MICHIGAN GROWERS ASK NISEI TO TAKE JOBS

JEROME, Ark., April 14--A group of Michigan fruit and vegetable growers came here yesterday to ask Japanese-Americans at relocation centers to take jobs in Michigan.

The invitation was directed to 1,100 Japanese-Americans.

With agricultural backgrounds who are in the Jerome and Rohwer relocation centers.

The Michigan group was headed by Everett R. Bristol, secretary-treasurer of the Eastern Michigan Growers association, and H.A. Carinell, Michigan State College horticulturist.

About 12 men are needed immediately for year-around work and about 100 will be needed for seasonal work later this year, Bristol told one group of Japanese-Americans. "We want you to help us now but there is lots of room for expansion if any of you want to stay here," Bristol said.

Fifteen Japanese-American nursery workers from Jerome were sent to Monroe, Mich., last week, the first to go to that state under the federal program for releasing Japanese-Americans for help on the farms.

AN EDITORIAL:

HOSPITAL STAFF HAS BIG JOB

With everyone taking advantage of the free medical services, it is no easy task for the doctors and nurses of the Base Hospital to care for the welfare of the 15,000 colonists. The staff and its facilities are very limited in many respects.

Yet, in the past, there has been much unjust criticisms hurled at the hospital staff by irresponsible individuals. These verbal attacks have resulted in the desire of some of the medical staff to relocate themselves. Perhaps this desire may not be wholly attributable to the accusations, but these reprehensions have been largely instrumental.

The doctors and nurses have conscientiously and consistently served the community without a whimper. Patients who have been treated or confined in the hospital have only praises to offer. The main criticisms seem to come from those who make believe they are sick and who, thus, are unable to get any immediate attention.

We must all learn to appreciate the limited facilities--not only in the hospital, but elsewhere. Let us not incite disgust with "If that's the way they feel, to heck with them" attitude.

"Resettlement Fever" Affects Tuleans As Friends Write

With spring in the air, a new kind of spring fever is affecting the residents. It's resettlement fever. Friends on the outside writes glowing accounts of their new life and urge us to join them as soon as possible. The extent of our resettlement consciousness is reflected in the way in which we greet friends. "When you leaving", or "Are you still hanging around here", is the customary greetings now days. The major topic of conversation whenever a group meets is resettlement. News of how our friends on the outside are making out is discussed with interest....

With spring in the air, vast changes which are taking place on the outside. Industry, in adjusting itself to war needs, have discovered the possibilities of great technological changes in the offing. Many industries are already making plans for post-war production of many of the new inventions now being studied by their research staff. Post war era will see cars, houses, mechanical equipment so radically changed that the ones now in existence will seem obsolete. Many of these innovation are not just pipe dreams, but are actually in blueprint stage.

Life in the centers makes us unaware of the

EVACUEE RESETTLEMENT FEATURED IN NEWSPAPER

The story of resettlement of the evacuees in the midwest, their problems, community reaction to the program, and the work carried on by both government and private agencies in re-assimilating the evacuees into normal community life, was featured in the magazine section of the Portland Oregonian, April 25.

Special staff writer Mel Arnold, who wrote a series of articles in the Oregonian about Minidoka, recently visited Chicago where he gathered materials for his story on the resettlement program.

In his conversation with Elmer Shirrell, former Tule Lake director, it was revealed that various organizations such as the hostels, Y.W.C.A., Y.M.C.A. and the church federation are assisting the evacuees in finding housing and jobs.

More than 2500 evacuees are at work in the middle west and east and another 300 have been granted release and will leave as soon as they line up jobs.

Sherrill was quoted as saying that the biggest danger is the enthusiasm of the business men. The Japanese Americans are such hard workers, and so eager to make good, that the employers want too many. "One publishing company has two evacuees in its warehouse. It has applied for eight more, but we decided that this would be too much of a 'Japanization.'"

Attempt is being made to scatter the evacuees throughout Chicago rather than concentrate them in one place. They don't want any semblance of little "Tokyos" which caused resentment and suspicion in Pacific Coast cities.

Regional WRA offices established in many of the principal cities throughout the middle west are paving the way for evacuee resettlement by finding jobs and educating the public about the Japanese.
