Dear Mrs. Whitney,

I was very happy to hear from you - all about Princess and Home. Truthfully, I hadn't expected an answer to my short note, and so I was doubly pleased.

How are you and Mr. Whitney? And Princess, too? I hope you're all fine.

My, but Princess must certainly be a headache to you! Have you noticed yet what a stubborn little thing she can be? I often laugh when I think of all the mean little things she used to do. - I had to laugh when I read of her fetching the bunnies, but I felt 57 trouble you must have gone thro' to send them to us.

Are you still going to your Grey Ladies' meetings? I had hoped to see you at least once in your uniform.

Mrs. Whitney, I know you're terribly busy always, and altho' I feel very proud when I receive your letters, I shan't mind one bit if you'd rather write to Fumiko and me together instead of separately. And I'll write you all about what little happens and try not to repeat Fumiko.

For this time, 'Bye and Love,
Louise

58 sorry, too, for I know how fond you are of little animals. I do hope she doesn't scare them all away from your garden.

Altho' I miss Pheeny, I'm certainly glad she isn't here. We are having another hot dust-storm today. We should be used to them by now, but, oh, how we dread them!

This afternoon we girls tried our luck at fishing. Near by there is a little river. In spite of its muddiness, it is quite beautiful with trees and other greenery surrounding it. The river is greenish in color, and here and there little ripples appear where the fish come to the surface. - Our total catch was nine (with no thanks to me)

Our boots surely come in handy.
Thank you very much for all the
