Report Salt Lake Nisei Only Survivor of Crash of Navy Plane on Island Off Coast

A Navy flier, Richard K. Akutagawa of Salt Lake City, is the only survivor of the crash of a Gruman Guardian plane in a gully on uninhabited San Clemente island, 60 miles from San Diego, on March 27, his relatives were informed this week.

Two men, natives of Denver and Sedalia, Mo., were found dead in the wreckage of the craft, largest carrier plane in naval service. Cause of the crash was not determined.

The plane was reported missing on March 27 and was not found until March 29 when searchers located it on the island off the Southern California coast.

Airman Akutagawa, whose rank was not given in dispatches, sustained multiple head and arm cuts and shock and was reported in fair condition. He was brought to San Diego by destroyer.

In Salt Lake City, Mrs. Mas Hondo, a sister, said the family "really had been worried" about the flier. A telegram from the navy notified her on March 29 that he had "sustained minor injuries."

Also living in Salt Lake are the airman's father, Fred Akutagawa, and a sister, Mrs. James Tanimine. Two brothers and a sister live in Chicago.

Airman Akutagawa enlisted in the navy two and a half years ago. He lived in Salt Lake City from 1942 until his enlistment and was a graduate of West high school.

The Marshall trust was created under the will of the late Robert Marshall for the purpose of safeguarding and advancing the cause of civil liberties in the United States.

Masao Satow, JACL director, indicated that the contribution would be used to push the JACL's program to facilitate evacuation claims payments.

Joint Committee on Omnibus Bill Hears Common Council Plea for Liberalized Measure

WASHINGTON, D. C.—In a surprise move, the Joint Senate-House Committee studying omnibus immigration and naturalization legislation this week recessed its hearings until April 9, according to the JACL Anti-Discrimination Committee.

The Committee originally intended to conclude hearings following the testimony of the Association of Immigration and Nationality Lawyers on March 22.

It was almost 4 o'clock before association witnesses appeared to comment on a 31-page report they had prepared analyzing the complex omnibus bills.

The report, which questions many provisions of the bills, was offered by Gustav Lazarus, association president. Richard Arens, staff director for the Senate subcommittee, said he wished to cross examine the witness on many of the statements in the report.

This led to a general conference between committee members with the upshot that the joint committee refused to accept the report for the record until Mr. Arens could cross examine the witness.

After an informal poll of the committee, Rep. Louis E. Graham (R., Pa.), presiding at the session, scheduled another meeting of the joint committee April 9, following a House recess for Easter, to permit a thorough study of the association report.

Earlier, the joint committee heard Read Lewis, executive director for the Common Council for American Unity.

Mr. Lewis offered a technical analysis of the omnibus bills "with the hope they will prove helpful... to the maintenance of the humanitarian traditions which have made America what she is today—the leader of the free world."

He said one of the "dominant factors in the world is the emergence of the Asian bloc of nations" and said he was pleased to see the bills take the "tremendously important step of doing away in part with racial discrimination."

However, he said the bills have "not gone the whole way, unfortunately," by setting up a special quota of 100 for all persons of Asian ancestry living outside of Asia who wish to enter the United States.

He described this as "very bad and very harmful."

Mr. Arens asked Mr. Lewis if he realized how many persons of Asian ancestry live in South America and could enter this country with the same quota-free status of other Latin Americans unless those of Asian ancestry were placed under some type of quota.

Mr. Lewis: "I realize perfectly well how many there are... but this bill is not only a reflection on Asians, but a reflection on South Americans and divides their peoples into two groups."

Later, when Mr. Lewis said it would be more realistic to revise quota basing immigration percentages upon the year 1920, Mr. Arens asked whether Mr. Lewis realized that "since 1920 a disproportionate number of immigrants have come here from eastern and southern Europe."

Mr. Lewis: "What do you mean by 'disproportionate'?... Was 1920 a year of perfection?"

He added that it was his hope "not that we will freeze what we are, but preserve the process which have made us great."

Simon H. Rifkind, former United States district judge, testifying on behalf of several Jewish organizations, termed "that provision good which takes out racial conceptions in immigration and naturalization in line with the principles of humanity and brotherhood."

He, too, though, argued against the special quota for Asians living outside of the Asian nations.

The JACL Anti-Discrimination Committee also has urged that such Asians be admitted to this country under the general immigration regulations governing other nationals of those countries, rather than being treated as a special category of immigrants.

Judge Rifkind urged the joint committee to "recognize that through the great freshening stream of immigration for more than 300 years America has grown great and strong," and not to assume that immigration is a source of weakness rather than strength.

Evacuee Claims Compromise Bill Given Senate

Sen. McCarran's Bill Is Similar to House Proposal by Celler

WASHINGTON, D. C.—A companion measure to the evacuation claims compromise bill has been introduced in the Senate by Sen. Pat McCarran (D., Nev.), the JACL ADC announced this week.

The bill would permit the attorney general to settle claims for $2,500 or 75 per cent, whichever figure is less, on the basis of sworn statements and available records. Compromise settlements would be optional for claimants who, under the bill, either could choose such a settlement or ask to have claims adjudicated.

The McCarran bill is identical to the measure introduced two weeks ago in the House by Rep. Emanuel Celler (D., N.Y.), and first proposed last year by the JACL ADC.

Mike Masaoka, national JACL ADC legislative director, currently is in Los Angeles conferring with other national JACL ADC officials on the compromise legislation. The JACL ADC also expects to testify on the compromise measure when congress holds hearings on it.

Coordinating Council Plans Forum on Employment Issues

LOS ANGELES—The four chapters of the Los Angeles JACL Coordinating Council unanimously endorsed Proposition C on the ballot for the April 3 election at a meeting held on March 26 at the Miyako Hotel Conference Room, it was announced by retiring chairman, Bill Takei.

"Among other things, passage of this proposition, which would authorize a bond issue, would eliminate slums, which in turn would reduce crime, juvenile delinquency, disease, and taxes, and at the same time give our city a face lifting," said Takei.

The council is planning to conduct a public employment forum for the benefit of summer graduates and others interested in occupational opportunities. The forum will be arranged by members of the East Los Angeles chapter.

A speakers bureau has also been established by the council with member chapters to provide speakers available to appear before clubs and organizations, with engagements channeled through the regional office.

Other matters discussed were the recently held National JACL Bowling Tournament, the Nisei Week Festival, and maintenance of the JACL Club Service Bureau.

Federal Judge Recognizes U. S. Citizenship of Nisei Strandee

Judge Yankwich Rules Uyeno Did Not Lose American Nationality

SEATTLE, Wash. — The American citizenship of a Nisei who voted in the 1947 Japanese election was recognized by U.S. District Judge Leon R. Yankwich on March 23.

Judge Yankwich ruled that Hichiro Uyeno, 24, did not give up his U.S. citizenship when he voted in the election because the voting was done under pressure.

In a written decision Yankwich said he disagreed with some federal judges who have held that Nisei who voted in the Japanese general elections during the occupation did not lose their citizenship thereby since Japan is not a foreign state.

"Any country other than our own is a foreign state," the judge said, "and I rule solely on the ground that his participation in the election was not voluntary."

Judge Yankwich said that the "pressures urging him to vote" made Uyeno feel that it was a "command." Uyeno had said he feared the loss of his ration book.

Speakers recalled her countless services to organizations and individuals. She was an active member of the social action committee and professional women's group of the First Congregational Church, the NAACP, FOR and the Portland JACL.

Placer County JACL Surpasses 1950 Total

PENRYN, Calif. — The Placer County JACL chapter already has surpassed last year's membership figures by signing up 265 members in the drive to date.

According to Kelvin Mitani who headed the membership campaign, Koichi Uyeno of Loomis took sign-up honors with 33 while Chapter President Frank Hironaka had 30 and Hike Yego of Penryn turned in 24 names.

"The pressures exercised upon the plaintiff were so great that his participation in the election was not his voluntary act," Judge Yankwich said.

The judge pointed out that coercion did not have to be of a physical nature.

"... in the realm of human action, modern psychology teaches us that group and individual pressures acting upon the needs of a person may be so overpowering in their nature as to overcome individual will and accomplish more effectively what physical violence could not," he said.

Uyeno was born in Bellevue, Washington. He was taken to Japan by his parents when he was four and one-half years of age.

His father died in Japan and his mother still lives there.

Uyeno was permitted to come to the United States to testify at his own trial.

He now lives in Seattle with a brother.

The Nisei was represented by A. L. Wirin and Fred Okrand of Los Angeles.

Ferenbaugh, 7th Division Commander.

Valuable information is being recorded in the intelligence office daily as Lieutenant Sugiyama interrogates prisoners and moves into guerilla infested territory seeking enemy information, company officers said.

Lieutenant Sugiyama entered the Army in April of 1946 and attended the Officer's Candidate School at Fort Benning, Georgia. While the 7th Division was on occupation duty in Japan, he served as a repatriation officer.

West Coast States Express Interest in Obtaining Nisei Office Workers From Hawaii

By LAWRENCE NAKATSUKA

HONOLULU—Up till recently, there has been much brow-knitting over finding jobs for Hawaii's young people, mostly Nisei and Sansei.

The problem was one of having too many job seekers for the number of jobs open. The young people, with little or no work experience, were the age group hardest hit by unemployment.

Now the labor market is opening for them.

Hawaii Urges Citizenship for Issei Residents

WASHINGTON, D. C.—A concurrent resolution from the Hawaiian legislature urging removal of "all racial restrictions on the privilege of naturalization" has been received by Congress, the JACL ADC announced this week.

Read before the Senate, the resolution said, in part:

"Whereas the House of Representatives has recently passed legislation (the JACL ADC-sponsored Walter bill) removing all racial restrictions on the privilege of naturalization, and such legislation is now pending before the Senate, and

"Whereas many of the people who settled in Hawaii were of races formerly ineligible to naturalization, but such ineligibility has been gradually removed by the elimination of racial restrictions against persons of Filipino and Chinese ancestry, and,

"Whereas the remaining racial restrictions on naturalization, particularly against persons of Japanese, Korean and Polynesian ancestry, creates an undesirable situation in Hawaii whereby many residents of long standing who have contributed greatly to the development of Hawaii are denied the privilege of citizenship and of participation in their own government: Now, therefore, be it

"Resolved that the Congress... is hereby respectfully requested to enact into law legislation removing all racial restrictions on the privilege of naturalization."

The resolution was signed by Wilfred Tsukiyama, president of the Hawaiian Senate.

First, the rebuilding of military training facilities in Hawaii is absorbing more of the unemployed than had been anticipated only a short time ago.

Right after World War II, the armed forces closed military installations in the islands so rapidly that the economy slumped to a low level.

The cutback was particularly painful because the civilian population had been accustomed to war-boom prosperity and was not prepared for the shrinkage in military spending. Thousands of workers were laid off at Pearl Harbor navy base and at other military posts.

A series of labor troubles in the basic industries—sugar, pineapple and longshore—worsened the impact upon the community.

With the outbreak of the Korean war, the trend in armed forces cutbacks has been reversed and army, navy, and air force bases are being reactivated now. All this takes manpower which Hawaii has plenty of, although not enough in the skilled trades where the demand is greatest.

In addition to military rearmament, California and other western states have surveyed the labor market in Hawaii with the intention of hiring surplus labor. Top employment officials from the western region visited the islands last December and were encouraged to find the type of manpower available for their needs.

They were interested in both farm labor and non-agricultural labor. Farm labor would come mostly from the 5,000 or so unemployed Filipinos in Hawaii. Arrangements are being made with the immigration service for the transportation of the Filipino aliens to west coast farms.

Nisei young people would be needed for white collar jobs, according to the west coast employment officials. Thousands of high school graduates have entered the Hawaii labor market since the end of World War II but only a portion of them have been placed in gainful employment.

The visiting job specialists were pleased to learn how efficient Nisei white collar workers can become with proper training. They learned from the employment service and from employers that the Nisei are conscientious, neat and industrious.

The visitors returned to the west coast with the promise to send job orders for the young people this spring.

So far the job orders have not arrived but employment service officials here say it is only a matter of time before the labor shortage on the west coast will become so acute, employers will turn to Hawaii for replacements.

Hawaii Nisei generally have not looked to the west coast for jobs till now. Many have been deterred because of reports they have read of racial discrimination against the Japanese, and because of the natural reluctance to leave one's home territory for strange destinations.

Now that the west coast appears ready and even anxious to hire Hawaii's surplus labor, there may be a healthy response among Nisei unemployed to move to the Mainland and seek their fortunes there.

But before the west coast invitation to send manpower is accepted, employment officials here are making a double-check to be reasonably sure that the Nisei who go there will be treated fairly and not be subjected to racial discrimination in employment.

The role in "Westward the Women," a story of 200 young women crossing the plains in 1853 to become frontier brides, was about a Chinese cook but was rewritten to become a Japanese role.

JACL Chapter Wins Use of Oxnard Building

OXNARD, Calif.—It was learned this week that the Ventura County JACL chapter has regained exclusive right to use the 7th Street Recreation Center in Oxnard until 1956.

Toby Otani, league spokesman, said the recreation center property involved had been leased to the JACL for a twenty year period under a resolution passed by the Oxnard City Council in 1936. The property had been used and occupied by the Department of Parks and Recreation during the evacuated absence of the Japanese Americans.

The City Council in 1950 had ordered the commission to vacate, and recreation superintendent Richard Abernathy brought a "friendly" suit to test the validity of the City Council order.

The case was finally heard on Sept. 29, 1950 before Judge Anthony Brazil of Monterey in the Superior Court of Ventura.

Judge Brazil's decision was handed down on March 14 in favor of the JACL, confirming its right to use this property.

Otani, past president of the Ventura County JACL, announced that a general meeting would be held on March 23 to map out a recreation center program. This would be followed by a dinner meeting to celebrate the court victory, he said. Meanwhile, Abernathy stated he would consult with the Recreation Commission as to when the building should be vacated, and whether the Commission would continue to conduct some type of recreation there.

Attorney William A. Reppy represented the Oxnard Recreation Commission, while the JACL was represented by Attorney Francis Gherini. Assisting Otani on the JACL committee in the suit were Nao Takasugi, Tomio Yeto and Tadashi Tokuyama.

speakers included Mike Masaoka, national JACL-ADC legislative director, Momota Okura, Long Beach, Nikkeijin Kai, Katsuma Mukaeda, president of the Japanese Chamber of Commerce of Southern California, Saburo Kido, national JACL legal counsel, and Fred Ikeguchi, past president, Long Beach JACL.

Reviews in Daily Variety, the Hollywood Reporter and other film trade journals this week praised "Go for Broke!" as an outstanding war film.

Eastern Area Council Plans Meet Amid Cherry Blossoms

Rep. Chet Holifield Will Be Speaker Before JACL Group

WASHINGTON, D. C. — The cherry blossoms and delegates to the JACL Eastern District Council's biennial convention will arrive in Washington, by a happy coincidence, at virtually the same time.

The three-day convention will begin Friday, April 6.

The famed Japanese cherry trees that line the tidal basin park area already are beginning to bud, and cherry tree experts in Washington said the blooms should begin appearing around April 3. If so, the trees will be heavy with delicate blossoms when the convention begins.

On opening day convention delegates will visit their respective Congressmen.

Don Komai, president of the Washington JACL chapter, said that a number of delegates already have made arrangements to meet with their representatives and discuss, among other things, the status of legislation sponsored by the JACL ADC.

Rep. Chet Holifield (D., Calif.), will be the principal speaker at the convention, according to co-chairmen, Jun Hino and Dr. George Furukawa, Washington.

General registration for the convention will begin Saturday, April 7, at the convention headquarters in the Hotel Continental. This will be followed by general business sessions.

The day's activities will be high lighted with a panel discussion on "What EDC Chapters Can Do on a Local Level."

Participating in the discussion will be Hal Horiuchi, Washington; Tom Hayashi, New York, national JACL vice president, and Masao Satow, Salt Lake City, national JACL director.

The convention banquet and ball will be held Saturday night.

Sunday, April 8, the convention will wind up with an election of officers, followed by sightseeing, with emphasis on the cherry blossoms.

Convention officials said they expect approximately 100 delegates and boosters from chapters in New York, Boston, Seabrook, N. J.; Philadelphia and Washington.

Portland Chapter Sponsors Talk on Civilian Defense

PORTLAND, Ore.—Five thousand responsible persons will be required to man Portland's civilian defense program, which is now being planned in the event of an atomic attack, according to Capt. John Shum, executive director of the program, in a talk to the Portland JACL March 17.

A capacity audience, with standing room only in the back of the hall, heard Capt. Shum's discussion of Portland's defense program at the Nichiren Church.

Capt. Shum said the city could not be evacuated in the event of an attack.

"Traveling bumper to bumper," he said, "the last car would just be leaving Portland when the first one reached Salt Lake City."

He said the civilian defense program will set up the following departments: survey and supplies, police, traffic, life protection, fire, medical, water bureau, records and communications. He asked volunteers to sign up at the court house, indicating their department preferences.

A movie titled "Pattern of Survival," featuring a talk by Portland's Mayor Dorothy McCullough Lee, showed research work at Bikini; the radiation, heat and blast damages caused by the atomic bomb; and what one should do in case of an atomic attack.

President Signs Bill to Extend GI Brides Act

WASHINGTON, D. C. — The president has signed into law a 12-month extension of the Soldier Brides Act, according to the JACL ADC. This is the first JACL ADC sponsored measure to become law so far during the 82nd Congress.

The law will permit servicemen and veterans to bring Japanese and Korean spouses and minor children into this country, providing marriages occur before March 19, 1952.

Mike Masaoka, national JACL ADC legislative director, said the outbreak of the Korean war, which sent thousands of additional troops to the Far East and delayed many marriages, primarily prompted Congress to approve the extension of a previous soldier brides act which expired in February.

He said he was grateful that Congress thus recognized the right of GIs stationed in the Far East to have the same chance for happiness as other GIs.

The JACL ADC proposed originally a bill effective as long as troops are stationed in the Far East. However, both the House and Senate Judiciary Committees which studied the measure reported that impending action on an omnibus immigration and naturalization measure—with provisions eliminating racial barriers in immigration—make the need for a soldier bride law only temporary.

Soldier brides bills were introduced in both houses—by Sen. Pat McCarran (D., Nev.), in the Senate, and Rep. Francis E. Walter, (D., Pa.), in the House.

Reedley Chapter Plans 1951 Program At Cabinet Meeting

REEDLEY, Calif.—A calendar of events for 1951 was mapped out by the Reedley JACL chapter at a special meeting called by Pres. Mas Sakamoto on March 23 at the home of Toru Ikeda.

The officers voted to hold at least one business meeting every month, not excluding the busy summer months, as has been the practice in past years.

Two April activities of the chapter have been announced as a community picnic on April 15 and a pot luck dinner for new members on April 21.

The dinner program will be planned by Mae Kuroda. Food committee members are Mrs. Terashi Ibara, Mrs. Jiro Togioka, Mrs. Helen Kimura and Mrs. Ann Iwasaki.

New members are currently being signed by Pres. Sakamoto and his committee.

Yo Ishida has been named corresponding secretary.

Capt. Shum's talk for the Issei present.

Dr. Nakata is among 500 doctors attending a civil defense institute at the University of Oregon medical school library. The institute gives information on treatment of atomic injuries, mass casualties and detection of radio activity.

Minnie Oyama announced the chapter's program, as outlined earlier by the 11-man committee which is directing activities of the chapter.

Diary of Relocation Camp Life Will Be Edited for Publication

PHILADELPHIA—A relocation in 1945.

camp diary by Charles Kikuchi, now a psychiatric social worker in Brooklyn, will be edited for publication on a grant from the American Philosophical Society and the University of Pennsylvania.

Dr. Dorothy S. Thomas of the latter school and Donald P. Kent of the University of Connecticut will collaborate with Kikuchi in preparing the manuscript, said to comprise more than 10,000 typewritten pages in its present form.

Dr. Thomas formerly headed the Evacuation and Resettlement Study of the University of California which undertook an exhaustive study of the wartime evacuation and resettlement of Japanese Americans. Kikuchi worked with the group until his army induction

Dr. Thomas is the co-author with Richard Nishimoto of "The Spoilage," a study of segregation at the Tule Lake segregation camp which was published by the University of California.

Kikuchi's diary, kept while he was at the Gila River relocation center in Arizona, has been described by sociologists who have read it as a meticulously detailed record of personal observations on attitude formations and shifting family patterns in a situation of crisis and uncertainty.

Kikuchi is married to dancer Yuriko Amemiya and is the subject of a chapter called "An American with a Japanese Face" in Louis Adamic's book "From Many Lands."

News and Race Designations

A growing practice among metropolitan and daily newspapers is the dropping of racial designations in crime stories. This commendable practice is in keeping with suggestions made by organizations interested in interracial relations.

For instance, in a sentence like "Joseph Jones, Negro, was arrested today for the killing of..." the term "Negro" serves no good purpose. Contrariwise, we do not see "Joseph Jones, white, was arrested today for the killing of..."

The racial tag in crime news does, however, cause great harm. It rouses, among the prejudiced, old racial antagonisms. The unjudicious mind sees the racial tag and immediately identifies the individual with the group. The impact of indiscriminate newspaper usage of racial tags has been evidenced in recent years in outbreaks of violence against persons of Negro and Mexican ancestry. Los Angeles' terrible "zoot-suit" riots of some years back were undoubtedly inspired to some extent by irresponsible, and possibly deliberate, news reportage.

While the responsible daily press, however, shows increasingly the intention of dropping unnecessary racial tags, the minority press has not always been so careful.

In instances wherein crimes have been committed against persons of one minority group by individuals of another, the minority press has sometimes shown an overinclination to designate that other minority. And it thereby reinforces antagonisms between minorities.

The minority press has a specific responsibility in interpreting the minority to the majority. It has, at the same time, the responsibility of seeing that its own group does not discriminate against another.

It is an unfortunate truth that sometimes persons who are themselves the victims of prejudice can find no outlet for their feelings of humiliation except another less favored minority.

In recent months a number of crimes against persons of Japanese ancestry have been committed on the west coast. In some instances the persons apprehended have been of another minority group.

Designation of these individuals by their ancestry in some press accounts has led to rising indignation against the entire group. While the crimes are regrettable, the introduction of racial prejudice makes the entire situation doubly serious.

We believe that the minority press reporting such news should be aware of the dangers inherent in such a practice. It does not help cure the crime situation. It fosters fear and finally prejudice.

The crimes themselves must be dealt with in the usual manner—through the courts. The prejudices, however, remain.

The responsibility of the minority press, in these situations, lies in demanding that adequate police protection be obtained and in responsible newspaper coverage.

Testimony by Ed Ennis

We applaud recent testimony by Edward J. Ennis, chairman of the Committee for Equality in Naturalization, before the House-Senate committee currently studying omnibus immigration and naturalization bills, wherein particular attention was brought to certain proposals concerning the immigration of English colonials.

Up to the present time, residents of certain British colonies, including Jamaica, have been entering the United States as Britishers, coming in under the British quota, which is largely unfilled each year.

New proposals now recommended would not permit this practice. The problem has arisen largely because these persons are of Negro ancestry.

In his testimony, Ennis said:

"In removing racial discrimination in respect of certain Oriental peoples, care should be taken not to create new racial discrimination against other groups. It is submitted that the provisions of the proposed bills which would reduce quotas applicable to colonies has no place in this legislation. This provision is essentially one of racial discrimination against the colored inhabitants of such English colonies as Jamaica who now immigrate under the English quota. Even as a practical matter, apart from the principle involved, the immigration from these Caribbean islands is not large enough to justify adoption of such a measure. These colonies should be left as they are under the quota of the home country or made non-quota like all independent countries in this hemisphere even though their populations are predominantly colored. Even in the absence of quota restrictions no great amount of immigration has occurred."

We hope the joint committee will give consideration to Mr. Ennis' testimony.

Film Review: "Go for Broke!"

"We saw Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "Go for Broke!" last week at a special trade show in Salt Lake City.

Like every Nisei we had been eagerly awaiting the release of this story of the men of the 442nd Combat Team and we were not disappointed. "Go for Broke!" is vivid and exciting. It has humor as well as pathos. It rings true and it is good entertainment.

Producer Dore Schary and Writer-Director Robert Pirosh have given the picture the quality of documentary realism without loss of warmth or humanity. They have not stuffed the picture with cinematic hokum nor with excessive plot gimmicks. The story is a straightforward one of the citizen soldiers of Japanese ancestry from Hawaii and the relocation centers of the mainland who went to war to fight prejudice at home and the enemy abroad.

"Go for Broke!" centers its attention on six men, four mainlanders and two Hawaiians, and follows them from the training grounds of Camp Shelby, Miss., to Italy and France and to that day in July, 1946 when they marched down Constitution Avenue in Washington, D.C., to receive a unit decoration from the President of the United States.

There is young Tommy, the orphan whose parents were killed by Japanese bombs on Dec. 7 in Honolulu, and Sam whose family is in a war relocation camp in Arizona. There is Chick, the chick sexor from Iowa, and Frank who had trained to be an architect and took a job in a fruit stand. There is Sergeant Ohara and Kaz, the ukelele-strumming, hula-hipped volunteer from Hawaii. There is also Kaz's brother Masami from the 100th Battalion which joins up with the 442nd in Italy.

The six men are in a platoon commanded by Lieut. Michael Grayson, a 90-day wonder from the 36th (Texas) Division via Fort Benning. It is the education of this young Texan, capably delineated by Van Johnson, which is the core of the story. Lieut. Grayson joins the 442nd at Camp Shelby, hating his assignment to a unit filled with "Japs." By the time the men of the 442nd rescue the "Lost Battalion" of the Texas division in the forests of the Vosges he has changed his mind about a lot of things and is not adverse about changing the minds of others who have misconceptions about Nisei in uniform.

Robert Pirosh's perceptive writing presents a well-rounded portrait of a group of Nisei citizen soldiers. There is not a false note in the film; no phony heroics and no soap-box oratory. Producer Schary and Writer Pirosh have some things to say about democracy and about race prejudice but "Go for Broke!" gets their points across without special pleading. The picture's message is presented in terms of natural plot development.

For the Nisei audience "Go for Broke!" will have a special emotional impact. It will make them laugh and cry and will make them proud. For the nearly 10,000 Nisei who served in the 442nd, as original volunteers and as replacements, the picture is a tribute; for the 600 men of the 442nd who died in combat, it is a memorial.

Actual newsreel shots of the 442nd have been skillfully integrated into the picture. The use of background shots of Italian and French countryside also contribute to the film's documentary quality as do the settings by Eddie Imazu.

The technical accuracy of the picture is a tribute to the participation of the JACL ADC's Mike M. Masaoka who was special consultant on its script and production and to Col. Thomas Akins, former company commander in the 442nd, who was technical adviser. This insistence on accuracy undoubtedly added many thousands of dollars to the cost of production.

"Go for Broke!" is also unusual in that it has eschewed the usual love story, sometimes dragged in by the ears in a war picture. Except for a brief but torrid interlude between Van Johnson and Giana Canale (a honey in the Italian or any other language), the only "romance" in the picture is the attachment of Tommy for a little orphaned piglet which he names "Paisan."

All of the Nisei principals give effective portrayals, a tribute to their own talent as well as to the ability of Robert Pirosh as a director and to the help given the Nisei players by Van Johnson. None of the Nisei actors, with the exception of Lane Nakano as Sam, had ever appeared before in a motion picture. With the exception of Nakano, these Nisei players are Hawaiians who were cast for their roles by Pirosh in Honolulu. One of them, Henry Nakamura who plays Tommy, already has been launched on a screen career as a result of his performance. Nakamura nearly steals the film in his role as the wistful orphan who cannot find a uniform small enough to fit him. George Miki is the craps-shooting, grumbling Chick while Akira (Sunshine) Fukunaga plays Frank. Henry Oyasato relives an actual wartime experience as Ohara, the sergeant who wins a battlefield commission. Ken Okamoto, who organized the Shelby Serenaders, provides music and comedy relief as Kaz and Henry Hamada is Masami.

With the exception of Nakamura, who is 21 years of age and was too young to be in the 442nd, all of the Nisei principals are veterans of the regiment as are most of the nearly 300 Nisei who were used as extras in the picture.

Dan Riss contributes a sincere performance as Captain Solari, an American of Italian ancestry who knows something of the meaning of prejudice, while Werner Anderson is Colonel C. W. Pence, commanding officer of the 442nd. Don Haggerty plays Sgt. Culley, a Texan who learns something about the Nisei from Lieut. Grayson.

Producer Schary who started the Hollywood cycle of anti-prejudice films back in 1947 with "Crossfire" at RKO and Writer-Director Pirosh who won the Academy award last year for his script for "Battle-ground" can be proud of "Go for Broke!" The picture fulfills its primary purpose, which is to provide good entertainment. The fact that the people who see it will learn something about the brotherhood of man is a bonus which the world can use today.

Daily Variety on 442nd Film

"Go for Broke!" was previewed for the trade press on March 21 in Hollywood. Here is a report from Daily Variety, the Hollywood edition of the Bible of show business. Variety reports, not for the general public, but for the theater men who will show the picture.

"Go for Broke!" picturizes the experiences of the much-decorated 442nd Regimental Combat team of Nisei (American-born Japanese) troops in European campaigns of the late war. It provides interesting entertainment of general appeal, and is slated to garner profitable biz in all datings, with Van Johnson's marquee strength a definite asset.

"Film, unlike most other recent war dramas, by-passes lengthy battle sequences, and concentrates on the amusing, humorous and dramatic episodes of members of the unit. Only three front-line attacks and skirmishes are displayed—two in Italy and the third in France.

"Result is a well-assembled package of entertainment which flows smoothly and at a consistent pace. Producer Dore Schary deftly guided the production, spotlighting the human elements of the story and situations. Picture is the first directional assignment for Robert Pirosh, who also wrote the story and screenplay. He clicks solidly in both departments, getting maximum results from the numerous amusing sequences along the way, while graphically displaying the dramatic episodes.

"Story, developed in semi-documentary style, picks up the unit in basic training at Camp Shelby, Miss. Johnson, a 90-day wonder just out of Officers Candidate School, arrives to take charge of the group and immediately becomes a stern taskmaster on

Stamp of Approval

The California state assembly has voted, 57 to 1, to repeal the state's anti-miscegenation law.

It would be news, except that the law is dead anyway. It was declared unconstitutional by the courts, and the assembly's action is merely to rid the statute books of meaningless law. So the assemblymen are just voting to go along with the courts. Lloyd Lowrey was the only holdout.

Curing a Habit

That nasty habit, segregation, will soon be wiped out in the Tolleson, Ariz., public school system.

An injunction issued March 26 by U.S. District Judge David W. Ling at Phoenix prohibits the Tolleson school authorities from segregating children of Latin or Mexican descent.

"Spanish-speaking children are retarded in learning English by lack of exposure to its use because of segregation, Judge Ling said, "and co-mingling of the entire student body instills and develops a common cultural attitude among the school children which is imperative for the perpetuation of American institutions and ideals. It is also clear that the methods of segregation prevalent in the respondent school district foster antagonisms in the children and suggest inferiority among them where none exists."

Moto's Return

"Mr. Moto" is listed in the cast of the new Lippert quickie, "Mask of the Dragon," a melodrama about an Oriental smuggling ring... The China Doll revue from New York City, which includes some Nisei performers, is still at the Desert Inn in Las Vegas. Featured act is the Kanazawa Trio, one of the best balancing acts in the business... June Sakai, 1950 graduate of the Parsons School of Design in New York City, is now on the faculty of the school. regulations. He also resents the assignment, but members of the outfit retain their sense of humor and easy-going ways. Shipped to Italy, the unit sloughs through the mud for a series of engagements. However, only two are shown—the blasting of a German machine-gun nest, and the capture of an enemy field headquarters. Then the unit is switched to France, where Johnson is assigned to headquarters after becoming a staunch supporter of his Nisei company. Finale finds the company in a furious battle to release an American regiment surrounded by Germans.

"Picture is a straight and factual presentation of the 442nd's exploits and in the cast are several bona fide members of the unit. Only femme in cast is Giana Canale, who appears in a brief, flirtatious interlude with Johnson. Title stems from Nisei slang expression meaning 'shoot the works.'

"Johnson capably handles role of the officer who gradually becomes a champion of his men. The Nisei players provide excellent and natural characterizations, despite initial film appearances. They include Lane Nakano, Akira Fukunaga, Henry Oyasato, George Miki, Ken K. Okamoto, Harry Hamada, and Henry Nakamura. The latter, a pint-size recruit from Hawaii, is especially good with an effective, but non-chalant portrayal. Warner Anderson, Don Haggerty, and Dan Riss have been neatly spotted as officers.

"In addition to presenting a sensitive and arresting story that could easily have been derailed in less capable hands, Schary has provided the production with a fine

JACL Has Stressed Action On Nisei Group Problems

By ELMER R. SMITH

The National JACL officers for 1950-52 were elected by membership ballot before the eleventh convention convened in October, 1950. The officers as introduced to the convention by JACL National Director Masao W. Satow were: National President Dr. Randolph M. Sakada, 1st Vice President Frank Chuman, 2nd Vice President Tom Hayashi, 3rd Vice President Patrick Okura, National Treasurer William Enomoto, and Secretary to the National Board, Ina Sugihara.

The conclusion of the Eleventh JACL Biennial Convention held at Chicago held a number of significant meanings in terms of the historical background of the JACL as traced in the present story. A few of these significant happenings are worthy of a brief review before we close the story of the JACL for the present time.

Problems of general interest to all persons of Japanese ancestry have always been of special interest to the JACL even from the time of its inception in Seattle in 1930. These general problems have been foremost while specific problems of an organizational nature have taken a secondary position in the affairs of the JACL, often to the detriment of the JACL itself. This has been especially true upon the national level. This trend seems to still be the basic program of the JACL as evidenced by the important place given to the continued promotion of the naturalization bill, the interest shown in the evacuation claims act, the stressing of the continued Washington, D.C. representation of the JACL-ADC revolving around the welfare of all persons of Japanese ancestry, a program for the more efficient elimination of segregation in public housing and the support of an FEP law and anti-lynching and anti-poll tax laws. These are definitely the type of conformity to a general welfare program inherent in the early philosophy of the JACL, and given new and vigorous rebirth at the close of World War II at the Denver convention in 1946.

A few changes at the Chicago convention were made tending to revert to a more traditional pre-war pattern or to new patterns of policy. One of these was the change in the election of national officers. The abandoning of the system of elections by popular membership vote and the referring this to the National Council delegates is a step backward to the old pre-war days. It will be recalled that in pre-war days a large amount of negative criticism was leveled at this type of election. The principal criticism was that cliques were organized within the National Council which made for favoritism and dictatorship. Whether the "coming of age" of JACL will make this type of criticism unnecessary, only time will tell.

The problem of financing the JACL program has always been a serious one, and as we have shown the issue was a serious one in the 1950 Convention. If the JACL is to be a service organization, and evidently it will be under the proposed program for 1951-52, there needs to be a fully organized and cooperative financial program worked out among all groups composed of persons of Japanese ancestry whether they belong to the JACL or not. It is no more than fair that persons who receive the benefits from a program should assist in financing such a program. The type of service furnished by the JACL and the ADC enters the realm of "big business," and it can no longer be considered as "part-time activity operating on simple individual donations." To think of JACL activities in the service field as comparable to pre-war World War II is to think in terms of the days of "horse-and-buggy" business and services. This, I believe, the JACL story has been able to point out in no uncertain terms! Until some such cooperative over-all group or groups will finance the services rendered by JACL is established, the problem of financing the service programs as outlined by the Chicago Convention will be a serious problem.

There were a number of statements made by the delegates to the Eleventh JACL Convention referring to the lack of active participation and support of Nisei in local JACL affairs. This phenomenon, as the JACL story has repeatedly pointed out, is nothing new. Every JACL convention has heard much the same thing from its delegates. As a matter of fact, it will be recalled, during some periods in the JACL's past the conditions were so serious that special appeals were made to respective chapter members by the JACL national president for more active support. A study of local JACL participation can be found to be correlated with a number of factors. These factors are listed as follows, but not necessarily in order of their importance.

1). Local officer personnel: Certain persons when in office seem able to get more support than others for the carrying out of programs. The implication in this fact seems to be that more care should be exercised in the election and appointment of local officers and assistants.

2). Seasonal forces influence participation. In dominantly rural areas, the participation is lowest at the height of farming activities, and steps up later. In urban communities the seasonal influences step up participation during the winter.

3). Programming of activities definitely show a great influence on participation and attendance at local JACL meetings. The greater the diversity of interest of the members the harder it is to work out a program of interest for all concerned. This calls for astute generalship on the part of the program chairman, and demands that more than "passing interest" be given to the program of each meeting. Here constructive leadership is badly needed if local chapters are to be successful in their individual meetings. A careful study of past programs in terms of their success and failure might be useful in developing other programs.

4). Age range in the local chapter is of great significance. The greater the age range the greater the difficulties of arranging activities to hold the membership in attendance at meetings and to obtain their participation. This problem has now reached its peak, and requires careful handling to keep a progressive spirit alive in many of the local JACL chapters.

5). The degree to which negative social forces are felt by persons of Japanese ancestry within a given community is of importance to the positive group morale of the local JACL. If things are going smoothly for the Nisei in a given community, group interest tends to decrease and participation in group activities becomes less important. It becomes a test of leadership to stimulate group interest along positive lines under such conditions. A broader educational program might be called for under such conditions to bring a realization to Nisei that cooperative endeavor along with other groups within the community can more adequately take place under these conditions, and that such an advantage should not be passed by. This would call for a broader group outlook than would normally be the case.

National JACL Director Masao Satow in his report to the Eleventh National JACL Convention probably had this in mind when he said:

"The classic illustration of one of JACL's important roles is that it has been likened to a fire department which is maintained to extinguish fires. Just because there have been no recent fires is no reason to junk the fire department. We might also point out that one of the primary functions of a fire department is also to conduct campaigns of education so that fires can be prevented, and also to put out small fires before they develop into major conflagrations."

The story of the JACL has shown us how a minority organization was conceived in difficult times. Its trials, frustrations, and some

FROM THE FRYING PAN

Fat, Dumb and Happy

Denver, Colo.

This column has no Nisei angle. It has to do with all Americans, and I have been thinking about it for a long time. It's about our country, its responsibilities and its future, and our part in meeting these responsibilities and shaping its future.

America today, it seems to me, is pretty much in the position the Great Roman Empire was in just before it was engulfed by barbarian hordes. Rome of that period was, in G.I. terminology, fat, dumb and happy. There was corruption in public life and a universal love of luxury, physical and moral softness, an unwillingness to sacrifice.

On all sides of Rome were the barbarians—hungry, jealous of Rome's progress, coveting her wealth and willing to fight to acquire it. And because the refinements of life had stripped Romans of the vigor and ambition and hardness that brought about their remarkable civilization, Rome collapsed before the barbaric onslaught.

Well, what is our position today? We have the world's highest living standard. Compared to other peoples, we are wallowing in luxury. Wonderful gadgets that banish drudgery are commonplace; we feel deprived without them. There is a decline of morality; witness the college basketball bribe scandals, the links between crime and politics uncovered by Sen. Kefauver's probes. There are the five percenters who wax fat on war contracts and black marketeers who thrive on the public's refusal to accept sacrifice.

There are calamity howlers who would give up before we have started to fight; tax-evaders; those who insist on politics as usual and business as usual. And all about us are the hungry, covetous, hard-eyed people hypnotized by the Communist promise of plenty once capitalist America is destroyed. The assault against our way of life is under way with a cold war in Europe and a hot war in Korea.

Fortitude and Sacrifice

All, of course, is not lost. America need not go the way of the Roman Empire, at least not yet, if we are united in our determination not to go under. An America aroused is a terrible foe, as our enemies have discovered. But America today is still far from aroused.

The first requirements for reawakening the nation is vigorous, bold, aggressive leadership, the kind of leadership that has not been forthcoming. Perhaps that is the nature of a democracy. But it is also the democratic function for people at the grassroots level to first select, then support the kind of leadership necessary to meet any crisis.

The answer to our problems is not to deny the "barbarians," but to share our goods and know-how with them; not to repress them but to help them attain higher living standards. We have started to do this with our friends; eventually the program must be carried to others as well. These friends provide one other difference between our position and that of the Romans. We are not alone.

The problems are not insurmountable. But they do call for fortitude and willingness to sacrifice. If we are prepared to sweat and bleed and struggle, then we need not be afraid of going the way the Romans did.

In introducing Brion, Columnist Hopper noted that he was a Japanese American from Hawaii and that he had two brothers in the 442nd Combat Team . . . MOM COMES TO TOWN

By MARY OYAMA

Los Angeles.

On a beautiful Spring day in March, our Mom who is all of three score years and ten, flew down from San Francisco to this Southern California metropolis, loaded down with purse, handbag, presents for the grand-children, magazines, and a box of mushi-gashi ("omanju" to you, or rice-cakes). After she laid part of these items down on the kitchen-table, we trailed after her as she went to greet the Obasan relative next-door.

The Issei women's conversation in Japanese went something like this:

"How did you come?"
"By plane—"

"Oh you have more nerve than I have. I simply can't make myself ride a plane yet. How was it?"

"Very interesting. You really feel like God flying through the air. Most fascinating—I kept watching the scenery down below, all the way down. In fact, I almost got a crick in my neck from straining it by looking down—everything looked so small—the cars, roads, etc."

At this point the next-door relative's husband, Ojisan, a witty literate fellow interrupted, "You should have looked up instead of down, you might have seen God Himself."

"Don't rush me," returned Mom, then to Obasan, "Look this wonderful magazine on Japanese drama that Nani-san sent me." She flipped open the page to a striking photograph of a Kabuki actor. Obasan agreed, "Oh yes, wonderful, wonderful. We're thinking of handling this magazine here locally ourselves. There must be many people who'd like to subscribe. We need more decent magazines like this than the trash we've been getting. Yes, we love this zashi—"

"Indeed," remarked Mom with considerable vehemence, "I only got it after I wrote Nani-san telling him to send us good things instead of cheap magazines, trashy entertainers, money-grabbing actors. I told him what does Japan mean by sending us kudaranai (no-account) entertainers like the Darashi-ga-nai Boys and cheap modern jazz-singers. What do they think we are, illiterates?"

Obasan nodded in agreement, "They really do send us bakarahii (dumb) shows which are a waste of time and not worth $2. We only go because we have no place else to go, not because we like these crazy shows!"

Yes, Mom added, that was what she had impressed upon Nani-san, that Issei audiences here in the States had laughed not because the travelling shows from Japan were funny but AT them, in contempt because they were so superficially trashy. Again Obasan nodded, "Koko kara shita bakari no hanashi"—indicating from her waist downwards—"Nothing but tales from here down". Double entendre and Rabelaisian jokes. Crude and unfunny.

"I told them," concluded Mom, "that cheap shows and low magazines will ruin Japan's cultural reputation. So the man in a big rush to uphold Nippon's high cultural tradition, sent these in a big hurry. Thank God, Japan still has these publications. Come the modern day of freedom and democracy for Japan or not, Kabuki must never be allowed to die off. We've got to hang on to these things!"

Trying to put in our five cents' worth, we interposed in our bum (Nisei-style) Japanese, "Did you know that What's-his-name, Japan's most famous Kabuki actor's son is here now to study drama at the Pasadena Playhouse?"

"You mean Kikugoro's son—" Obasan supplied enthusiastically, "Well, next month the best koto player from Japan will be here, so—" she nodded happily in anticipation, indicating that that would be ample compensation for the mediocre shows she had sat and suffered through to date. "Come let's go upstairs and discuss this more leisurely over a cup of tea."

She took the drama mag appreciatively from Mom, and the two Issei disappeared within the door. Listening to their up-retreating footsteps, we wondered about the mag: was it a high calibre drama one or one which specialized in Kabuki? (Our friend Hiro "Orson" of the Nisei Experimental Players would know), and too bad we couldn't read Japanese—shame on us.

We too hoped that Kabuki would be around for a while longer, so that one more ignorant Nisei could learn more about it, when and if she ever found more leisure time.

JACL Champs Dominate Home League

Sequoia Nursery, men's team champions of the 5th annual National JACL bowling tournament, already has wrapped up the title in the San Francisco Nisei Majors although there are still two weeks of play remaining. Returning from their victory at Los Angeles, the Sequoia team hit a 2901 series, including a 1032 game. Fuzzy Shimada led the Sequoias with 623. The lowest man on the team had a 542... The Stonehurst Nursery team, women's team champions of the JACL national tourney, is tied for third place in the San Francisco Nisei Women's League... Final date for entries in the East Bay JACL bowling tournament in Oakland, Calif., is March 31... A number of Nisei bowlers entered the annual San Francisco Diamond Medal bowling tournament, previously barred to Japanese Americans because of the ABC membership rule, and two are still in the running as the tourney entered the semi-final stage this week. Henry Takahashi in Class 2 hit the highest series of the week, a 637, to eliminate his opponent while Kiyo Takehara, entered in Class 4, won two matches on series of 581 and 575. Takahashi's bowling, incidentally, has been the talk of the tournament at Bagdad Alleys. In the qualifying round and three subsequent rounds Takahashi had had series of 621, 630, 616 and 637 for a total of 2501, or an average of 208.6 per game. Two other Nisei, Ken Morino and Mori Asazawa, were eliminated in the quarterfinals.

Japanese Ball Players Return Home

The four Japanese pro baseball stars who trained with the San Francisco Seals left by plane for Tokyo, via Honolulu, on March 26. The quartet didn't see as much action as they were expected to against Major and Coast League teams. Shigeru Sugishita, the pitcher, went in for the Seals on March 25 in a game in which they trailed 1 to 15 against the Cleveland Indians and hurled to only three batters in the ninth, retiring the side without trouble. Tetsuji Kawakami, the first baseman, pinch-hit in the ninth and grounded out. The others, Fumio Fujimura and Makoto Kozuru weren't used in San Francisco's final games against the Yankees and Indians. The visiting quartet played in some exhibition games this week in Honolulu and were scheduled to arrive in Tokyo on April 1. The Japanese pro baseball season got underway on March 29. The Mainichi Orions of Tokyo, Nippon pro champions, also returned to Japan last week after their long tour of Hawaii.

Pitcher Bill Nishita of the University of California showed last week that he was ready to take his regular place on Coach Clint Evans' mound staff when he pitched two innings against Chico State on March 24. Nishita gave up no hits and no runs and faced only six batters as UC won, 9 to 0. On March 23, however, Cal got something of a scare from the Aggies. Ray Fukuchi, the little lefthander, had the varsity under control for eight innings, scattering eight hits and two runs, but the Bears came back with a single and a homer to pull the game out of the fire in the ninth, 4 to 3. If the Aggies had beaten the Bears, the victory would have been the first for the Farmers in more years than anyone around the Cal campus can remember.

Hiraizumi, Takeno Hit High Totals

Shozo Hiraizumi and Ken Takeno, who won the men's doubles championship of the National JACL bowling tournament in Los Angeles, continued their "hot" bowling during the past week in Salt Lake City. Takeno hit a "600" in the Salt Lake Majors and Hiraizumi helped Harmon Drug to a 2998 series in the Salt Lake League with a 648. Tak Kojima turned in a 632 series, including a 267, for Tuxedo Cafe in the JACL league while Ike Ogata of Pagoda and George Kishida of Star Cafe had 615 and 611 respectively and Charlie Sonoda had a 622 for Aloha Fountain... Hank Matsubu, the baseball and basketball star, wired the Salt Lake JACL tournament authorities that his Twin Valley team from the Snake River Valley, 1951 Pacific Northwest Bussei champs, would be unable to play in the Salt Lake meet because good weather conditions made it imperative that the players remain at work on their farms.

Hi Inouye, the Redwood City, Calif., nurseman who sponsors the Sequoia Nursery team which won the JACL bowling championship, got a rousing hand from his fellow members in the Redwood City Kiwanis club when he showed up for the weekly meeting following the tournament... Tom Hamamoto hit a home run as Placer Union high's baseball team defeated Lincoln, Calif., high, 8 to 4, last week. Vic Nakamoto, basketball and football star for the Hillmen, caught part of the game... The Placer County JACL baseball team of Penryn, Calif., will play their home games in the Placer-Nevada League at James Park in Auburn, Calif., instead of at the JACL park in Penryn. This is the first year that the Nisei nine has entered the fast semi-pro loop... The Salt Lake Nisei have entered the city's Amateur Baseball Federation this year... Tok Ishizawa, whose dislocated elbow kept him out of the JACL national bowling meet, turned in a 658 series in the California Mixed Foursome league in L. A. despite the fact that he had an arm in a sling.

Howard Zenimura, Fresno State left fielder, is batting .650 so far this season for the Bulldogs. He led off for Fresno State and got two singles and scored two runs in three official trips as the Bulldogs beat San Jose State, 8 to 3, on March 23. In this game Fibber Hirayama, Bulldog centerfielder, got four walks and a sacrifice hit and scored two runs... Zenimura batted .412 two years ago in the California Collegiate association, while Hirayama won batting honors last year with .435.

Nisei Wrestlers Lose in NCAA Meet

Two Nisei college wrestlers, outstanding in the 123-pound division on the Pacific, survived the elimination round but lost in the first round of the NCAA wrestling tournament on March 23 at Bethlehem, Pa. Joe Kimura of San Francisco State, the coast collegiate champ, tossed Robert Buckingham of Michigan State but lost to John Reese of Penn State. Hisashi Watanabe of Washington State, the Coast Conference titlist, lost to Mike Filipos of Lehigh. David Kikuchi, University of California entrant in the 130-pound division, lost to Hal More of the Oklahoma Aggies... Eugene Machida, last year's Intermountain collegiate boxing champion at 125-pounds, is one of Idaho State College's entrants in the Pacific Coast Intercollegiate boxing championships which will be held this week in Sacramento's Memorial Auditorium.

Shig Murao, former Springfield College (Massachusetts) star cager who heads the Chicago Nisei Athletic Association, announced last week that his group will sponsor a six-team basketball tournament on April 14 and 15 at Olivet Institute. Teams from Minneapolis, Detroit and Cleveland will compete with three Chicago teams, in-

The Zebras swarmed over the Salt Lake Zephyrs, 66 to 48, while the Honeyville, Utah, Bees edged Salt Lake's Harlem AC, 47 to 45.

The Tokuda Drugs from Seattle defeated the Salt Lake Centaurs, 33 to 26, while the Salt Lake Jokers defeated the League All-Stars, 49 to 44.

Watanabe Aids UCLA Relay Victories

Bob Watanabe is one of a quartet of sprinters who are giving UCLA one of the best Bruin relay teams in history. The former Army ace who started his college sprinting at Wayne University in Detroit helped UCLA set a new Santa Barbara Relays record in the 880-yard relay at 1:26.8 and was starting dashman as the Bruins also won the 440-yard relay at 42.6s. Watanabe also placed third in the open 100-yard dash behind two UCLA speedsters, Bob Work and Rod Richards. Work was clocked at 10 flat... Placer Union high's Jim Tsuda is still undefeated in the high jump this year. His best leap last week was 5 feet 11 as Placer downed Grass Valley, Calif. Tsuda has cleared 6 feet this year... Aki Tomita, Los Angeles City College sprinter, ran the first leg of the 440-yard relay as the Cubs won the event in the junior college division in 43.5s... Another Nisei sprinter who raced in the Santa Barbara Relays last Saturday was Occidental College's Joe Maruyama who started for the Oxy team which finished second to UCLA in the college division.

Maxie Kato Stars in Utah Tournament

With one week of play remaining, Maxie Kato of Ogden, Utah, is in second place in the all-events with 1549 scratch and 1693 with her handicap in the Utah state women's tournament at the Southeast alleys in Salt Lake City. The Salt Lake Nisei team is currently in third place with a 2542 total, including handicaps... The 3rd annual Northern California Nisei golf tournament will be held at the Sonoma County Country club in Sonoma County on June 30 and July 1... Wally Yonamine Gets Two Offers from Japan Pro Clubs

HONOLULU — Wally Yonamine's baseball future was reported still unsettled this week although the Nisei outfielder is scheduled to report to the Salem Senators of the Western International league for spring training next week at Napa, Calif.

During recent weeks Yonamine, who hit .335 in 125 games for the Salt Lake Bees of the Class C Pioneer League last year, has received two offers to play professional baseball in Japan.

It was understood that a professional baseball club in Tokyo, believed to be the Tokyo Giants, has offered Yonamine 100,000 yen a month (about $275 in U.S. currency) with a bonus for signing a contract.

Manager Henry (Bozo) Wakabayashi, Hawaiian-born manager of Japan's professional champions, the Mainichi Orions of Tokyo who have been barnstorming in Hawaii, also is understood to have made Yonamine a tentative offer. Yonamine played against the Orions in several games as a member of the Moiliili team of the Honolulu AJA league and as a member of the AJA All-Stars.

In order to play in Japan Yonamine would have to obtain his release from the Salem, Ore., club which now holds his contract. It is reported that Manager Hugh Luby of Salem is counting on the sharp-hitting Nisei to play centerfield this year. Yonamine was traded to Salem by Salt Lake City in exchange for Bob Cherry, one of the batting stars of the Western International and the "most valuable player" for Salem for the past two years. Luby sent Yonamine a contract containing a boost over the Class B baseball minimum.

Yonamine has been working as a fireman at Pearl Harbor while playing basketball and baseball since returning to Hawaii from Salt Lake City.

Meanwhile, the Mainichi Orions returned to Japan two weeks ago after a successful Hawaiian tour but not before Bill Veeck, former owner of the Cleveland Indians, had made definite contract offers to three members of the Orions team. Veeck, who owns the Dayton club in the Class A Central League and the Oklahoma Indians of the AA Texas League, said that Kaoru Betto and Hiroshi Oshita, hard-hitting outfielders, and Pitcher Atsushi Aramaki would be stars in Class A ball. The three Japanese players expressed interest in playing in American baseball and Veeck has undertaken negotiations with the owners of the Orions and the Tokyo Flyers, who hold Oshita's contract. It was not expected here, however, that the players would go to the United States this year.

Ralph Yempuku, Honolulu club owner and Hawaiian representative for Veeck, also has been scouting players in Hawaiian leagues for the Dayton and Oklahoma City clubs.

To the Editor: LETTER-BOX

Pacific Citizen
Dear Editor:
Your attention is brought to a very enlightening and challenging article in the spring issue of CHILD STUDY which devotes the entire copy to "children who are different."

In it is an excellent article by Kenneth B. Clark (assistant professor of psychology at the College of the City of New York) titled "How to protect children against prejudice," and I urge all parents to take time out to read it.

The writer challenges us with the fact that although we pride ourselves with an imposing array of agencies and programs attempting to promote better intergroup relations among children, youth and adults, there is a noticeable omission: "There is no agency or program concerned primarily or directly with helping children of minority groups avoid the detrimental effects of prejudice, discrimination and segregation on their personalities. On the whole, this problem has been generally ignored."

Perhaps the JACL in cooperation with other minority group organizations can start such a program.

Mother of Two,
(Mrs. C. H., Denver).

liffe. The Karamu Players gave an inspiring and sensitive performance of the difficult modern opera. "Lost in the Stars" is set in South Africa and epitomizes the struggle of mankind for better human relationships.

The victim, Nellie Takemoto, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Takemoto.

The complaint charged that Miss Takemoto suffered multiple injuries in the accident and that the wounds were "due solely to the negligence of the park officials."

BERKELEY, Calif.—Dr. Samuel Jiro Kimura, 38, instructor in ophthalmology at the University of California School of Medicine, is one of 21 promising young medical students who each received a $30,000 fellowship from the John R. and Mary R. Markle Foundation of New York City.

Dr. Kimura, attached to the San Francisco campus of the university, will, like his fellow recipients, receive $6000 a year for five years, the funds going either to his support while engaged in research or to the project in which he is engaged.

Last year Dr. Kimura, who served with the famous 442nd Japanese American Combat Team in Italy as a member of the U.S. Army Medical Corps, was granted leave of absence to do research work on radiation cataracts for the National Research Council in the area affected by the atomic bombing at Nagasaki. His mission to Japan resulted from recent evidence that a number of cyclotron workers in this country have shown evidence of cataract formation.

Dr. Kimura's research in this field is being supported by the Francis I. Proctor Foundation in the School of Medicine, with a laboratory designed for his use to be included in the Proctor Laboratory of the new Medical Center in San Francisco.

Currently Dr. Kimura is engaged in research in the role of hormones in uveitis, a disease often accompanying rheumatoid arthritis as a cause of blindness.

Now in New York City, Dr. Kimura is the second young scientist of the University of California's School of Medicine to receive a Markle scholarship. An award was made last year to Dr. Thomas T. Crocker, instructor in medicine.

Born in Stockton, Calif., Dr. Kimura received his bachelor's degree from the university in 1931, with a master's following in 1936, and his medical degree in 1941.

Following his war service, which brought him a Purple Heart award, Dr. Kimura became a special resident fellow in ophthalmology at the U.C. School of Medicine from 1946 to 1949 and then was appointed to his present instructorship after certification from the American Board of Ophthalmology.

Issei Welfare Problems Told In Illinois Magazine Article

Welfare problems of Illinois' Japanese Americans are discussed by John Y. Yoshino, Chicago welfare worker, in the January issue of "Public Aid in Illinois," publication of the state public aid commission. The Issei, who traditionally had a "negative" attitude toward accepting public assistance, have shown a tendency to accept such help in the years since the evacuation and relocation, Yoshino says.

Previously they considered it shameful to get public aid. Factors changing this point of view include Issei education in the American social welfare pattern and the fact that many Issei have lost respect for many traditional beliefs since defeat of the Japanese in World War II.

Issei requests for old age pensions were up to 10 and 11 monthly during the first part of 1950, Yoshino says, and in one month last year the Cook County department of welfare was giving financial help to forty persons of Japanese ancestry.

Yoshino also points out that it has been only since the war and relocation to industrial areas in the midwest and east that the Japanese have qualified for social insurance benefits. Revision of the Social Security Act this year will make thousands of Issei eligible for benefits for the first time. Previously many of the Issei worked as gardeners, domestics and laborers; in the fishing industry, produce markets and nurseries; and as workers on farms, ranches and in small businesses.

Chicago has from 1500 to 3000 Issei over the age of 65, of whom 80% are bachelors, widowers or divorced persons.
