

Residents Told They Can Actively Aid Return to California

Residents can actively aid in the restoration of their rights to return to California by asking Caucasian friends in that state to send letters favoring their return to Henry L. Stimson, secretary of war, and John J. McCloy, assistant secretary of war, Washington, D. C.; Maj. Gen. Charles M. Bonesteel, Presidio, San Francisco, Calif.; and Dillon S. Myer, WRA, Washington, D. C., according to the Rev. Herbert V. Nicholson of Pasadena, Calif., who visited the center over the weekend.

"The letters from the Caucasians to the persons listed would be more effective if they will stipulate that they would provide temporary or permanent housing and work for the evacuees and give evidence of community acceptance," the Rev. Nicholson said.

"The feeling in California is changing in your favor. The general public is beginning to see the injustice of keeping you people out when it is no longer a military necessity to do so. However, the war department cannot take action until it has tangible proof in the form of letters that evacuees will be well-treated when they return," he added.

If any resident in Heart Mountain feels hesitant about asking his friends in California to write the letters, the Rev. Donald K. Toriumi will take care of the service if the names are turned in to him at his home at 30-9-F.
