Help is wanted to assist in moving baggage and household goods from evacuees' barracks in the colony to the warehouse which is to be shipped to other centers.

An urgent appeal is made to everyone to offer their services even though employed in another section. If now employed, please go to your supervisor and offer to help with the baggage of the evacuees. Your time will be kept and you will be paid by the section where you are now employed. Everyone is helping with the great amount of work that has to be done. EDITORIAL

GOOD BEHAVIOR PAYS ON OUTSIDE

Good behavior on the outside pays big dividends. A great many colonists have written that the relocation of evacuees has been greatly aided by those who have left the project. On the whole, people throughout the country do not know the issei and nisei except through hearsay; when they become acquainted with the Japanese-Americans they like them and whatever prejudice they had, they lose.

Many colonists have written that a seemingly behavior is very important, Zoot-suitors are not popular anywhere in the country. An extraordinary hair cut or conspicuous behavior is not only bad taste but bad public relations.

The fact that gentlemanly and ladylike behavior on the part of the evacuee furthers their acceptance on the outside is attested by one of the most remarkable letters yet received on the project. Because the letter is of a personal nature, the writer's name is withheld; but we publish excerpts from it without divulging a confidence.

An ad appeared in the St. Louis newspaper to the effect that an apartment would be rented only to "a first class party." One of the colonists from Tule Lake answered the ad. She writes: "The lady said that she had promised the apartment to three young men, but the next mornin she called me on the phone and said she had decided to give the apartment to us as she could not sleep last night thinking about us discriminated against because of our nationality. After getting to know us each day, her attitude has changed about us Japanese. She is anxious to let a Japanese gardener for her country estate, a mechanic for her apartment buildings, etc. At first she stated that the individuals had to be American citizens, but now it makes no difference to her." Mrs. A. has been very generous to us taking us to the Municipal Opera in her limousine. She has reserved box seats and invites several friends with us. She always introduces us as, 'these girls are American citizens of Japanese ancestry'. They are such lovely girls'. Her friends are very nice and are refined, cultured people.

Mrs. A. took us to her country estate for the weekend and we had a good time. She feels motherly toward us having only one son who is married. Many of our Caucasian girl friends have brought their friends to visit us. We occasionally have little dinner parties. A letter like this gives us assurance that we can and are being rapidly assimilated into American life. Young evacuees like these are doing the best public relations work that is being done. We hope others will follow their very successful example.
