

Violators of Draft Laws Subject to Fine, Imprisonment

Nisei men, in accepting advice of older people in regard to the draft, should exercise care so as not to violate selective service laws, Guy Robertson, project director, declared today. Any violation of the provisions of the act is punishable by imprisonment of not more than five years or by a fine not exceeding $10,000 or both, according to section 11 of the selective service act.

Nisei men of military age were warned last week by Dillon G. Myer, director of the WRA, that selective service boards should be notified of changes of address. Any changes in physical, occupational or dependency status should also be reported.

Forms for filing changes of address may be obtained at the selective service registration desk which has been moved to the room formerly occupied by the industries section in the Sentinel building. Assistance in filling of questionnaires and information regarding selective service may be obtained there. Birth certificates should be taken to the office by new registrants, Helen Morio'a, clerk in charge, said.

All persons receiving orders for induction are asked to report at the registration desk.
