

Walter resolution to admit adopted children into U.S.

Washington

In order to expedite the admission of minor adopted children of American servicemen and civilian employees serving overseas, Rep. Francis E. Walter (D., Pa.) informed the Washington Office of the Japanese American Citizens League that he had introduced a joint congressional resolution to accomplish that purpose.

His House Joint Resolution provides for the admission of 500 children under the age of six years adopted by United States citizens serving in the armed forces abroad or who are employed by the United States government in overseas assignments.

Mike Masaoka, Washington JACL Representative, explained that this legislation authorizes the admission of 500 adopted minor children outside the annual quotas allocated to the various countries. Under existing law, these children must qualify for immigration visas in order to enter the country. Since these adopted children do not enjoy any preference category, for nations with small quotas already oversubscribed, private bills have been the only answer.

Japan, for example, has an annual quota of only 185, which is filled for the next several years at least. And yet, hundreds of American GIs and employees have adopted or would like to adopt Japanese orphans. The same situation exists in relation to Korea, which has an annual quota of 100.

Because private bills take

Senate passage of Hawaii statehood bill by Apr. 1 predicted by GOP heads

Washington

Prediction that the Senate would approve Hawaiian statehood by Apr. 1 was made by Republican leaders after the lopsided 274-138 House vote Tuesday.

The House passed the statehood bill after defeating a motion to recommit the legislation. It was the Democrat's last chance of including Alaska in the measure.

House amended the statehood bill to cut Hawaii's proposed representation in the House from two to one. However, Senate supporters predict that will be changed to its original form.

If all goes smooth, the territory would officially become the 49th state when the Hawaiian representatives take their seats in Congress. The bill provides their election in 1954. A 49th star would be added to the American flag the following July 4.

Nisei Republicans in scramble for political appointments in Hawaii

By L. NAKATSUKA

Honolulu

Nisei Republicans are in a scramble for political appointments under the first Republican Governor in Hawaii in 20 years.

With his inaugural as Governor Feb. 28, Samuel Wilder King has become chief patronage dispenser in the Territory. He was appointed by President Eisenhower and confirmed by the U.S. Senate last month.

The Governor, a longtime friend of Hawaii's Japanese population, has indicated he will consider Nisei for political jobs whenever the opportunity presents itself.

Already he has carried out this intention by offering a Cabinet post to a Hawaii-born Nisei, Baron Goto. One of the nation's top Agricultural Extension specialists, he was urged by the Governor to become the new president of the Board of Agriculture and Forestry.

But Goto reluctantly declined the offer, saying he would remain as associate director of the University of Hawaii Agricultural Extension Service—a field in which he has labored for more than 25 years.

Governor King has said he intends to make a virtual "clean sweep" of the old Cabinet, replacing most incumbents with new men. Two Nisei in the former Democratic regime have resigned.

Gov. King has accepted the resignation of Michiro Watanabe as the Territorial Attorney General, a $12,480 a year post. The Governor expects to accept the resignation of the other Nisei Cabinet member, Sakae Takahashi, from his job as Territorial Treasurer, which pays an annual salary of $10,680.

Watanabe, a California-born Nisei, has been succeeded by a non-Nisei, Edward N. Sylva, as Attorney General. A few hours after he was sworn in, Sylva appointed a Nisei, Benjamin Tashiro, to the No. 2 spot in the Department as Assistant Attorney General.

The Governor has named two Nisei to his office staff. Lawrence Nakatsuka, Honolulu newspaperman, occupies a newly created position of press secretary to the Governor. Miss Florence Kuroda is the Governor's assistant secretary.

As his military aide, Gov. King chose Col. Jack E. Conley, who is well known to Nisei soldiers who served in Europe in World War II. Col. Conley was commanding officer of the 100th Infantry Battalion and later executive officer of the 442nd Regimental Combat Team.

Nisei and friends of Nisei are being boosted for a number of the dozen or so Cabinet posts in the new Republican administration. Gov. King has made it clear that he will appoint to his Cabinet only those who are qualified and capable of carrying out their duties.

Stockton trucker in fatal crash faces trial

Investigation of a traffic death near Tracy resulted in the San Joaquin County district attorney's office filing a misdemeanor manslaughter complaint against a Stockton truck driver last week.

In other words, "party hacks" would not be in good standing with the new Governor unless they are fit for the job, over and beyond their party record and service.

Political patronage being what it is, the party affiliation and background of the applicant obviously would not be overlooked in screening the applicant, but the greatest weight would be given the capabilities of the individual, according to the Governor.

Besides his Cabinet, the Governor has a couple of hundred appointments to make on boards and commissions. Nisei who are Republicans, like all other Republicans, will have more opportunities to serve on these agencies, since the Governor plans to name a majority of the members of each board or commission from among Republicans.

Federal appointments, like judgeships, likewise will go through the Governor's hands to the Delegate to Congress, Joseph R. Farrington, also a Republican. Patronage recommendations from the party will be channeled through these officials.

One Nisei, Democrat, Circuit Judge Robert K. Murakami, already has resigned to return to private law practice. He was the first and only Nisei in Hawaii to attain a circuit judgeship.

Non-Japanese spouse evacuated with child may file claim

Washington

First precedent-setting adjudication by Warren E. Burger, new assistant Attorney General in charge of the Justice Department division handling evacuation claims, permits non-Japanese spouses of evacuees who were forced to go to relocation camps with their family eligible for benefits of the Evacuation Claims law, the Washington JACL office was advised this week.

Although a relatively few individuals are affected by this interpretation of the 1948 JACL-sponsored law, Mike Masaoka, Washington representative, hailed it as an indication of the "real understanding and humane approach to the problem" by the new Administration.

Masaoka, however, added, that adjudication procedures will not materially differ from the previous administration. It may also mean a more "realistic appraisal" with "liberal" interpretations of the law in favor of the claimants, according to Ma-

The ruling was upon a complicated case, according to the Washington office. It involved a Caucasian wife, a husband with one-fourth Japanese blood and their daughter.

The problem rested with the wife, a mother of a newborn baby at the time of evacuation. The Justice Department, after studying the history of the evacuation, concluded her evacuation was real in every sense and her status was identified with evacuees.

This form of "constructive" Japanese ancestry, Burger held, made her eligible to benefits of the Evacuation Claims act.

The determination pointed out that Congress was aware "that the usual loss made compensable by the Act resulted from the evacuation of the entire family in the sense that it could have been avoided if any member had been permitted to remain behind to care for the property. Had claimant's wife had a real choice, therefore, undoubtedly the case would be different.

"Because she did not have such a choice, however, and was forced by the order excluding her part-Japanese child to accept quasi-Japanese ancestry status and become a victim of the forced relocation, she came within the scope of intended statutory coverage and clearly qualified as a beneficiary under the statute.

"As already seen, the statutory use of the term 'Japanese ancestry' is predicated upon that of the Military in its effectuation of the evacuation program. As likewise seen, in the eyes of the military claimant's wife, by executing the prescribed 'Request and Waiver' form and entering the Assembly Center with her part-Japanese child, became, for purposes of evacuation and continued exclusion 'a person of Japanese ancestry,' a status she was unable to change voluntarily once it was assumed. Necessarily, therefore, claimant's wife qualifies as an excluded 'person of Japanese ancestry' within the intentment of the statute."

Capitol slowdown . . .

Those who expected the first Republican Congress backed by a Republican President in 24 years to move swiftly must be sadly disillusioned by this time.

The GOP 83rd Congress has been in session two months on March 3. In that period, the Senate had been in session only 25 days, meeting a total of 87 hours and 51 minutes, while the House had met 24 days for a total of 51 hours.

Out of a total of 5,306 measures of all kinds introduced in the Congress, just two public acts had been approved by both chambers. The House passed 68 measures of all kinds while the Senate favorably considered 65. Most of these were either private bills or resolutions relating to the conduct of congressional business.

In the Senate, 1,145 bills were dropped into the hopper, 52 joint resolutions, 15 concurrent resolutions, and 86 simple resolutions. In the House, 3,573 bills, 202 joint resolutions, 15 concurrent resolutions, and 159 simple resolutions had been introduced.

In addition, the Senate had received 8,678 nominations, all but 867 of them Army, Air Force, Navy and Marine Corps officers. It acted on 367 civilian nominations, leaving a total of 8,297 still to be handled.

As a comparison, let's take a look at the record established by the Congress when the administration last changed hands back in 1933. This look will be confined to the first month of the famous "first hundred days" of the Roosevelt regime when the Library of Congress reports that 5,899 bills and resolutions were introduced from Mar. 4 to Apr. 4, 1933.

In the first month of that Democratic-controlled Congress, nine public laws and resolutions were passed, not much better an average than the present Congress.

The big story . . .

Biggest story in Washington, as it was throughout the nation, last week was the death of Josef Stalin, undisputed boss of the USSR.

The biggest question in Washington, as it is throughout the free world, is whether his death marks the end of an era in Soviet diplomacy or whether the new rulers in the Kremlin, headed by "Mystery Man" Malenkov, will continue the same program of world communism. If it is the end of an epoch, will the new leadership result in peace or in shooting war?

Will Malenkov be able to control every facility of Soviet power, as did Stalin, or will there be an internal struggle for power which may threaten the solidarity heretofore enjoyed by the supreme ruler of the USSR?

Answers to these questions will determine the fate of the world in the immediate future, and individual destinies because our nation, for one, has geared most of its machinery and expenditures to the task of preventing external Soviet aggression.

Ambassador to Japan . . .

As predicted more than a month ago, career diplomat John M. Allison, Assistant Secretary of State for Far Eastern Affairs, was nominated United States Ambassador to Japan succeeding Robert D. Murphy, our first postwar ambassador.

Inasmuch as he served as deputy to Secretary of State John Foster Dulles in drafting and negotiating the Japanese Peace Treaty and is known to be a personal friend of his department chief, his appointment emphasizes the importance of the Japanese situation. Turn to Page 7

Last week's issue in the Pacific Citizen Mailbox dealt with the initial stages of the Japanese Constitution of 1946. Because of the controversy that was presented, the "inside story" of those early days was tracked to its sources by our Tokyo correspondent.—Editor.

Exclusive story . . .

The question of whether the Japanese Constitution of today was wholly inspired by Japanese architects after the surrender or handed to the Japanese by American occupation authorities prompted this writer to interview Dr. Hitoshi Ashida, onetime premier and chairman of the constitutional committee.

He is currently the welfare minister and diplomat-president of the Nippon Times.

Substantially, the new Japanese constitution was of SCAP origin, Dr. Ashida began. "Approximately 90 percent is . . . essentially through American initiative," he said.

"From a pure scholastic standpoint, it is necessary to tell what actually happened for sake of history and constitutional law," Dr. Ashida continued, pointing out that there were many day and night sessions where no official records or minutes were kept.

Dr. Joji Matsumoto's personal notes and drafts are regarded as the most important documents along with some secret secretarial notes in the Diet. In due time, these will be made public for research and study, Dr. Ashida believes.

Dr. Ashida then picked out of his library SCAP's Political Reorientation of Japan and showed me the following passage:

"Working steadily, the Public Administration Division completed its work on Feb. 10, and the prepared draft was submitted to the Supreme Commander for his approval, accompanied by an explanation of the principles underlying the operation.

"Approved with only one significant change by General MacArthur, the draft was mimeographed on Feb. 12 and the following morning General Whitney, accompanied by Charles Kades, Lt. Col. M. Rowell, and Commander A. Rodman Hussey, Jr., met with Foreign Minister Yoshida, Dr. Matsumoto, Mr. Hasegawa of the Foreign Office and Mr. Yoshida's secretary.

"General Whitney informed the Japanese representatives that the proposals of the Matsumoto committee were totally unacceptable, that they fell short of that broad and liberal reorganization of the Japanese government structure along democratic lines which the Allied Powers could regard as significant evidence that Japan had learned the lessons of war and defeat and was prepared to act as a responsible member of a peaceful community.

"He then stated that the Supreme Commander had caused to be prepared a detailed statement of those principles he deemed basic that the statement was being presented to the Japanese Government in the form of a draft constitution, and that the Government was advised to give it the fullest consideration and use it as a guide in its renewed efforts to prepare a revised constitution.

"The Japanese were told that there was no compulsion upon them to take further action but that the Supreme Commander was determined that the constitutional issue should be wearing a bright-colored Hawaiian shirt, explaining to his friends (Columbia University students) that "the 442nd was composed of Chinese, Hawaiians,—and some Nisei."

In the next booth to our Columbia University student too was eating pizza. When he got up to leave, the waiter solicitously bowed and said, "You enjoy pie. It good, ha. You come again—eat some more pizza pie."

Whereupon the Chinese Nisei who had been explaining the racial composition of the four-four-two, suddenly exploded so that everyone in the

"Kuniyoshi speaks very little Japanese, and I can hardly speak any English."

After viewing Arai's work, Mr. Kuniyoshi wrote the following appreciation:

"His paintings should be of interest for the manner in which they illustrate the impact of contemporary Western art upon native Japanese aesthetic values.

"While studying in Paris Mr. Arai embraced the French school, but later rejected it and reverted to his country's more subtle tradition.

"In the post war years Mr. Arai has again renewed his search for a means of merging his oriental background with the Western idiom. In this he has moved very rapidly, yet always within his own talents, and shows much promise for bringing forth new things."

Everything went along smoothly in this plush and elegant restaurant in the heart of Times Square, right next door to the St. James Theater where the "King and I" is currently running, until . . .

the announcer asked Yuriko, "Isn't it hard for someone of your nationality to play the part of 'Eliza' in Uncle Tom's Cabin (in the King and I)?"

Then when Yuriko was asked, "where were you before you came to New York City?"

Yuriko replied, "In a relocation center . . . We were evacuated from the West Coast and put into relocation camps."

The interviewer said, "But don't you agree with me that all of that was necessary?"

When we got home, we asked our wife, if she had listened to the broadcast and she said, "Yes, but Carrie Ann (our little four-and-a-half) was disgusted because daddy didn't go on the air."

Don't lose sleep over the notion that Caucasian families living in districts where restrictive covenants are being "enforced" seethe with prejudice. To the contrary, many of them in all-white areas are for fair play and against discrimination.

But the fear that property in their area being sold to non-whites tends to depreciate property values in the area makes them likeable victims of racists who practice bigotry on a commercial basis.

Last week, appeals from the Angeles Mesa Neighborhood Association (P. O. Box 19101, La Tijera Station, Los Angeles 43) to property owners for action to defeat Assembly Bill 332 (introduced by Edward Elliott, 40th Dist.) were meeting "very poor" response.

Nevertheless, such action is adding discomfort to those who are endeavoring to cement brotherhood in the community.

A major change in the structure of the National Japanese Canadian Citizens Association was urged by the Ontario JCCA provincial conference. It asked that the physical organization be trimmed to a part-time secretary and its executive committee, including the executive secretary, work on a voluntary basis.

At the present time, the organization is working on an emergency budget of $4,800 to employ a full-time secretary. The conferees proposed an annual budget of $2,000 for the National JCCA with bulk of the work dispersed to provincial and local levels.

The conference recognized the need of a national organization, with headquarters here since its establishment in 1947, asking that emphasis be continued on political and economic problems.

Chicago CL accepts Mile-Hi member race on quota basis

Chicago
After having defeated the combined four Los Angeles chapters in a membership drive in the past, the Chicago chapter has challenged the Denver chapter to a membership drive contest on a quota basis this year.

For the second successive year the Chicago drive will be headed by Harry Mizuno, vice-president in charge of membership. He has lined up an impressive committee to canvass the entire city starting from the north and moving southward.

The committee will also conduct "Operation Sawbuck" headed by Dr. Frank Sakamoto. Members will be approached to become supporting members of the Chicago chapter at $10 per person or couple.

This "Operation Sawbuck" is not to be confused with the "JACL Sawbuck" proposed by the National JACL Board. The latter has not as yet been accepted by the Chicago chapter since no general meeting has been held since the Board proposed the plan.

Dr. Sakamoto's committee hopes to sign up at least 100 members in the "Operation Sawbuck" project. Close to half that number has already been signed.

442nd RCT veterans urged to request their World War II medals from Army

Honolulu
A recent letter signed only "A friend" of the 442nd Regimental Combat Team pointed out that each individual member should have every medal and award to which he is authorized.

Since the 442nd is one of the most decorated units of the United States armed forces during World War II, "It would be nice to see each individual member have every medal and award he deserves," the letter noted.

Strangely enough, the let-

pizzeria could hear, "It's patronizing to use pidgin English, because the person to whom you are using pidgin English might have a far better command of his own language!"

Miscellaneous . . .

Our friend told us that a friend of her's had invited some neighbors (non-Japanese) to dinner in her Hickory Hill home in Rockland county, New York. The hostess had all the sukiyaki ingredients neatly and artistically arranged on a large Japanese plate in the living room as they were going to dine on the large coffee table where the gas stove had been placed.

When the hostess came back into the living room from the kitchen, she discovered her guests munching on the sukiyaki ingredients as "rather unusual hors d'oeuvres!"

ter was received simultaneously with a move initiated by the 442nd Club to draft forms for this purpose.

The unknown writer pointed out that the Philadelphia quartermaster has in storage millions of medals dating back to the Civil War that have been unclaimed. Further, it's costing the government something like $18,000 a year for storage, he said.

The writer then listed all the awards he knew the 442nd unit and separate companies had won for their valiant service.

"These awards can be received if each individual makes a specific request for all he is authorized to receive. Address the request to the Adjutant General, Department of the Army, Washington, D. C.," the letter advised.

1st Japanese national arrested since V-J Day

Honolulu

What is believed to be the first arrest of a Japanese national in Honolulu on a criminal charge since the end of World War II occurred here Feb. 23.

Mitsuki Komori, 23, a cook aboard the Japanese vessel Meiyu Maru, was arrested on a drunk charge when an officer found him passed out on a sidewalk.

Komori was booked at the station at 5 p.m. Officers of his ship came to bail him out because the vessel was leaving at 7 p.m.

When Komori's case up on the District Court calendar last week, the $25 bail was forfeited because of non-appearance.

so long and there is no certainty of enactment, many American couples residing in Japan particularly have faced real difficulties when the husband has been returned to the states for discharge and the wife must determine whether to abandon the child at least temporarily or remain in Japan alone.

Masaoka recalled that when he was in Japan last fall many American couples called this dilemma to his attention.

Many social workers also raised the question of the admission of adopted children into the United States expeditiously so that American soldiers and employees would be encouraged to adopt some of these war orphans.

He also recalled that during the debate on the Walter-McCarran Immigration and Naturalization Law this question was presented but because of the abuses feared non-quota adopted children as it was to natural-born and legitimated children of American citizens.

The Walter Resolution is humane, emergency legislation which ought to be passed by Congress to relieve an intolerable situation, Masaoka said. He promised that JACL would cooperate in seeking its passage.

Watsonville barber apologizes to Nisei

Watsonville

The Watsonville barber who refused service to a Japanese American war hero has apologized, and written a happy ending to a controversy which shook the community late last year.

"I apologize for any humiliation you may have suffered at my hands," the barber wrote, after observing that "every person should be judged as an individual and not on the basis of race, religion or color."

The letter was received by James M. Yoshida, Aromas, central figure in the incident which started last October when he was refused service by the barber, Yoshida, a veteran of the 442nd regimental combat team, lost an eye in battle in Italy. He set forth the incident in a letter to The Register-Pajaronian, and his part was taken by local veterans' organizations the Japanese American Citizens league, deputy district attorney John L. McCarthy and other citizens.

The world is really a small place if you consider how the Pacific Citizen obtained this picture of the Friendship Garden in Salt Lake City. It came last week from Tamotsu Murayama, Tokyo Topics columnist, through courtesy of the Nippon Times. It was built by the Issei and Nisei in appreciation of their wartime treatment by the citizens of Utah. Stone lanterns were sent by well-wishers to make the garden authentic. Tokyo Boy Scouts also sent more than 1,000 cherry trees, which were later destroyed for suspected virus, but which the city of Salt Lake replaced by buying American cherry blossom trees to be planted this spring.

Placer JACL nine to meet Tokyo Giants on Mar. 26

Loomis

As far as the Placer County community is concerned, Mar. 26 is a "legal" holiday as the Placer County JACL nine meets the Tokyo Giants at Edmonds Field, Sacramento. The Giants have a one-night stop-over at the State Capital enroute home.

The game is a culmination of negotiations which began early last fall. Placer JACL is a strong contender in the Placer-Nevada league and will furnish the only all-Nisei competition to the Japanese while training in this country.

The JACL nine has two weeks of practice under its belt and has tentatively scheduled games the next two Sundays at Roseville and Folsom, respectively.

The Giants will be accorded a civic reception in Sacramento earlier in the day with the Sacramento Solons will be official hosts. The Solons will play the Giants in the night-cap of a double-header beginning at 7:15 p.m.

Tokyo Giants victorious, 2-0, over Hollywood before 4,500 cheering fans

Los Angeles

Veteran 35-year-old Hideo Fujimoto stayed on the Gilmore Park mound last Sunday to weather seven hits of the Pacific Coast League champions, Hollywood, and produced, a well-deserved 2-0 victory for the Tokyo Giants.

Before 4,500 cheering fans—half of them Japanese—Fujimoto started the ninth inning rally by getting to first on an error. He was forced on Wally Yonamine's drive toward the first baseman.

But when Shigeru Chiba clouted a double into right field, Wally scored with the stands roaring approvingly. Kazuo Higasa's Texas leaguer into the leftside scored Chiba. Heavy-hitter clean-up man on the batting order Tetsuji Kawakami couldn't score Higasa as he slapped a line drive to third, who retired the side with an assist at first.

Hollywood nearly tied up the game with two men left on the sacks in their final raps at bat. Anxious to even the series, Hollywood has invited Tokyo

Giants to play its Mar. 22 date at Gilmore Park instead of Santa Maria, the latest word from the Giant dugout reveals.

Other baseball scores:
Mar. 11 — Giants 13, and San Diego 5 at Santa Maria.
Mar. 10—San Diego 21, Giants 1 at Santa Maria.
Mar. 9 — Giants 7, Santa Maria Indians 4 at Santa Maria.

So. Calif. NAU cage records broken

Los Angeles

The So. Calif. Nisei Athletic Union is in need of a new record book.

Power-laden Nisei Trading Co. rumbled previous records three weeks in a row—stacking up a 90-43 job on the Aris Ayes. It was the best single-game performance of the year, outdoing their previous high of 87 of the previous Sunday.

It was their ninth straight league victory, cinching the title. They meet WLA Lucky Doks next Sunday in the finale. Leading the attack were Jerry Chan, 29 points; Mits Takasugi, 23; and Jim Miyano, 21.

Miyano's individual scoring record of 40 points in one game made last week was broken by Harold Brooks of St. Mary's Sunday when he sunk 41 points in a 73-64 upset win over Lucky Doks at Chapman College courts.

Chicago keglers in ABC booster meet hit 2,852

Chicago

A Nisei team entered in the Booster Division of the ABC tournament at the Coliseum alleys, made an impressive showing by carding 2,852, fourth highest score in the Booster division in ABC history. Entered as Frank's Jewelry team, they now lead their division by 73 pins over their contenders.

Frank's Jewelry squad scored games of 891, 1,025 and 936, the middle game being the second highest in this year's tournament and fifth highest in ABC annals.

Members of this team are Kiyoshi Ikenaga, 624; Dave Hoshiyama, 589; Frank Sakamoto, 551; Fred Nishi, 524; and Yone Deguchi, 564.

* SPORTSCOPE

Akira Date, 36-year-old San Diego keglers, modestly admitted most of his string of 10 strikes were on the lucky side on Feb. 22, but there's no faulting the result. After a spare, he fashioned in 10-in-a-row, then bowed to pressure to get but five pins on his final toss for a 285—the highest game yet in the 16th annual San Diego Bowling Association ABC tournament. . . He sports a mediocre 154 average.

BASEBALL—Little League baseball in Seattle for Sansei youngsters will be sponsored by the Nisei Veterans Committee this coming season.

FISHING—After surfcasting for 25 years around Oahu shores, Kumao Saito of Aiea finally caught his dream fish—a whopping 135-lb. white tuna off Mokuleia Beach on Feb. 14. He used squid bait on a No. 24 Ashway line, taking him an hour to bring the fish to gaff.

Milt Uehara will likely get a "W" this year. He's on the Univ. of Wash. volleyball varsity.

GOLF—The Japanese American tee group, the Puget Sound Golf Club, is anxiously awaiting admittance to the USGA, which means a definite possibility that its members will be accepted soon by the King County Public Links Assn.

The Seattle Lotus Vikings have won three championships inside of four months: the Northwest YBL title at Portland, the Seattle Nisei Veterans crown last month and the Northwest Teenage title in December. The squad is coached by Kaz Kato.

Professional ice hockey star AWOL from New Haven, bored with routine

Toronto

The first Nisei to break into the professional hockey ranks, Frank Toyota, erstwhile star right-winger for the New Haven Ramblers of the Eastern Amateur Hockey League and Boston Bruins chattel, has apparently jumped the team to go into business, reports the New Canadian.

Ott Heller, onetime great of the New York Rangers of some 15 years ago and now playing coach for the New Haven squad is presently trying to locate the AWOL Toyota. Having won their last four starts under Heller and playoffs looming, the Boston Bruin farm officials are almost frantic in their efforts to find him.

According to reliable information, Toyota last week was blithely on his way westward on a tractor-trailer to Winnipeg and points west. With his brother-in-law John Takarabe, Toyota is reported to have gone into the trucking business.

While in Toronto for a brief spell two weeks ago, Toyota was keeping well away from the clutches of Harold "Baldy" Cotton, Boston scout who would be querulous of his presence in the Queen City, away from his New Haven hockey gear.

Queried as to why he gave up his job with New Haven where he was reputedly earning as much as $100 playing hockey two nights a week, he replied that he was "just plain bored" with the whole set-up there. According to Toyota, life gets monotonous merely playing hockey twice a week and just waiting around for the next one.

Hockey as played in the U. S. is altogether of a different variety, stated the youthful puck star, where the spectators go to the game to enjoy mayhem on the ice. "The more fights and the more gore that is spilled, the better the fans love it," said Toyota.

Asked whether hockey is a lucrative field to enter, he quoted that for about four and a half months of play, players receive $2,500 in the Eastern Amateur League, and $5,000 to $6,000 in the American Hockey League, and, of course, much more in the National Hockey League.

For a young fellow who learned to skate in the ghost town of Slocan, B. C., who took up hockey in St. Catharines to graduate to Junior "A" hockey, and then up as far as the Hershey Bears of the American Hockey League early this season, he has come a long way.

About his future plans, Toyota said, "Come next season, I'll have to make peace with the Boston officials and go to pre-season training camp where I hope I'll be assigned anywhere except New Haven."

Toyota who is 21 years old, 170 lbs. and 5 ft. 7 inches, first played organized hockey in 1945 when he played for the St. Catharines bantam team that won the All-Ontario championship. Following two years with the midgets and two more with the juveniles, Toyota moved up to the St. Catharines Teepees of the OHA Junior "A" League in 1950-51 and then to Kitchener Greenshirts in 1951-52.

ance which our government places in Japanese-American relations.

Probably no other individual with a better personal background for his job has ever been named to any diplomatic post.

His long association with Japanese affairs began when as a young man he taught in the schools in Japan and for a year engaged in business in Japan and China. He entered the Foreign Service in 1930 as a clerk in the American Consulate in Shanghai and practically all of his service has been in the Far East. An American consul at the time of the attack on Pearl Harbor, he was interned by the Japanese government.

Ambassador Allison succeeds able, friendly Robert Murphy who has been named Assistant Secretary of State for the United Nations. In this capacity, it is expected that he will strive to secure the admission of Japan into this international organization.

Speculations at the moment has President Eisenhower appointing Walter S. Robertson, a Richmond (Va.) banker and one-time diplomat in Asia, as the new Assistant Secretary of State for Far Eastern Affairs.

The new State Department lineup augurs well for future relationships between Japan and the United States.

brought before the people well in advance of the general election and that they should have full opportunity to discuss freely and freely express their will on constitutional reform. Failing action by the Cabinet, General MacArthur was prepared people himself.

"The only discussion that ensued involved the question of a uni-cameral legislature, which Dr. Matsumoto questioned. The Japanese appeared visibly surprised and disturbed and said they would have to consider the matter and discuss it with the Cabinet before any definite answer be given."

The foregoing passage clearly cites the position Japanese political leaders were placed as in contrast to belief in some quarters that the Japanese "no war" constitution was inspired by the conquered.

Rearmament issue . . .

Of late, the question of rearmament in view of the "no war" clause of the new constitution has carried much discussion pro and con on both sides of the Pacific.

Dr. Ashida believes constitutional amendments are not required "in view of the spirit of origin."

The draft stated in Article 9 that "aspiring sincerely to an international peace based on justice and order, the Japanese people forever renounce war as a sovereign right of the nation and the threat or use of force as means of settling international dispute."

Dr. Ashida later inserted this particular clause: "in order to accomplish the aim of the preceding paragraph."

His interpretation for this clause should solve the pending discussion of Japan's rearmament since rearmament "for self-defense" is not forbidden in his view.

"For this reason," Dr. Ashida further explained, "Japan can rearm to maintain a militia or something like a national guard for the protection of our country."

He cited an analogy of a family never sleeping without locking their doors, even though assured they would be very safe at home.

"Japan's self-defense militia is not a sign of aggressive war," he continued. "When we discussed the real significance of 'renunciation of war,' we agreed upon an interpretation of 'aggressive war.' Therefore, I am confident to state that no constitutional amendment are required for any self-defensive purpose," stated the chairman of the constitutional committee.

Furthermore, Dr. Ashida believes a constitutional amendment would be impossible since a two-thirds majority is needed. There are many left-wing leaders in the House of Councillors and any move to amend the constitution would be voted down.

Back stage story . . .

Prince Fumimaro Konoye attempted to revise the constitution drastically immediately after the surrender. He discussed the matter with Gen. MacArthur, later with the Emperor. He wanted to streamline the fundamental law to permit universal suffrage, unionization of labor, and eliminate the secret police. When he was named a war criminal, everything came to an end for him, and committed suicide.

Dr. Joji Matsumoto was working on a new constitution. He was in audience with the Emperor on Jan. 7, 1946. It was Feb. 1 that the Japanese cabinet ordered the constitutional draft be presented for SCAP approval. It was later rejected by Gen. MacArthur.

Dr. Ashida recalled, after that rejection, the SCAP draft was offered. "We were told that in recognizing this draft, Japan could join the society of free nations as a member," Dr. Ashida said. The cabinet held urgent sessions and Dr. Matsumoto hurriedly shaped a draft based upon the SCAP guide.

On Feb. 18, SCAP, in reviewing the later Japanese draft, demanded a definite answer within two days whether the SCAP draft was acceptable in principal or not.

On Feb. 21, Premier Shidehara called on Gen. MacArthur and discussed the matter of the constitution. Dr. Ashida said, and the Cabinet met, agreeing to accept the SCAP draft.

Until Mar. 6, the cabinet continued to meet in secret session and finally at 5 p.m., that day, it was released to the press.

The back-stage story of how the Japanese constitution was delivered to the nation alone makes one complete book.

Hawaii statehood

Things appear to be proceeding too smoothly on the Hawaiian statehood bill. Despite the earlier reports of strong opposition in the House, it passed Tuesday 274-138—a 63 percent majority. Yet, can it be a lull before the storm in the Senate?

Everyone believes this is the year. The 17th try may be a charm.

Both Republican and Democratic party platforms have favored statehood for Hawaii. President Eisenhower has even asked that it be expedited. As long as there is no filibuster in the Senate, Hawaii has an excellent chance of having her case adjudged on its merits.

Needless to say, Hawaii deserves statehood. The large preponderance of American public opinion has been in favor of such a move.

The Hawaiian Statehood Commission should not overlook the 85 JACL chapters, which can swing into action, to assist in this final drive for statehood. JACLers are willing to help since the issue was regarded as the top legislative goal at the last National JACL council meeting. The commission could well orient our chapter leaders on fair play and justice warranting the granting of equal status to all citizens of Hawaii.

Thus far, progress has been good. The bill is in good hands. Overconfidence at this point with the Senate considering the bill is dangerous. But, every conceivable danger must be checked to pave the way for smooth and early passage.

Civil rights legislation

An honest and frank appraisal of the civil rights program leads one to the conclusion that there will be no strong FEPC passed by this Republican Congress.

There is no disillusionment on this score since President Eisenhower was fairly clear in his position in that he does not believe in compulsory fair employment practices law. He believes in an educational program which would assure fair play and equality to all citizens.

A reassuring fact is that President Eisenhower is not a racist. He is a liberal as far as race-relations go. If the situation ever drops to a degree where legislation is the only method, we are confident that he will swing toward this view.

In the matter of procedure now that the President has declared himself against FEPC legislation, there are schools of thought. One insists the fight must be waged on the basis of "all or nothing." The other is willing to compromise, get something at this stage rather than wait in vain for many years, if ever.

For the stubborn, we wish to call attention to the educational work accomplished by the War Relocation Authority without compulsory legislation. The bold and courageous stand of Dillon Myer, WRA director, deserves more credit than he has been given. Or a guilty conscience of the American public with the display of loyalty by persons of Japanese ancestry under the most adverse conditions may have altered public sentiment.

Can civil rights be won step by step or will the fight be wage on an "all or nothing" basis?

Since the JACL-ADC assumed the lead in the fight for equality in naturalization and immigration—one of the accomplished planks of the civil rights program—other minority groups are employing the tactics and strategy of the Nisei group is securing other planks of the civil rights program.

Since the stakes are greater on this issue of FEPC for Negro and Jewish groups, the strategy employed in securing equality in naturalization and immigration may be a fitting guide.

Time for Hobbies

by Bill Hosokawa

Denver
Once upon a time long ago, I read that all men ought to have a hobby. That thought has stayed with me. Now I find myself a little worried because I have no hobbies.

It's not that I haven't tried. Hobbies just don't seem to stick with me. It's been that way since childhood.

The first hobby I can remember was stamp-collecting. I thought it was great fun, but about the third day I got tired of looking at three-centers. For about six months after that I threw stamps into a cigar box at sporadic intervals. Most of them hadn't even been steamed off. It was easier to tear the envelope. That's as far as the hobby got.

A kid up the street who started collecting stamps about the same time bought himself an album and went after the hobby the right way. I heard he assembled a collection worth $1,200.

Some time after the stamp incident we got a radio crystal set. I heard the Dempsey-Tunney fight on it and that impressed me to the point where I figured I ought to learn more about radio. A fellow I knew helped me build a one-tube set and it looked briefly as if I were embarked on a hobby-career in electronics.

One day I wondered if the radio would work any better if I crossed a couple of wires. There was a big blue flash followed by an acrid smell, and after that I had to throw the radio away. The fellow who had helped me owns a radio-TV repair shop now. Me? I have to get the kids to sharpen up the TV image.

Over the years I took up a succession of hobbies that were keeping others happy, occupied and contented. First it was tennis, then golf, then fishing, then automobiles, then bridge. I dropped them all almost as fast as I took them up.

There's just one consolation. I just don't have time for a hobby any more.

Financial Woes

During emergencies, people are willing to support a national organization. Once the trouble is over, however, provincialism begins to creep in. This is true with almost every group.

The Canadian Japanese seem to be running true to form from the news accounts contained in The New Canadian, a Japanese-English vernacular published in Toronto.

The subject matter pertains to the National Japanese Canadian Citizens Association which was formed in September, 1947. JACLers were invited to attend the first national conference at Toronto. The Canadians, who had suffered the same fate as the Japanese Americans by being evacuated from the Canadian West Coast to the interior regions, had a great deal to learn from our own experiences.

In order to effectively campaign for restoration of their rights and for evacuation damages, a national organization was set up. The organization which helped to improve the conditions and status of the Canadians of Japanese origin, had strong support until the objectives were attained.

Now, even a budget of $4,800 a year seems to be difficult to attain. The chapters are complaining about their quota. Unless the larger communities continue their support, the national JCCA seems to be on the brink of curtailing its activities to the point where its effectiveness will says he's picked up the habit of reading from right to left as the result of eating in restaurants every day. He looks at the price first, then finds out what's being served.

Larry Tajiri, the one-man gang in the Colorado Springs Free Press newsroom, hastens to correct this column's report on the size of his city. Seems Colo. Spgs. had a population of 35,000 in 1940, was up around the 45,000 mark in 1950. The county has a population of about 65,000, which makes it a sizeable community.

Getting back to hobbies a moment, I eat fish when someone shares his catch with us, prefer to let the fellow at the gas station repair a flat, and play poker once in a while. One hobby I'd like to develop is collecting money, any kind but preferably greenbacks of large denominations. Never seem to be able to get around to it.

Make 'em short

The Pacific Citizen repeats the request, often carried here, that letter writers keep their contributions short—250 words or less. Occasionally, not often, there is space in this column for longer-letters.

The Pacific Citizen reserves the right to cut over-long letters according to the judgment of the paper, endeavoring to retain the gist of the communications.

'Intentions'

I've been wondering what "Intentions" are. I always thought engagement meant in a way—intention. Could you clarify this?

MINORITY WEEK

Arizona public schools

Racial segregation in Arizona's public school system appears destined to be removed finally and completely with a minimum of difficulty. The Arizona Supreme Court will shortly render its decision on the merits of the Maricopa County court ruling holding segregation unconstitutional.

Phoenix maintains three exclusive Negro elementary schools and one high school, although Negro students are not forced to attend the high school. There has never been any attempts to force segregation at the college levels.

San Francisco residence

Right of residence is still restricted in San Francisco, reports its Council of Civic Unity by some real estate brokers who try to keep non-white buyers out of remaining "white" blocks and by the San Francisco Housing Authority which is discriminating on racial grounds against applicants despite a superior court finding which is now on appeal by the public agency.

Oakland firehouses

While a policy against racial segregation among municipal employees was reaffirmed by the Oakland city council, the California Federation of Civic Unity reports its fire department is still under fire for maintaining segregated firehouses.

The volume number of the Pacific Citizen last week should have read Vol. 36, No. 10. The volume number this week is in proper sequence.—Editor.
