GOLDENDALE, Aug. 12.—(AP)—Robert Abhold, 20 years old, was sentenced by Superior Judge Howard J. Atwell yesterday to a maximum term of 15 years in the state reformatory as a parole violator. Abhold was captured near Yakima Tuesday after three days of liberty from the Klickitat County jail.

Harry Lee Huff, 17, who escaped at the same time, was captured at Wapato and is being held pending court hearing.

3 JAILED FOR BOGUS MONEY

Three men were arrested and 225 counterfeit $10 bills were confiscated last night by United States Secret Service agents, who declared they had broken up the most highly organized counterfeiting ring that ever had attempted to operate in the Pacific Northwest.

Agents followed the arrest by going to a house in Bremerton where they seized the elaborate plant, at which, they said, the counterfeiters were manufactured.

Elaborate Equipment

In the equipment, the most elaborate seized by agents in this area in the past ten years, are 11 books and notebooks on photography and photo-engraving, a paper cutter, two large cameras used for foundation work, numerous bottles and tubes of inks and acids, supplies of sensitized paper, scales, a timer and other articles. The equipment filled the tonneau and trunk of one automobile.

The $10 bills and a series of $20 notes believed to have come off the same press are among the most dangerous counterfeits Capt. William R. Jarrell, supervising agent of the Seattle Secret Service office, ever has encountered, he said.

Printed on a good grade of paper with excellent color and scroll work, the bills might have flooded the entire country if the plot had not been nipped in the bud, he declared. Captain Jarrell also said he had reason to believe only seven $20 bills and ten $10 bills actually had been passed.

Eight Agents on Case

Eight secret service agents have been at work on the case since a spurious $20 bill showed up in Seattle June 4. The first spurious $10 note appeared in Seattle July 21.

One of the three men is suspected of being the actual counterfeiter, the agent said. All three were arrested in different hotels in Seattle and booked at police headquarters. The man accused of making the notes had 175 of them, wrapped in oil cloth, secreted behind a sink in his room. Another had 50 notes hidden away, which he is said to have obtained from the third.

All Three Have Records

Captain Jarrell said all three men are former coin-counterfeiters. He said the one who is accused of making the money has served three terms in federal prisons for making coins. He said this work has been done in the basement of the house in Bremerton, without the knowledge of the other occupants. Jarrell said the man had his press in his own room in the basement. Jarrell said the other two men have served one term each in federal prison for coin counterfeiting.

Captain Jarrell said the "passers" had disposed of their counterfeiters in a variety of establishments that included stores, taverns and state liquor stores. He said both men had been identified by people who had taken notes from them.

The Seattle Daily Times
STROLLING AROUND the TOWN

V-shaped potatoes and carrots have been called to The Stroller's attention this agricultural season and today a third member of the patriotic vegetable tribe has joined the V for Victory Club.

G. Earl Miller, 3825 105th St., reports with a V-shaped cucumber in his victory garden.

Jabez is a dark-skinned, frizzy-haired native, clothed only in a loin cloth, who dwells on one of the islands in the South Pacific, where Seabees, many of them from the Pacific Northwest, are building an American base.

Like so many of the natives, Jabez spends much of his time now selling souvenirs to American Navy men.

Recently George A. Cheney, storekeeper second class, U. S. N. R., a Seattle Seabee, stopped to talk to Jabez.

"He lamented," Cheney wrote, "that his father had not become a Christian and counted the years of his life. But his mother had become a Christian, and for that Jabez was thankful. Jabez dutifully counts the years of his children and bids other children to a feast on their birthdays.

"The other day one of the Seabees showed Jabez a copy of a streamlined translation of the Bible. Jabez studied it for a time, and then remarked:

"I still like the King James version best."

"It seemed incongruous," Cheney wrote, "to hear such a statement from a person whom we might have called a savage."

A girl in her teens who had attended one of the circuses which played in Seattle recently was asked whether the circus was using young men or old men as roustabouts.

"I don't know," she replied, "but none of them whistled at me."

That answered the question.

Mrs. C. R. Peterson, 3918 W. Munro St., asks The Stroller to make a plea to candid-camera fans to use less film. Mrs. Peterson says that her brother, Robert Jarvis, seaman, second class, serving in the Pacific area, writes home begging that snaps of his family be sent him.

"But we cannot obtain any film," Mrs. Peterson said.

"I wonder if you could ask others, who have no relatives in the service, to buy film only for essential purposes, and give the service men's wives and mothers and sisters a chance."

Mrs. Peterson explained that where she goes to apply for her film, names are put on a waiting list, and the customers served in

Dowling Read His Lines, Says Complaint

NEW YORK, Aug. 12.—(AP)—Charges that Eddie Dowling, veteran Broadway actor and producer, was playing from script while playing in "The Petrified Forest" in Cleveland last month have been referred to the American Arbitration Association by the executive committee of the Actors' Equity Association.

The committee said the complaint was filed by Saul Heller, Cleveland summer stock producer. The A. A. A., the committee said, will determine the amount of salary Dowling should receive.

Dowling, in Providence, R. I., where he played the lead last night in "The Petrified Forest," criticized Equity's action and said he would demand full pay for his Cleveland engagement.

Heller's complaint charged that Dowling failed to give a satisfactory performance in that he read his lines from script instead of reciting them.

Equity's executive committee said Heller's statement could have been accepted either as a claim for salary or as a charge that Dowling had violated Equity's ethical requirements, explaining it had voted to accept the statement as a salary claim.

Importance of U. S. Role in Air Related

America's role in the postwar global air transportation picture and the part played by Pan-American Airways in pioneering 90,000 route miles connecting six continents before war interrupted its growth, are described in an article entitled: "Columbus of the Airways," in the August 14 issue of The Saturday Evening Post, now on news stands.

First of a series of five, the article outlines the firm's growth from the first air-mail trip to Buenos Aires in October, 1929, to its present position with 300 airports and 237 radio and weather stations in 63 countries, dominions and colonies. Told also is the company's use of Boeing Clippers to dominate the transatlantic air lanes.

SPOKANE, Aug. 12.—(AP)—The Columbia Basin and national legislative-affairs committees of the Chamber of Commerce yesterday expressed opposition to the Dirksen bill, now pending in Congress, which would create a federal power administrator.

Jap Invasion Of Land Law Feared

SACRAMENTO, Calif., Aug. 12.—(AP)—Asserting he has reason to believe that many Japanese in war relocation camps are transferring title of California agricultural lands in efforts to evade the state Alien Land Law, Aity-Gen. Robert W. Kenny yesterday announced creation of an alien land unit in his office.

Under state law no alien ineligible to citizenship may own or lease agricultural land. The law permits guardians to supervise properties of their "wards" but does not allow them to share in the profits.

Man or Mouse, Policewomen Not Afraid

A great and humiliating injustice has been done the policewomen of the City of Seattle.

It was charged yesterday by a civic inspection group that the women couldn't do their work—"what with jumping up on chairs all the time to get away from the mice that frequent their offices in the Public Safety Building."

Eleven stalwart badge-wearing women protested today: "It's a lie!"

They said the facts of the situation are these:

That it isn't mice—it's mouse.

That they aren't afraid of him and he isn't afraid of them. A sort of armed truce exists.

"He comes out from under our lockers," Mrs. Nell M. Carr declared. "I look him straight in the eye. He doesn't dare attack."

Apparently, however, the mouse returns Mrs. Carr's glare, for the policewomen agree that, instead of scurrying hastily to shelter as he does in the more masculine areas of the station, the mouse marches in a stately and dignified manner to his destination.

Capt. Irene Durham, head of the vice squad, said: "I guess if I can handle vice I can handle mice."

Policewoman Marjorie Adams opined that she was afraid of neither man nor mouse.

And the women declared that while there was mutual distrust on both sides, the matter of the women and the mice was handled in a decent and sober fashion without any leaping to chairs on the part of either skirts or fur.
