PARLEY ACCEPTS CONSTITUTION FOR CHINESE REPUBLIC

Principles Of Dr. Sun Yat-sen Followed By Nationalists At People's National Convention In Nanking

PLAN TRUE DEMOCRACY

NANKING—A provisional constitution for China was adopted by the National People's Congress at its Tuesday session. This constitution will govern the country until the Kuomintang, the political party in power at the present time, feels assured that the Chinese people are capable of exercising their own political prerogatives.

This constitution outlines in a vague manner the political rights of the people and the duties and organization of the central and local governments. It was designed to operate until 1936, during the period of political tutelage outlined by Dr. Sun Yat-sen and followed by the leaders of the Nationalist movement.

Opposition Overcome

When this provisional constitution was first proposed, there was considerable opposition to it from different sources which threatened to break up the Nationalist party. After the leaders had decided to propose its adoption at the National People's Congress, Hu Han-min, president of the legislative council, resigned his post on account of his opposition to it.

The National People's Congress convened here on May 5. It marks the passing of three years after the commencement of the five-year period of political tutelage. After the completion of these five years to be devoted to the national reconstruction program, a greater conference will be held to assure China's stability and permanence as a political democracy.

UTAH JAPANESE PUBLISH REPORT

SALT LAKE CITY—The Japanese report of the Utah conference for the protection of children held here last month has been made public by H. Y. Kasai, head of the Japanese committee studying child welfare.

In order to provide for the welfare and the development of the younger generation, the report asks for suitable educational classes for Japanese adults, the teaching of Japanese in the public schools, the removal of race prejudice, the fostering of better understanding and cooperation between the two races, careful study on the question of making Japanese eligible to citizenship and the study of discriminatory restrictive immigration laws.

There are 1,410 Japanese children born in United States now living in the State of Utah and about 10 per cent of these are over 18 years of age, the report further stated.

Depression Causes Educational Crisis

TOKIO—The economic depression which has upset the conditions of Japan in many ways has also affected the educational system of the country as seen by the quandary that the officials of the prefectural board of education are placed in at the present time.

Many schools in different localities have been forced to close their doors because of the lack of students who are unable to attend schools, due to the hard times suffered by their families.

Another complicated situation has arisen in the refusal of instructors to resume teaching because their wages have not been paid for several months. The officials are exerting every effort now to raise the necessary funds.

CONSUL UCHIYAMA FETED ON ARRIVAL

Japan Society To Honor New Representative Of Japanese Government

Various organizations are now feting Consul Kiyoshi Uchiyama who arrived here Tuesday morning to fill the post left by the former Seattle consul, Suemasa Okamoto, who left for Japan in March to assume an important post in the Foreign Office.

Following the welcome reception given Consul and Mrs. Uchiyama and their 18-year-old daughter, Miss Mitsue Uchiyama, by the prominent Japanese and American business men of this city, upon their arrival on the Heian Maru, the new consul and his charming family have been the recipients of many invitation to dinners and banquets in their honor.

Banquet On Thursday

Of the leading organizations of the city, the first to honor Consul Uchiyama was the Thursday Club, composed of prominent Japanese business leaders of Seattle. The new representative of the Japanese government was the honor guest at a banquet given by this organization at the New Washington Hotel on Thursday evening, May 14.

On Monday evening, May 18, from 7 p. m., the Japan Society of Seattle will honor Consul Uchiyama and wife and daughter at a formal dinner in the Junior Ballroom of the Olympic Hotel. K. J. Middleton, president of the Japan Society, will be the toastmaster.

Gowen, head of the Oriental department at the University of Washington, who will give the principal talk.

Farewell For S. Nomura

This banquet will combine the welcome for Consul Uchiyama with the farewell for Mr. Shun Nomura, Seattle manager of the Mitsubishi Company, who has received an important promotion by his company in Japan. Responses will be heard from both of the honor guests, Miss Sophie Coyne, brilliant dramatic soprano, will offer several vocal selections at the banquet.

On Wednesday evening, May 20, Consul Uchiyama will be honored at a banquet to be given by the Japanese Association and the Chamber of Commerce.

Agitation To Cancel Europe War Debts Blamed On Bankers

WASHINGTON—International bankers are responsible for the revival of war debt cancellation agitation, according to John C. Schafer, Republican representative from Wisconsin, in his comment on the attitude of some Europeans who advocated war debt cancellation at the recent International Chamber of Commerce conference.

He saw in the bankers' move to cancel the war debts Europe owes the United States, a means of strengthening Europe's ability to pay the private loans floated at a profit by the bankers. This would pave the way for further profitable loans in the United States, representative Schafer declared, thus establishing a motive for the increased agitation for debt cancellation.

Feel Ashamed

The Wisconsin representative compared the attitude taken toward debts and debt cancellation by individuals and nations. Since individuals, according to the American code, feel humiliated when they are forced to beg off a debt, individuals representing nations or urging such action for nations, should feel the same humiliation and embarrassment, he declared.

"So far the debtor nations have not openly asked for cancellation," he continued, "but many of their prominent citizens have done so, with an argument that through cancellation we would be the winners and not them."

Declaring that he voted against the debt settlements because the terms were too liberal, he questioned whether there were honor among nations when, after this nation had financed the Allies and had helped them win the war, and after the United States had neither asked for nor received any booty, the allied nations now "want us to relieve them of their just obligations."

Cabinet Confiscates Alfonso's Property

MARID—All personal and landed property as well as stocks deposited in Spanish banks belonging to the former King Alfonso were ordered to be held intact until the constitutional cortes decides what is to be done to them, according to a decree issued by the cabinet on Wednesday evening.

The parliamentary elections under present plans are to be held next month. However, some of the radicals are demanding the abandonment of these June elections and the establishment of a republican dictatorship.

Churches Attacked

In the meantime, Spain was torn with renewed attacks against Catholic churches, monasteries and convents by the anti-religious groups. On Wednesday 25 such buildings were destroyed by anarchist mobs of anti-religionists. More than sixty-five Catholic buildings have been either looted or burned to the ground, according to unofficial estimates.

Mob rule is reported to be prevailing in many provinces and the Communists are taking advantage of the turmoil in their attacks against the clerics. Martial law prevails in Madrid and eleven other important cities.

DOUMER ELECTED AS PRESIDENT OF FRENCH REPUBLIC

Foreign Minister Briand Withdraws Candidacy After Defeat On First Ballot By National Assembly

13th CHIEF EXECUTIVE

VERSAILLES—The 74-year-old president of the Senate, Paul Doumer, will be the next president of France, as a result of the election held by the National Assembly on Wednesday evening, May 13. Doumer will be the thirteenth president of the Third French Republic, succeeding Gaston Doumergue who was elected to the high post in 1924.

The veteran politician and statesman was elected to the presidency on the second ballot, polling 504 votes, while his nearest competitor Senator Pierre Marraud, received 334 votes. The National Assembly which elects the presidents of France is comprised of some 900 senators and deputies.

Briand Defeated

Aristide Briand, minister of foreign affairs, whose candidacy for the post of chief executive was given a high boost when he received an overwhelming majority in the Chamber after a debate on his foreign policy, was defeated on the first ballot. After this initial defeat, Briand immediately withdrew his name from the list of candidates and threw his support to Marraud, who had the backing of the Socialists.

The voting is by secret ballot and it is generally conceded that Briand's fellow deputies led him down in this presidential balloting where party discipline cannot be enforced. Another cause of his defeat is attributed to the overzealous support that Briand received, when his backers cited the endorsement of Arthur Henderson, British foreign minister, and the praise given the Frenchman in the American newspapers.

Leaves Versailles

Doumer supporters, in retaliation, raised the slogan: "We're electing a President of the French Republic, not of the United States or Great Britain." After his defeat in the first ballot, Briand left the palace and started immediately for Paris.

By this defeat, Briand is said to have lost a great deal of his prestige and political observers are now freely attempting to guess his successor as minister of foreign affairs. Briand, however, declared that the French presidential election could not affect any foreign policies and left Versailles immediately, announcing he would leave for Geneva conference on the following day. He is said to have fainted upon arriving at his quarters in Paris.

The new president has had a varied career, beginning as newspaper man and then successively deputy, finance minister, governor-general of Indo-China, president of the Chamber of deputies, president of the Senate, and finally to the highest post of the French government.

DEPORTING ORDER ISSUED RESIDENT

Failure to register under the Chinese exclusion act when it became effective 49 years ago is the cause of the deportation order issued to Chan Yee, 63-year-old cook, who has been a resident of the United States for 50 years.

Judge Bourquin upheld the findings of Commissioner A. C. Bowen who ordered the deportation of the Chinese because of his failure to comply with the registration act made effective in 1882.

In his decision, Judge Bourquin wrote: "That upon him it may be hardship approaching tragedy is obvious, but the court finds it is not vested with any discretion. Moreover, the public policy the statute invokes cannot be ignored to avoid individual hardship. Hard cases yield to make bad law."

Pasadena Japanese Keep Clean Record

SAN FRANCISCO—Not a single Japanese youth, either boy or girl, was found to be delinquent in the survey of Pasadena that the Council of Social Agencies is now making.

Nippon Films Please South Sea Islanders

TOKIO—Japan's export of motion picture films to the South Sea Islands which has commenced about July of last year has been increasing remarkably, according to information obtained from those engaged in this line of the South Sea trade.

The exportation was at first made for Japanese residents in this part of the world, but the Japan-made films soon became popular even among the Islanders, with the result that the trade merchants concerned were requested to attach titles written in the native language to the films for the benefit of the native film-goers.

The Japan-made films, chiefly produced by the Shochiku and Nikkatsu, are most popular in Sumatra, Java, Malay and Philippines, according to the traders who visit the islands in the Pacific.

Talk On Forestry Given By Ogawa

A brief but complete outline of the different phases that the field of forestry covers was given by Thos. T. Ogawa, of the Mitsubishi Shoji Kaisha, at the weekly noon luncheon of the Associated Business Men's Club last Wednesday.

Plea For Reduction Of Arms Indorsed

WASHINGTON—Indorsement of President Hoover's plea for the reduction of armaments expenditures was one of the important actions taken by the International Chamber of Commerce which convened here for their biennial convention last week.

The body also decided to recommend a study of the effect of war debts on international trade and to urge eliminations of all trade barriers, including discriminatory tariffs although it approved of embargoes against dumping measures.

The nations of the world were asked by the conference to call an international assembly to study methods of stabilizing silver prices.

JAPAN OFFICIALS ANNOUNCE PLANS FOR NEW BUDGET

Minister Inouye Declares Trade, Financial Conditions Satisfactory; Advocates Continuance of Retrenchment Policy

TO INSPIRE CONFIDENCE

TOKIO—While the government is planning a general budget reduction to be presented at the next session of the Imperial Diet, political observers feel that the cabinet members are making a strong effort to inspire the people with confidence in the financial stability of the country.

The statement made by Finance Minister Junnosuke Inouye in a recent address is considered an especially reassuring appeal that will brighten the outlook and allay the fears of the financial leaders as well as the people in general.

Conditions Satisfactory

The Finance Minister declared that the financial and trade conditions here are very satisfactory. "Of course, this satisfactory condition is comparative," he stated. "We must remember that we have carried out the gigantic and perilous task of raising the ban on the export of gold about an year and six months ago. None of the dreadful things anticipated prior to the lifting of the ban has happened."

The continuation of the retrenchment policy initiated by the Hamaguchi government was firmly advocated by the Finance Minister. His statement concerning this policy, its achievement and its necessity is as follows:

To Hasten Reconstruction

"Our future task is to readjust our financial world in order that the functions of the convertible currency system will be carried on smoothly. For this purpose, the continuation of the retrenchment policy is absolutely necessary. That policy is bound to hasten the work of reconstruction in financial circles.

"Efforts to reduce production through rationalization have succeeded to a considerable extent and many industries have laid new and firm foundations. However, we must be content with the success already achieved in this respect. There is much room for further readjustment on a much larger scale."

Expenses Curtailed

A general plan for the reduction of budget which includes curtailment of expenses in many expenditures was decided by the committees last week end and will be presented at the next session of the Imperial Diet.

Minister Junnosuke Inouye who holds the portfolio of finances in the Wakatsuki cabinet held the same position in the Hamaguchi ministry which recently resigned due to the continued ill-health of the former premier.

Trans-Pacific Hop Receives Setback

Yoshihara's Plane Damaged After Drifting 4 Hours Off Shimushiro

TOKIO—Seiji Yoshihara, Japan's Lindbergh, who is now attempting a trans-Pacific flight by way of northern Japan, the Aleutian Islands and Alaska, received a severe setback Thursday when his plane was damaged after drifting four hours off the Coast of Shimushiro Island.

Taking off from Shana, Iturup Island in the Kuriles, early Thursday morning, Yoshihara ran into a fog bank and landed off the coast. The Hakuho Maru came to a timely rescue picking him up after he had been drifting in his plane for four hours.

Returns To Nemuro

His seaplane badly damaged, the Japanese aviator planned to return to Nemuro where he will seek to repair his plane. If unable to do so there, Yoshihara will undoubtedly be forced to return to Tokio.

Yoshihara left here on May 4 and up to the time of his unfortunate accident had successfully negotiated three legs of his proposed flight. He was piloting a light-all-metal Junkers seaplane.

ACES HANG UP THIRD STRAIGHT

PORTLAND—Portland Aces hung up their third straight win in a 6-1 game last Sunday, marked by fast playing from start to finish. Paul Abe was nicked for three hits and a lone tally was scored on an error after two away.

Takeuchi had a perfect day with a single and a double. Hard hitting Toshiy Shimizu was whiffed twice in a row.

The Aces will make a trip to Puget Sound during the vacation and will probably tackle some class "B" teams to size up their strength. With nearly airtight fielding, the Aces show strong offense but the pitching staff seems a little weak.

THE BITTER DREGS

Aristide Briand is today tasting the bitter dregs of defeat. A comparatively unknown man in the realms outside of France has been elected to the highest post with which that republic could honor its distinguished statesmen and diplomats, to which the veteran diplomat in international affairs recently aspired.

The mighty are ever in a precarious position. In the disharmony and envy that rule the minds of men all over the world, those who have with a bitter fight attained a certain position of prominence, become the target of all those who have been left by the wayside. Very seldom has a person been elected to a high post who has achieved distinction in the battle of personalities and policies. More often it is some unobtrusive person who is suddenly lifted to the glory of a high role due to the machinations of partisan leaders.

But this surely cannot be attributed to be the chief factor in the defeat suffered by Aristide Briand. In the open ballot in the French Chamber of Deputies, Briand received an overwhelming majority to support his policies. In the secret ballot for the presidency, the foreign minister failed to gain the vote of confidence for these same policies that his election to the office of the chief executive of the nation would have meant.

Without any insinuations which are disgusting revelations of the true character of the insinuator, it is clear that the dominating man in European politics has lost prestige among his compatriots. Although some would like to see in his defeat the repudiation of his foreign policies, it would be a hyperbolic statement without any basis or facts whatever to support it.

It is the psychology of the French people rather than the desires of any one man or group that has dominated the foreign policies of that nation. It is a psychology that has been formulated through the years of international diplomatic and martial triumphs and defeats. One can quite safely predict that the changes in France's foreign policy, if any, will be slight and relatively unimportant.

Briand, on the other hand, has almost single-handed achieved success in international affairs. His ideals are of a high type when they do not concern the interests of his nation, which after all, all statesmen must consider as the primary purpose in present-day diplomacy. There may come a time when nations will unselfishly consider the best interests of the world instead of their own little domain, but that time has not yet come, nor will it arrive in the near future.

Briand had a big share in making possible the success of the Treaty of Paris, popularly known as the Kellogg-Briand peace pact to outlaw war. His idea of a United States of Europe is a commendable one which will bring him undying fame, should he be able to make his dreams materialize.

It was unfortunate, indeed, that the great European peace advocate could not have climaxed his long and brilliant career by being honored with the highest homage France could pay him. However, while he is tasting the bitter dregs of defeat, there lie ahead many difficult tasks which require the courage and intellect of a great statesman.

The bitter dregs of defeat can easily be changed into the divine nectar of victory.

THE RAY OF HOPE

Through a maze of confusion and chaos, it is a gratifying sight to perceive the rays of a bright future. Today Spain is passing through a crisis beclouded by this maze of confusion and chaos, but nevertheless far-sighted men can see through it all the dawn or radiant promises.

The lesson history has taught to all cannot be ignored. Down through the ages, history has left record of the tumult and rioting that reign after a revolutionary upheaval, whatever form that upheaval may have taken. The justification of such sudden evolutions, whether in form of government, laws or ideas, or even a combination of them all, lies in the results obtained after a sufficient period of trial. Today Spain is passing through this critical stage of trial and experimentation and it is as yet too early to condemn or applaud any isolated act that may by itself appear to warrant violent condemnation or hearty applause.

One could deplore the action of the furious mobs who scatter seeds of horrible disorder and riot. One could feel bitter at the outrages committed against the Catholic Church in Spain. One could look with repulsion on personal attacks made against a member of one faction or the other. And yet, students of history know full well that all such acts have not been without precedent. If they be not inevitable reactions attributed to hysteria in such periods of nervous tension, they can be attributed to the unfortunate frailties of humankind that make unrestrained men and women turn to beasts.

Another factor to consider is that oftentimes these deplorable acts occur as a natural result of the swinging of the pendulum from one extreme to the other. It is unfortunate that there is such a law, since all the noble-minded religious leaders have made and are making valiant efforts to combat the recurrence of such undesirable reactions. But the cruel law of justice seems to overcome too often the noble law of mercy and forgiveness.

The consolation lies in the fact that there are fundamental causes for such undesirable reactions. If the leaders of Spain and the Spanish republic realize as they undoubtedly do that progress can be made by pursuing the happy medium of the Greek philosophers where the pendulum swings neither too far to the right nor too far to the left, there can be no fear for the glorious future of that country. Then the atrocious acts that seem so intolerable today will become the boon of tomorrow.

It is unfortunate that each man, each group and each nation has to learn his own lesson through his own experiences and mistakes and not profit by the examples of other men, other groups and other nations. Spain, too, therefore will necessarily be forced to learn her own lesson that history has repeatedly tried to teach.

Whatever the condition of present day Spain may be, one must remember that undoubtedly she has made a step toward the right direction, and therein beams the ray of hope, the augury of a renaissance of Spain, to regain in another manner the eminent position she once held in the parliament of nations.

A HEARTY WELCOME

While the various organizations of the city are welcoming Consul Uchiyama and his charming family, the younger generation of this city and vicinity also wish to extend to the new representative of the Japanese government the heartiest welcome and wishes for success in his official tasks and profitable enjoyment out of his extra-official, social life while in this great Pacific Northwest.

The younger generation know that one of the most important tasks of a consul for Japan is to promote the friendly relations between the country he represents and the country where he is stationed. Therefore, the younger generation are more than glad to welcome the new consul, for their high ideals and responsibility are identical with those of the official representative from Japan. On this stand the younger generation who are on the whole American citizens are united with this distinguished diplomat from their fathers' country.

Shoulder to shoulder they will work for the advancement of these high ideals. It is a noble task worthy of noble souls. Therefore, the second generation are willing to do everything in their power to aid and cooperate with the new consul, his staff, or any group that cherish the same ideals.

Therefore, the second generation extends to Consul Uchiyama their heartiest greetings and hopes for the greatest success of his endeavors during his stay here.

MISTAKEN IMPRESSION

Unconsciously everyone forms many mistaken impressions. It is to be regretted but cannot be helped. However, for any to create opportunities so that people will form mistaken impressions is a base act that can never be condoned. Anyone that does such a deplorable act is a cad.

The far-reaching effects of such intentional act cannot be ignored. Starting from the mental collapse of the individual himself, the evil effects spread to the group or the society he may represent. But the greatest harm that results, however, is the reflection it casts on the innocent third party.

How many lives are ruined by idle, thoughtless words! Without knowing it, people have led innocent souls down the fast road to destruction by their seemingly innocent remarks. One casual remark may be sufficient to start the ball rolling.

How much more despicable it is to make intentionally such remarks or try to create false impressions, whatever they may concern. There is no word in the English language to describe any person afflicted with such a mental disease.

The chances of success does not depend upon a lucky break. Life is no gamble. Opportunity comes only after effort is made to welcome it.

It is not just fine clothes and manners which make for real nobility. The stamp of real nobility is a nobleness of character.

Fools there may be plenty but there is no greater than the fool who will fool himself into fooling that the others are the fools.

A sense of values is highly essential if we are to know what is worth while and what is not.

Water Or Death!

By SATOSHI HOSHI

Patrick Henry a famous speech-maker who spoke against the Stamp Act said, "Give me liberty or give me death." What would he have said today if he was living?

Believe it or not, folks, he would have said, "Give me water or give me death." By golly, you'll be saying that, too, on hot days like these.

Oh mammie! If I get thirsty and drink plenty, it's a wonder that I don't get drunk and be put behind the bars where I can feed myself on candy.

When kids see me drinking they would think I'm swallowing the fountain or something. That surely embarrasses me but it can't be like a car at a filling station getting ten gallons of water. Why there wouldn't be no Satoshi, then. Say I would be in a hospital yelling as loud as I could, walking up every living thing in the neighborhood with them thinking I'm crazy trying to reach above high "C".

SALMAGUNDI

By W. T. S.

"GO EAST, young man, go East!" That's the advice that Roy Shiomi gives to aspiring second generation youths.

The J. S. C. had him up to their clubhouse for dinner last weekend and heard an interesting account of his Boston Experiences.

"THE JAPANESE are received much more favorably in the East than on the Pacific Coast," asserts Shiomi, who is a Tau Beta Pi.

To would-be engineers he has this to say:

"Study German! The best books, the highest authorities, in all science and mathematics are written in that language. A knowledge of German is a great advantage to students of technology."

AS AN EXPERT in refrigeration engineering, Shiomi is leaving soon for Japan.

Among his amusing incidents while attending the Massachusetts Institute of Technology was the time he applied, with more nerve than skill, for a job as a cook to help pay expenses.

"Fortunately the boss was a lonely engineer and not particular," declares Shiomi. "When he wanted soup, all I had to do was to open a can of tomato soup. But you should have seen me after that, cook book in one hand, exploring the secrets of the culinary art. I'm pretty good at it now...."

WE WERE looking at the Iota Sigma Pi pin that Iku Arizumi was displaying.

FRANK YAMA: "What's that?"

IKU: "Iota Sigma Pi."

YAMA: "What honorary is that?"

IKU: "Chemistry honorary."

YAMA: "Say, I'm going to make that some day!"

IKU: "How nice! It's a girls' honorary."

ENGLISH, as you know, is derived from many tongues. Sanskrit, Latin Greek, German, Old Saxon, French and Italian are among the many languages that have words to make up the vocabulary of "English as she is spoke."

Even the less familiar Persian, Arabic, Hebrew, Javanese, American Indian, Chinese and Japanese have contributed.

Among the Japanese words that have found their way into English dictionaries are jinriksha, jiu-jitsu, kimono, harakiri, mikado, kago, yen, koto, samisen, samurai, bushido, sake, shogun, geisha.

AT THE MOTHERS and daughters banquet of the G. S. G. at the Methodist Church last week, the Rev. Y. Yamaka spoke humorously:

Radio and Talkies Bring Music Close To People's Homes

Teru Watanabe, Young Singer, Does Not View Jazz With Horror As Many Artists Do

GRADUATE OF FRANKLIN

Several recent entertainments marked the reappearance of one of Seattle's popular entertainers, Teru Watanabe. To her goes the distinction of being the only Japanese coloratura soprano in Seattle at present. Her sweet, high-pitched voice is of rare quality not usually found among Japanese.

Teru claims Seattle as her home town and is a graduate of Franklin High School. She counts among her hobbies swimming, hiking, and fishing, with a desire to learn how to play tennis thrown in for good measure. Like most girls she harbors a hope to become a nurse although she has no definite ideas as to her future.

Teru Watanabe is a jolly person with a radiant personality who does not view jazz with horror as many who appreciate classical music are inclined to do. "The radio in the home and the talking screen in the theatre have done more to bring music closer to the hearts of the people than anything has ever done before," she believes.

Her favorite singer among the women is Madame Galli-Curci with John Mc Cormick reigning supreme as her favorite male singer.

"In my opinion everyone is born with some love for music and with some natural talent," stated Miss Watanabe, "only some train and develop that natural talent to a degree higher than that attained by the average person."

As an example she pointed out the case of Galli-Curci, who went through untold sufferings and years of training to become the great singer that she is today.

Hear Ye! Yakima

By MARY SAKIMURA

Last Saturday, Dr. S. Kinoshita from Fife came to Yakima on business and also to visit relatives at the Sakimura home.

Motion pictures, showing life in old and new Tokio, with recent developments in Japan, were shown Tuesday evening at the Japanese Congregational Church by H. Okuda and K. Takeuchi of Seattle. A special invitation to attend was issued to all teachers and students interested in life and progress in Japan.

During the last two weeks the children of over ten families in Yakima were afflicted with measles.

Getting a good start for the season, the Yakima Indians defeated Wenatchee last Sunday, 6-5. Yakima athletic managers have been deciding whether the Seattle Nippons should meet the Indians on Memorial Day.

Bellevue News

By Mitsue Shiraishi

The Seinenka members had the privilege of hearing the very interesting resume of Miss Sato Kawaguchi's recent trip to Japan at the last meeting. Her talk was very much enjoyed by all present and it was certainly too bad for those who could not be present to miss such a fine opportunity of hearing about Japan.

Miss Kawaguchi also spoke when the moving picture of the reconstruction of Tokyo was shown at the clubhouse on Wednesday evening. The movie was attended by both Japanese and Americans.

The plans for the annual graduation banquet which is to be held on May 17th at the clubhouse are now being appointed chairman of entertainment full swing. Katie Harot'ka has tainment and the invitation committee while Mitsue Shiraishi heads the dinner committee.

Graduates to be honored are Frank T. Yabuki who graduates from the U. of W., Akira Aramaki and Joe Mitsuzawa from the Bellevue High School. Both boys have taken active in athletics and school activities.

Fuyokai Fotos

The annual Mothers and Daughters Banquet sponsored by Fuyokai and held this year at the downtown Y. W. C. A. on Mother's Day proved to be a very successful and enjoyable affair.

Mitsu Fukano, the chairman, deserves much credit and appreciation for her untiring efforts and capable management.

Down from Denny Hall they came—a little boy and a little girl. He was perhaps four years old and his about a year younger. He came racing by on his little tricycle, and the little girl valiantly following behind on foot shouted as she passed: "He's my boy friend!" Some people don't need a college education!

Winter has went! Spring has really sprung, and as a consequence girls blossom out with new clothes. Aiko Katsumo, Hana Ishigami and Hannah Kosake have been seen wearing the dullest outfits. But it's always papa who pays!

Random thoughts: The weather we've been having would pass for the real California brand. One of our worthy instructors was bemoaning the fact that he had spoiled a nice party in the Sylvan Theater. Really, he should be quite ashamed of himself! Ever so often someone asks me if my home town is even on the map and I love it. About five more weeks and all this agony will be over. Then homeward to God's country where men are men and women are something else.
