ON FURLOUGH

Pvt. George Kajimura arrived on May 24 from Ft. Sam Houston, Texas, and is visiting his parents at 4605-C.

In a recent official letter from the War Department to commanders throughout the country, procedures were established for employing American citizens of Japanese ancestry in civilian jobs at any army project except in restricted areas of the Western Defense Command. Relocation officers of the WRA will work with various posts and establishments to develop employment opportunities for evacuees now in relocation centers.

"The principal effect of this latest War Department action," Director Coverley explained, "will be to widen employment opportunities for evacuees. Large numbers of Civil Service civilian workers are now

Star Dusting

It's been a long time since we grasped the smooth hard curves of a Coca-Cola bottle. A visitor from the "outside" brought it in this stifling hot afternoon and instantly we emptied the content of invigorating sweet ambrosia down our parched throats. Ahhh... now with proper incentive we'll commence. SUEE HIGHT...

is the name appropriately adopted by the Block 34 softball team because of the proximity of the block's location to the sewerage pool. Block Manager Jack Okumura, player-manager of the team, has a half-year old baby boy who won the affection of all the young girls in the block. We're envious. ART "CHARACTER" MORIMITSU, chairman of the Writers' Club, has given the name, "A Tule Lake Interlude," to the book we are putting out for the Project's anniversary. Thanks to mimeographers, Larry Inukai and Mas Ogasawa, we are working day and night to meet the deadline. The book will probably be bound in Klamath Falls.

of volunteers for the combat team left last week almost too quietly. What's the matter? Most of those fellows are leaving their loved ones, even wives and children behind, in their willingness to instill a richer concept of American democracy. What more can a man give up? Even the ancient Japanese code says that the finest Japanese have always believed that the greatest honor one can obtain is to give his life for the country of his birth. Personally, we would like to see more parties and celebrations for those who didn't hesitate just because the other guys wouldn't go in. These men are living symbol of all loyal Japanese-Americans in the ten relocation centers. No celebration

Evacuee Writes "Leave Zoot Suit, Long Haircut" Here

In a letter received by a member of the DISPATCH staff, Joni Shimoda, who left the Project for Chicago a couple of weeks ago, asserts that "The nisei are not creating a very good impression by not mixing in with the Caucasians."

Shimoda suggest some sort of a relocation educational program within the centers to properly pre-

RESETTLING OKAY INFORMS MAYEDA

After getting acclimated to his new environment in Cwosso, Mich., Bryan Mayeda, ex-DISPATCH reporter, wrote a favorable letter to the staff members.

About his trip East he said, "People on trains and stations were curious, I guess, but weren't inquisitive. Fellow passengers were friendly... Army officers stopped to talk to me... Tell you the truth I was flabbergasted. One was a major. Another soldier, a native of Michigan, talked for hours about his home state. I guess I was a good listener alright... He dozed off in his seat.

"...I'm working and staying with a darn swell family. They sincerely understand our predicament. I'm sure the majority is like them. Incidentally Norton (the person with whom he is living) is a bona fide veteran of the last war."

is big enough to send them off with.

pare the evacuee's for resettling in communities where the first impression is going to be a powerful factor in determining whether resettlers will be accepted or not.

"Also to tell the zoot suit boys what to wear, to make them leave their hair on the barber shop floor and come out wearing conventional things," he wrote. "And for Gad's sake, tell them to leave those strange looking clothes at home! Better yet leave the strange looking guys that inhabit such clothes within the center."

AH! IT HAS COME AT LAST.....

It didn't seem as if it would arrive this soon what with the snow, wind, etc. sweeping through the city during recent weeks. But it is reliable. It always comes about this time each year.

No matter what happens -- wars, famines, floods, plagues--nothing can stop its coming.

For the Tuleans its arrival means uncomfortable days but what can they do for summer is here.
