Hello Mally,

How's everything? I'm finally in my temporary home for the duration. 'Bay,' what a place. It's real hot and dusty. We arrived ~~to~~ in Parker after a long ten hour ride and from there we were transferred to a Pacific Electric bus and rode for 18 miles on a real dusty unpaved road. We registered and took a physical exam and were taken to our new house. (1 room) We received a bed and blanket each. Then we had the job of filling a bag like thing with Bay to take the place of a mattress. Bay, we "hit the bag" truly now.

It was like playing house to settle down. After all what can you keep neat looking in a single room. The barrack is divided into four and a family with more than five occupy one room each. Less than five share rooms. We have all friends in the camp

We have breakfast at 7-8
 Lunch 12-1
 Dinner
 Supper 6-7

We make a joke of trying to be the first one in line. But every one caught on to the trick and there's a whole line of people waiting about 15 minutes before time.

I went to the young Peoples Worship Service Sunday. There I met the people from Baptist. You'd think I could meet all my friends, but that isn't at all true. It's so scattered, and I haven't hardly met any body but the people on our block and those there's not all from Bayle Heights. It's so hot I don't even feel like exploring this joint. The roads are barrack so that's one good thing. Whew! it's so hot!

The henjo's had no partitions at first and you can imagine the rest. They did fix it but no doors

o|o|o|o|o| there's windows that you could look through too.

The showers are all lined up and no privacy at all. I go with Mrs. Inouye and we take turns watching for each other. We haven't missed one yet. There's no hot water as yet and the water stinks like — Lots of people are having stomach trouble account of the water. I suppose everything will be improved as time passes on. I hope any way.

The foods getting good now.

good any way.

The afternoon's are so hot
the radio doesn't even come
on. The heat waves affect it.
I could get KFI & KNX I don't know about the others.

Just the same there's no place like home. You realize the value of all the things you leave behind. Including bath. We do our washing
by hand, and what a job!
Everything is muddy. My hair is even muddy like. And my face is all sun burned etc.

I'd better be signing off now
and please write and let me know what's cookin in L. A.
and school. O.K.

Bye now

Always,
Shary.
