Introduced in Current Session of Congress

WASHINGTON, D.C. — What may be the first major break in the immigration and naturalization legislation is reported for action by the Senate on June 30 with the appointment of a special subcommittee to study all bills on the subject introduced in the current session of Congress.

Two measures supported by JACL ADC, which will extend naturalization privileges to resident aliens of Japanese ancestry, have been passed by the House and sent to the Senate where they have been referred to the Senate Judiciary subcommittee on immigration and naturalization.

The appointment of the subcommittee, which is expected to take action on some form of naturalization legislation, was announced Wednesday by Senate leaders.

Other members of the special committee are Senators John O’N. Eastland, D. Miss., and Sen. Forrest C.urnal, D. Ind.

Miles Manooka, national legislative director of the American Civil Liberties Union, said the appointment of the McGrath subcommittee "is a step forward in preserving the rights of American citizens and others who are now ineligible for citizenship, under the new law, to become naturalized."
Bucks County's Welcome House: Novelist, Publisher Husband Provide Haven for 'Unadaptable', Children of Mixed Parentage

Perkasie, Pa.

A large, friendly stone house in Pennsylvania's Bucks county is providing a partial answer to the problem of "unadaptable" children of mixed races and-Christian parentage.

The shelter for the solitary entered Pearl Buck, the world famous author who lives upon the estate owned by herself and her husband, Richard J. Walsh, president of John Day Company of New York.

Here, children of Asian-American parentage, unable to find adoptive parents, can be welcomed. In Bucks county's rolling farm country, children of Japanese-American and Chinese parents or other mixed ancestors will find a stimulating atmosphere as well as encouragement to take pride in their "double heritage."

There is no place for "unoptionals." Indeed, it was partly with the idea of keeping such children out of institutions that Wel eome House was established.

For these youngsters offer special problems in that the cause of their mixed ancestry is an鞑lishing aspect in their cases.

The policy of mixed ancestry is frequently children of superior intelligence.

A brochure recently produced by Welcome House says: "The children who are frequently have backgrounds of the cognate races, being born out of outstanding education and intelligence. But they are to be instructed that mingling of these races, at least within the U.S.A., tends to occur mainly at the upper levels. The philosophy therefore is to shuck highest potential of these children and to educate them the la plus logic and psychic tests."

"Education is not available for general adoption, these children on the individual basis, where their intellectual capacity is not that of the IQ."

"The potential intellectual indi-

The Tyranny of a Legend

A young American-born woman of Japanese ancestry goes on trial for her life in a Federal courtroom in San Francisco on July 5. Mrs. Ito Toguri d’Aquino, a graduate of UCLA, is charged with wartime treason for alleged propaganda broadcasts to American troops in the Pacific. Her guilt or innocence of the charge will be determined by a jury of her peers after the prosecution and the defense have presented their cases.

She is the victim of a tyranny of a legend. Few Americans will recognize the name of Mrs. Ito Toguri d’Aquino, but the phrase “Tokyo Rose” is perhaps the most famous.

Although she was known as “Tokyo Rose,” her broadcasts to American soldiers on the Pacific Front were the work of a network of propagandists working behind the scenes in the United States. The broadcasts, which were heard throughout the war by American troops, were designed to undermine morale and propaganda efforts in the Pacific region.

The broadcasts were not just a tool of propaganda, however. They were also a means of conveying critical information to American soldiers. In many cases, the information provided by “Tokyo Rose” was more accurate than that provided by official U.S. military sources.

The broadcast was named after the female announcer, who was known simply as “Tokyo Rose.” The name came from her use of the phrase “Tokyo Rose” to refer to the propaganda programs she was broadcasting.

The broadcast was a popular choice for many American soldiers, who would often tune in to listen to the latest news and updates from home.

The broadcast was terminated after the Japanese surrender in 1945, and the female announcer was later arrested and charged with treason.

In the end, “Tokyo Rose” was found guilty of treason and sentenced to death. However, the sentence was commuted to life in prison, and she was eventually released on parole.

The broadcast was a powerful reminder of the importance of propaganda in times of war, and it remains a symbol of the power of the spoken word in inspiring fear and division.

"I'm not doing anything, Mr. Commissioner."

"You're not?"

"No."

Bob Watanabe Reaches Finals Of National AAU Sprint Event

FRESNO, Calif.—Robert Watanabe of Los Angeles, running in qualification heat 2, clinched the title of "world's fastest Nisei" at the 100-yard track and field championships here on June 24.

Brooklyn Dodgers Eyes Suisin Nisei Harle

Brooklyn Dodgers are interested in a Nisei pitcher, Junius Sakuma, a former player for the Los Angeles Athletic Club in California from Japan where he served with the 106th Infantry. Pitching for an Air Force team while on occupation service in Japan, Sakuma compiled a brilliant record against both Nisei and American teams and received a number of offers from semi-pro and professional teams. Sakuma chose the Brooklyn Dodgers and will go into spring training in 1956 to try out for a spot in Brooklyn's club.

Since his return from Japan, Sakuma has been pitching for Suisin in the Northern California Nisei baseball league. Last season he allowed seven runs in 15 innings and this year he is leading the league in a number of categories.

Masaoka, Ishikawa Consider JACL Role in FEPC Campaign

Plans for Two-Year Legislative Program

Discussed by Officials

SACRAMENTO, Calif. — Plans for a two-year legislative program to promote the framework of the JACL and other minority group organizations for FEPC were discussed here by Joe Grant Masaoka and Sam Ishikawa, regional directors for the California District of the JACL, who called upon state legislators on June 25 and 24 to seek explanation for the recent failure of the state FEPC measure by the legislature.

Assemblyman Glenn M. Anderson of the 36th state district in Los Angeles told Masaoka and Masahawa that "FEPC votes are made before the election."

Legislators who stand for what their voters want have to be electable because FEPC measure may set conditions on such issues as FEPC at committee hearings, Anderson said. The Los Angeles assemblyman told the JACL representatives that candidates must be on election issues before the election.

Assemblyman B. Delbert Morris, 3rd district of Los Angeles, asked Masaoka and Ishikawa for assistance in FEPC fund drives.
