

GRANGER URGES JAP DEPORTATION

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., Nov. 16.—(P)—The National Grange convention was urged by its California representative today to favor deportation of all Japanese at the end of the war.

George Sehmeyer, master of the California State Grange, also presented a resolution urging that all Japanese camps be transferred from supervision of the War Relocation Authority to the Army.

The W. R. A. has shown itself incapable, Sehmeyer asserted, of controlling the camps.

National Master Albert S. Goss opposed the deportation resolution, saying the State Department and the American Red Cross opposed raising this issue now.

3 Seattleites Held On Check Charges

BOISE, Idaho, Nov. 16.—(P)—Charges of forgery today faced two juveniles and James E. Carter, all of Seattle, after their arrest here by local police, Chief George Haskin said.

The three passed fictitious checks in Seattle, Wenatchee, and Spokane, Coeur d'Alene and Boise, Haskin said.

SOMEDAY THIS WAR IS GOING TO END!

YES, someday this war is going to end! Then will follow a period of post-war uncertainties. Will there again be unemployment? Will wages be lower? Will prices remain high? The future holds the only answer!

But of one thing we may be certain. Those who will be best prepared to meet post-war uncertainties will be those who have best prepared for them by saving! By tucking away part of their wartime incomes so that they'll have a "nest egg" upon which to fall back.

Here your savings are safe; insured up to $5,000 by a government agency. Earn dividends, too!

NO ARMS FOUND AT TULE LAKE

SALT LAKE CITY, Nov. 16.—(P)—Headquarters of the Ninth Service Command here announced today that no firearms or explosives were discovered by troops ordered to take control of the Japanese relocation center at Tule Lake, Calif.

Soldiers were ordered to the center after some employees of the War Relocation Authority were threatened and beaten by Japanese.

The announcement, made at headquarters of Maj. Gen. David McCoach, Jr., commanding general of the Ninth Service Command, said "no incidents or signs of resistance or unrest have occurred since the troops took charge."

Headquarters gave no indication how long the Army would continue its control.

(At Tule Lake it was reported the search for weapons still was under way and a half dozen ring-leaders of uprisings there were being held in a special stockade.

The text of the announcement: "On November 4, 1943, at 9:50 p. m., Pacific War Time, at the request of the project director of the war relocation center at Tule Lake, the troops normally stationed at the camp moved in and took over control of the center."

"In the investigation by the Army which followed occupation, a few articles of contraband were discovered and confiscated. No firearms or explosives have been discovered. The duration of Army control will depend on future developments."

SOLONS HOPE FOR HOLIDAY LIQUOR

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16.—(P)—Five senators set out today to pry some whiskey loose in time for Christmas by breaking up what they called a "nation-wide conspiracy" in the liquor industry.

Chairman Van Nuys, Democrat, Indiana, of the judiciary subcommittee, told reporters that the very threat of a congressional investigation already has led to reports that "We may expect the withdrawal of some liquor from government warehouses very soon."

"If the inquiry leads to the release before Christmas of some of the more than 200,000,000 gallons now stored in government warehouses," Van Nuys said, "the government should reap a big reward in taxes and there will be less opportunity for the sale of dangerous bootleg liquors at enormous prices."

Small Quantity Moved
"We have been told that while the big distillers withdrew only 2,000,000 gallons of bonded whiskey from government warehouses last September," Van Nuys said, "in September, 1942, there were 10,000,000 gallons withdrawn."

"This simply means that the big distillers, who have bought out most of the little fellows, are using more and more neutral spirits—grains and alcohols—to mix with the bonded whiskey."

"In so doing they avoid not only the Office of Price Administration price ceilings that apply to known brands and charge fabulous prices for the blends under new names, but pay much less tax than they should pay."

Tax Paid on Withdrawal
"They don't have to pay taxes on bonded whiskey until they withdraw it from the warehouses."

"By creating a scarcity of good whiskey, they hope to force a higher price for it after the ceilings are lifted."

The Justice Department has started an informal investigation in connection with the recent acquisition of small distillers' stocks by larger firms.

O. P. A. Has No Authority In Distillery Deal

—Says State Aide

By JANET GOULD
United Press Staff Correspondent
OLYMPIA, Nov. 16.—Jerome Kuykendall, assistant attorney general who doubtless knows the most about Washington's proposed distillery purchase, said today he believed Office of Price Administration has no jurisdiction over the transaction.

Kuykendall was the state's emissary to Washington, D. C., to confer with agency heads over legalities involved. He said the agency's jurisdiction is limited to controlling commodity prices, that it could not more stymie the purchase of capital stock of the distillery in order to obtain liquor supplies than it could put a ceiling on shares of stock traded on the New York Stock Exchange.

O. P. A. failure to approve the plan so far is based, he believes, on the fact ceiling price of bulk whiskey, along with values of other and intangible assets of Waterfill & Frazier Co., might be more than the basic price offered for the stock.

Both he and Evro M. Becket, State Liquor Control Board chairman, think the package price of the liquor would be under the ceiling.

But Kuykendall said that although O. P. A. has no jurisdiction there was a chance the shareholders might refuse to sell to the state—rather than risk possible penalties—and the Liquor Board would probably not want a tangle with O. P. A. either.

Kuykendall reiterated the chances for consummating purchase of Waterfill & Frazier or joint purchase with Oregon of Waterfill and Shawhan distilleries were "not so bad as they were painted: the deal is definitely not yet closed."

Window Smasher Flees With $1,500

A thief hurled a bottle through a cafe window at 500 King St. last night, seized a cigar box containing $1,500 from a windowsill and fled, leaving a trail of small change.

The proprietor, Nick Cokis, attempted to catch the thief but was outdistanced. He notified police, who followed the trail. It petered out after several dollars had been picked from the sidewalk.

Mines Use Newspaper Ads

POTTSVILLE, Pa., Nov. 16.—(P)—For the first time in the history of the anthracite coal industry, mine operators are using newspapers to advertise for workers.

After Saturday's virtual shutdown, all anthracite collieries in this district with one exception are back in operation.
