

F. B. I. TO BEGIN TULE LAKE PROBE

TULELAKE, Calif., Nov. 11.—(AP)—Two national investigations were focused today on the Tule Lake Segregation Center, where the 16,000 disloyal Japanese internees took advantage of mild rule to the extent of making bombs and knives practically under the noses of officials.

The Federal Bureau of Investigation was ordered by Attorney-General Francis Biddle to begin an immediate study of last week's disturbances with a view to prosecuting any violators of federal law.

Dies Probe Urged
Representative Claire Engle, Democrat, California, said he would ask the Dies committee for a "full and formal" probe of the entire Tule Lake situation as it existed under control of the War Relocation Authority before the Army was called in to quiet matters a week ago.

A State Senate committee which questioned numerous witnesses emerged unanimously in favor of continued Army rule. Several persons had testified they would be fearful of their lives if the Army were withdrawn.

A new disturbance at the center occurred only yesterday, even with the Army in control.

Japs Stop Work
Hundreds of Japanese staged a work stoppage in the warehouses on grounds that they were not being allowed to chose their own work leaders.

The last of the Japanese of proved loyalty to the United States were removed from the Tule Lake camp by train last night, leaving just those of admitted or suspected allegiance to Japan.

In joyful mood, 370 Japanese and Japanese-Americans of all ages left for W. R. A. camps in Utah, Idaho, Colorado and Arkansas.

Brass Statues To Help Home For Children

Three brass statues in the Olympic Hotel lobby may be "converted" into a much-needed freezing unit for the Seattle Children's Home, if an auction to be held by the hotel management is successful, Mrs. Kenelm Winslow, Jr., treasurer for the home, announced today.

The statues, declared "no longer welcome" as hotel decorations by William Edris, managing director and majority stockholder, will be auctioned in the Spanish lounge at 2:30 o'clock Monday afternoon. "They're really fine statues, but it just happens that Mr. Edris doesn't like statues," Mrs. Winslow said. "The Children's Home is thankful to be the beneficiary of their sale—and we think that some apartment or theatre person can really pick up a bargain here, too—they're all originals and were purchased for several hundred dollars." Mrs. Aubrey Naef, president of the home, agreed. She pointed out, however, that efforts to find a hotel-type freezing unit, with eight, ten or 12 sections, have not been successful. "Even if we sell the statues for scrap—and they're worth more than that—we'd be ahead," Mrs. Naef asserted. "And we'll go on searching for a freezing unit, with the additional funds to pay for a really good one."

4 MAROONED IN ARCTIC RESCUED

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—(UP)—A story of rescue in the frozen North by a United States Army plane piloted by a California man was told yesterday by the War Department.

Four Canadians, including a constable of the Royal Mounted Police, two Hudson's Bay Company officials and the wife of one of them, were marooned with 50 Eskimos 400 miles north of the Arctic Circle at Fort Ross, Canada.

Ice choking the sea prevented the Hudson's Bay Company from sending the colony any food and supplies last year, and again this year. The company asked for aid. The United States Army Air Force sent a C-47 Skytrain, equipped with extra fuel tanks, snow and ice tires and skis for landing on ice.

After an unsuccessful attempt to reach Fort Ross on November 1, the plane flew over on November 4 and dropped 2,000 pounds of supplies. They also sent an officer, who landed by parachute, to test the ice for the landing. He reported by radio that the ice would hold, and marked out a runway with coal bags.

Last Sunday the plane slid down on the shifty ice and rescued the four Canadians from their long imprisonment in the bleak Arctic. They were last reported at the plane's northern airbase waiting favorable weather to be flown to Winnipeg.

The pilot of the American plane was Capt. William H. Corwin of Long Beach, Calif.
