REGENTS' TENURE BILL IS VOTED

By A STAFF CORRESPONDENT OLYMPIA, March 3.—Passed by both houses of the Legislature, and now before Gov. Arthur B. Langlie for signature, is Senate Bill 22, which would take the tenure of office of regents of the University of Washington and of Washington State College out of politics.

General Draft Of Fathers Is Expected May 1

WASHINGTON, March 3.—(AP)—Officials today said it would be a "pretty reasonable guess" that some local draft boards will start taking fathers of children on May 1 or shortly thereafter and that inductions of married men with children would be fairly general by early summer.

ABSENTEES GAIN, KNOX DECLARES

(Continued From Page One) Just as a "suggestion for consideration" Knox said the problem might be approached by hitting the willfully absent workers "in the pocketbook."

That's where it hurts them," the secretary declared after saying that only a percentage of the absentees could be reached to get them into uniforms because only those eligible for service would be affected.

Representative Lyndon Johnson, Democrat, Texas, sponsor of the measure, asserted that figures showed 40 per cent of the absentees occurred on week-ends and asked Knox if he had any explanation.

"Dispensation is one," said the Navy secretary. "More money than they can spend is another. The real major cause is that men go out Saturday and Sunday and indulgence and don't feel so well on Monday."

"I wish to state to the committee," Knox said, "that whatever final form this legislation may take, I am heartily behind any change that can be done to reduce absenteeism."

"I am not talking of the increasing number of workers who are physically handicapped, whose services can be utilized with advantage on a part-time basis, but I am talking about the strong and healthy, who, in my opinion, should put in their full effort every day, and every hour of their working time to assist their country in winning this war as quickly as possible."

"The thought of what our men at the front may be enduring for lack of the plane or the gun or the ship or the ammunition is enough to spur every able-bodied man to work in this country to the point of exhaustion and continuous effort on the production front."

Knox reviewed efforts by the Navy to curb absenteeism by improving working conditions and said the figures he presented demonstrated that "the record of the civilian workers of the naval establishments is by no means as bad as it is commonly supposed."

"It is estimated," Knox said, "that of the total absenteeism reported in naval establishments, about 4 per cent comes under categories of authorized and justified; hence of the absentee rate for all employees of the eight continental Navy yards for the quarter ending December 31, 1942, shown as 9.7 per cent, we should subtract 4 per cent, leaving about 5.7 per cent of probable unjustifiable absenteeism. This is far too high and every effort must and will be made to reduce every bit of unjustified absenteeism in the naval establishment."

The naval-affairs committee previously had approved a "work or fight" policy to curb absenteeism of civilian workers at naval yards and posts, and now is considering legislation to broaden the policy to cover workers in all war industries.

First World War Recalled Representative Bradley, Democrat, Pennsylvania, a committee member, injected at one point the observation that absenteeism in the present conflict amounted to only 50 per cent of that in the First World War.

In response to questions from Representative Morrison, Democrat, North Carolina, Knox agreed that only about 50 per cent of the absentees from naval establishments were "reprehensible."

Morrison said many of the reasons for the remaining 50 per cent had not been investigated and contended such an inquiry might show that some of the workers were physically unable to work as long as others.

"I don't want to decorate with the badge of condemnation a whole group because of a small group," he added. "And I don't want to minimize this," Knox interrupted.

Local Boards Favored The Navy secretary told the committee that "whatever remedy we apply... we ought to handle it through the local Selective Service boards."

Japanese From Bainbridge Are Moved to Idaho

HUNT, Idaho, March 3.—(AP)—One hundred and ninety-three Japanese-American residents of Bainbridge Island, Wash., have action taken by the Minidoka Relocation Center from the Manzanar Relocation Center in California.

The newcomers boosted the population of the Hunt community to 9,393, highest in the six-month history of the center.

The Sakurai brothers—Chet, Howard, Kenny and Ted—formerly of Seattle but now residents of the Hunt center, want to serve in Uncle Sam's Army. They volunteered for duty in the special Japanese-American combat unit being recruited from western relocation towns.

"Long before Father (Tayozo Sakurai) died," Chet, the spokesman, told reporters, "he told all of us that if Japan and the United States should ever be engaged in a war, there would be only one thing for us to do—live and fight to uphold the U. S. A."

"I wish to state to the committee," Knox said, "that whatever final form this legislation may take, I am heartily behind any change that can be done to reduce absenteeism."

DEVIN SUSPENDS CURFEW IN CITY

The 9 o'clock curfew for Seattle children under 16 years old has been suspended at the direction of Mayor William F. Devin pending a conference tomorrow forenoon in the mayor's office to determine what a curfew will do.

Mrs. F. F. Powell, city councilwoman, who headed a committee appointed by the Council to work out a curfew plan, and Police Chief Herbert D. Kinsey had announced the curfew was in effect as of last Monday. Kinsey said his department was not going all-out on it, though, but was saving the curfew for youth who continually roam the streets nightly.

When the mayor learned the curfew had been ordered, he immediately called the conference and held up curfew enforcement meanwhile.

"I'm not sure yet the curfew is needed," Mayor Devin said today. The mayor said the chief wants to enforce the curfew downtown, but let the children in the residential districts go.

"If there is to be a curfew it ought to hold for everyone," Devin said.

Moreover, the city ordinance does not take week-ends into account in forbidding children use of the streets after 9 in winter and 10 in summer. It should be recognized that lots of kids want to go to a show Friday or Saturday night."

The committee charged there was a noticeable increase in illegal child labor and urged that there be no relaxation of standards of employment for children under 16 in any contemplated amending of child-labor laws.
