhole and cracks in and about his door, that air might not enter to provent his asphyxiation by gas, Burgess must have scated himself and, his mind clear and active, penned verse which associates say is probably the best of any of his efforts in this line.

Burgess was leading editor of The Wednesday Echo, the school paper, and his writings were regarded as the best of the publication. All show a maturity of thought and sentiment strange in one so young. or sell. The Journal property, which resulted in Fairbanks purchasing the plant.

Frior to the national convention in 1904 Fairbanks issued an order to the Republican organization in Indiana that New must not be reelected as a member of the national committee. New accepted the challenge, and appealed to the Republicans of Indiana, with whom he was very popular personally, and when the district conventions were over it was found that New had carried eleven of the congressional districts, and his opponent. Charles L. Henry, the Fairbanks candidate, had carried only two. Henry thereupon withdrew, and New was elected unanimously, but when it was proposed later to make him vice-chairman in charge of the Chicago heniquarters, Fairbanks protested, and asked that Homenway be selected. Chairman Cortelyon disregarded the protest of the vice-presidential candidate, and appointed New.

The fight which is now being made to put New out of the committee and make Scott of West Virginia chairman is being engineered by the Fairbanks folk. This recalls a very interesting plan to capture the Republican organization concocted by the Fairbanks folk. This recalls a very interesting plan to capture the Republican organization concocted by the Fairbanks folk which permits the presidental nomineer to select the national chairman, named George E. Cortelyou, the Fairbanks people immediately brought Scott out as a candidate, and tried to break the party precedent by having the committee cleet Scott as chairman, and override the President. The whole scheme was concocted in Indiana, and Hemenway, the Fairbanks plans and Hemenway, the Fairbanks plans to carry out the plan.

The idea of trying to override the President Says They Must Be Built if Navy Is to Be Kept From Going Backward-Advises Economy.

Great Armored Cruisers as Expensive to Build and Maintain as the More Effective Battleships, Says President.

By Associated Press, Special by Leazed Wire.

WASHINGTON. Friday. Jan. 18.—A letter written by the President in advocacy of the plan for two battleships of the Dreadnought ciass became public yesterday. It is dated Januar 11. and is addressed to Chairman Foss, of the House committee on naval affairs. The letter system of the president of the frest-class battleships of the inaximum size and speed and with their primary battery all of 12-inch gurs added to the navy this session that I desire to lay the matter before your committee through this letter. These two big ships should include the one provided for last year and the one provided for this year.

ret monitors; and while the cruisers, especially the great armored cruisers, serve some useful purposes, it would nevertheless have been infinitely better to have spent the money which was actually spent on them in the construction of first-dass hattieships.

"Our great armored cruisers are practically as expensive to build and maintain as battleships, and yer, taking the battleship all around for the purposes for which a navy is really needed, its superiority to the armored cruiser is enormous.

"I thoroughly believe in developing isional committee organization is being watched with keen interest here. The statement that the appointment of a national chairman is without precedent is hardly justified, for it will be recalled that Henry C. Payne, who was tec-chairman from 1900 to 1901, acted as national chairman after the death of Hanna, and there was no election by the committee until the Chicago convention of 1904.

It is already apparent that the Fairbanks candidary does not appeal to the President, or to his friends in the administration. And that is the cause of all the trouble. The President's friends regard Fairbanks as a conservative, not to say a reactionary whose adilliations hardly make him a proper man to carry out the policies which the President has enunciated. The trouble growing out of the resignation of the committee and the fight now being made against the President has enunciated. The trouble growing out of the resident has enunciated that the Senate, are indications of a struggle that is to come, sooner or later, hetween the two elements in the Requibility of the proposes. The provident is important to the strength of the navy rests primarily the strength of the navy rests primarily in the strength of the navy rests primarily the strength of the navy rests
