OUTSTANDING SUMMER SCHOOL TEACHING STAFF ASSEMBLED VARIED COURSES FOR ADULTS PLANNED

Drawing on personnel of leading educational institutions, the Adult Education Department has assembled an outstanding summer school staff.

From University of Nevada, in Reno, comes Professor Alice B. Marsh who holds a master's degree in home economics and in education. Mrs. Marsh has also had extensive experience in the organization and management of food processing enterprises and in institutional management.

Mrs. Marsh will offer courses here in waitress training and housekeeping for upgrade project workers, and to aid those wishing to prepare for vocational opportunities outside. The first opportunities will be presented to project employees already working in these fields.

If needed equipment can be secured, Mrs. Marsh will also assist in supervision of the Agricultural Division's canning of project produce. In that event, OSYA canning class will be scheduled. Successful Organizing and supervising the OSYA program is Mr. W.L. Chaplin, formerly in charge of naval aviation ground school in Alturas, and before that in management of extensive agricultural enterprises. The OSYA courses are promoted by National Defense Training; the War Manpower Commission, and the WRA, receiving a special subsidy from the government for training people both off and on WRA (cont. on page 3)

BI-LINGUAL MEETING WILL BE HELD FOR RESIDENTS

Mr. U. P. Marr, principal of the Modoc Adult High School, will offer a new service in bi-lingual meetings devoted to "Understanding America," Dr. Marian Francis announced.

Until recently, the War Department prohibited teaching in Japanese; but the ban has been finally lifted.

Courses such as "Understanding America," in which latest news will be briefly summarized and during which important topics for consultation with the class will be undertaken will clear up many misunderstandings.

Colonists' participation in the discussion will be welcomed. Interpreters will make it possible for non-English speaking residents to express themselves as well as to ask questions so that they may fully understand what is being said. Schedule of meetings will be announced later.

The other artist on the Tulean Dispatch, who won first prize in special competition for mimeograph art, and Charles A. Mikami who won first prize for the best Japanese style painting.

The exhibit has been declared a great artistic success by its sponsors. Writing to WRA's Community Activities Adviser in Washington, Mr. George A. Selleck, executive secretary of the Friends Center in Cambridge who sponsored the competition, reported, "I want to say that we have all been delighted at the large number of paintings which have shown real thought and ability."

TULE LAKE FIRST TO HAVE HOG FARM, SLAUGHTERHOUSE

Tule Lake Project was the first among all the centers to have a hog raising farm and a slaughterhouse. The hog farm and the slaughterhouse are combined under the title of Agriculture Marketing.

Heading the slaughterhouse crew is Kai Kinoshita, foreman, with Toni Tani as head of the lard crew, and Mickay Takagi, assistant foreman. There are approximately 20 other workers, most of whom had experience in butchering before.

An average of 50 hogs per week are slaughtered for Project use.

After the hogs are killed and cleaned, then they are cut into bacon, loins, hams, shoulders, and ribs. The bacon is salted and smoked by Toni Tani who is an expert in that line.

Ham, shoulders, ribs and loins are packed separately into crates and delivered to the Project butcher shop.

The slaughtering of hogs first started in October of 1942.

Since the beginning of this year to the present date, a total of 682 hogs, each averaging 270 pounds, have been slaughtered.

"S.F.'S FORMER JAPANESE TOWN WAS SHABBY..." SAYS MASHIHARA

John Mashihara, #4313-A, who was in San Francisco for a period of eight days to prosecute a civil lawsuit, returned to the Project Monday. Mashihara apparently won the case and it is being settled outside the court.

Mashihara said that he went unnoticed on the city streets. "Probably they thought I was a Chinese," he remarked. "When they did find out that I was a Japanese, first thing I was asked was not what I was doing in the Prohibited Area but what a certain Ito or a Sato who ran a store down the street was doing. Were they in the same camp as I am?"

The former Hayward nurseryman said that the San Francisco's former Japanese town was shabby and dirty. Drunkards are loitering on the streets.

Photo picture of Mashihara testifying in the court was used to accompany one of the series of articles in the S. F. Chronicle written by Milton Silverman.

OUR EDITOR LEAVES TOMORROW

Tsuyoshi Nakamura, intimately known as "Tootie" among his friends, has been the editor and member of the editorial board of THE DISPATCH for the last months. As a quiet, assuming and efficient editor, his sound editorial judgment successfully bridged the gap between the administration and the evacuees.

Nakamura's sincerity and earnestness has won the respect of the staff members. A political science major at U.W., he is a veteran of journalism.

...of the DISPATCH has every member of the staff going around in circles. So intent is he in getting the anniversary issue out by June 11 (a near impossibility) that he has the staff working on a 24-hour day basis.

And, too, Jobo is very much determined to wipe out his reputation as "Refund" Nakamura. He even has gone so far as to engage the help of the Girl Reserves. (No doubt he believes in pleasure while working--pleasure for him, work for the G.R. girls.) If the magazine doesn't come out on time don't blame Jobo.

Anyone visiting the DISPATCH office is greeted by a messy office (uncommon to that place--??) cluttered up with papers and more papers. Also one can notice bags under each worker's eyes--a result of Jobo's mercenary slave-driving tactics.

Incidentally, the anniversary issue is going to be magnificent according to the editor. "It's selling like hot cakes so you'd better assure yourself of a copy now," humbly states Jobo. Wonder if it's selling anything like the hot cakes we get for breakfast each morning at our mess.

WE MOST CERTAINLY

...will miss Toots Nakamura, our editor-in-chief and Bill Osuga, our research editor, when they depart from this project next Tuesday, June 8.

We have looked upon Toots as a permanent fixture. His humor and personality will most certainly be missed. He is departing for Chicago via Minidoka project.

Bill, although with us for only a short time, has firmly established himself in the hearts of his fellow workers. He will also be leaving for Chicago. But before going there he will take in the Student-Faculty Christian Conference at Denver, Colorado.
