MUSIC CONCERT

A distraction from the usual run of light variety shows and social dances, the Tulean Music department presented one of the finest musical performances to a capacity audience at #2508 Sunday afternoon. Many more were turned away at the door.

Fumiko Yabe, 19-year-old soprano, thrilled the concert-goers visibly as well as audibly in her long violet gown and changing into a bright Japanese kimono for the last set of numbers.

Miss Yabe was called back repeatedly and complied with few light numbers including "Kiss Me Again" and "Do You Remember?". The audience was extremely reluctant to leave.

The program selected displayed her varied talent, rare among nisei singers. Her voice flexibility gives her a tremendous range of dynamic and tone quality. One group of criticism was that her poise need improvement but from a layman's eyes, it went on unnoticed. She went through the entire program with the calmness of a professional artist.

A collection of amateurs, the Tulean string ensemble under the direction of Kumiko Nakamura put on a beautiful rendition, particularly of Handel's Largo and Andante from Tchaikowsky's Fifth Symphony that would have delighted the severest of critics.

Recognizing the difficulty of integration and co-ordination, the ensemble did remarkably well.

nese to retain their cultural heritage even as they become a part and parcel of the American economic, social and political life. A cultural heritage is quite a different thing from political ideology."

WENDELL WILKIE:

"There is another economic condition about which we must be thinking, for it is the most necessary of all goals to the accomplishment of real freedom. Not only must people have access to what other peoples produce, but their own products must in turn reach men all over the world. There will be no peace, there will be no real development, there will be no economic stability unless we find the method by which the trade barriers hampering the flow of goods are removed. I know that there are many men, particularly in America, where our standard of living exceeds the standard of living in the rest of the world, who shudder at such a prospect, who believe that any such process will only lessen our own standard of living. The reverse of this is true."

"OI! TASUKETE KURE!"

...(Help!) Nearby workers believing it to be a fire started to rush to the scene when "Shovel wo motte koi!" (bring some shovels) cries rang out. As 20 shovelers and over a 100 spectators reached the site, they were confronted by a scene of a landslide. One lady was covered up to her neck and another had her legs covered while two others were frantically calling out for help.

It seems that these ladies, on their way home from the packing shed, decided to pick up some shells from a nearby ravine. As one of them began digging considerable amount of sand a warning was issued of a possible landslide. No sooner was she warned when the sands caved in, partially covering her and another.

The way the grapevine talks had it, one lady was wholly covered by the sand and nearly died. Actually she was covered up to her neck and received a minor fracture in her leg.

Humor was added when the spectators called for the shovelers to dig faster yelling, "There's one more missing, keep digging!". However let's be more careful the next time. In Minidoka one of the residents got lost while gathering sagebrush and froze to death.

THE OTHER DAY

...about 50 men went 30 miles south of this Project to chop down Christmas trees. Many of them went with hopes of seeing a town, but not even a "hick town" was sighted. Another thing, lunch for only 40 persons were provided.

While chopping down the trees the boys got lost and after much walking around found themselves on the bottom of the hill while the truck was at the top. Weary and tired they climbed up again to get the truck.

NISEI AIR CORP SERGEANT VISITS HERE; "READY, WILLING, AND ABLE"

"It's great to be a part of the United States Army Air Corps." So stated Staff Sergeant Max Marutani, who arrived Tuesday from Hunter Field in Savannah, Georgia to visit his parents at 70-01-C.

Staff Sergeant Marutani explained that he was a combat member of the Air Corps and had to be anything from a gunner to a pilot. "We have to know the plane from the prop to the tail," he added in a slightly southern drawl.

The fighting nisei airman revealed that he was drafted on Dec. 4, 1941, but he immediately reenlisted in the Air Corps. "I was a licensed Nothing we can do will contribute more to the building of school morale and to the enrichment of the lives of these children."

TACOMA QUINTET SCARES MIKS

Sacramento Miks didn't breathe freely until the final whistle was blown in their game with the hustling Tacoma Bussei team Monday night as they had to fight every inch of the way to win 34-26.

No one would have given the Bussei a chance to win before game time, but after the first half ended with the Miks leading only 14-12, everyone saw that the Sacramentans had their hands full in staying off the stubborn Northerners.

Forwards on both teams did the scoring in the second half and it was mainly the cool work of Miks' Tak Tsutsui and Mas Hara which enabled them to win in the end. Hara took scoring honors with 12 points, while Tak Ikeda again led the Tacomans with 10.

GOOD CLASS 'A' GAMES ON TAP THIS SUNDAY

Sunday's class A basketball will see at least three evenly matched contests. Mighty Miks, who had an unexpectedly difficult time with the fighting Tacoma Bussei's five-man team this week, will face the Placer All-Stars. Although the Miks are favorites to come out ahead, the tall, experienced mountain basketballers may upset the dope cart.

Marysville and the Question Marks should make it a good battle. Both are once defeated. It will be Question Marks' fast break against Hub City's deliberate style of playing.

White River Bruins and the Golden Bears, both swamped by the Miks and both without wins, will fight it out for the collar spot. Bruins, although without a victory, look slightly favored.

Undefeated Wakabas will take on the improving Imura Barber Shop Clippers in a fifth round contest. Additions of Andy Sugiyama, one of the best prospects in the whole league, and sharpshooting John Kashiwabara has improved the Wakabas considerably. Clippers will definitely be the underdogs in this one.

TRY-SIX, TEENETTES AND MIKETTETS WIN OPENERS

Girls' basketball season started in full force last Saturday and in the National League, Mikettes squeezed through with a 10-8 win over the Cubettes, and the strong Try-Six over-powered the Termiettes 11-2.

In the only American League contest, the Teenettes won by forfeit over the disbanded Dog-House six. Yukon Lassie-Cigarettes game was postponed.

Try-Six showed plenty of class in holding the Termiettes to a lone field goal by Sadayo Washino in the second half. Alice and Amy Ikeda, with 6 and 4 points, respectively, led the winners.

Second half rally barely failed for the Cubettes as they closed a 9-4 halftime gap to 10-8 before the final gun.
