

Rice grower may be first Issei in Texas as citizen

Houston, Tex.

An Issei who has lived a greater portion of his life in Texas is a step closer to his cherished goal—citizenship. Kiyoaki Saibara, 68, prominent rice grower who sent three sons into the U. S. armed forces, has recently passed his preliminary examinations with flying colors at the local Immigration and Naturalization Service office.

He came to Harris county 50 years ago when he was 18½ years old after his father urged him to come, but who died before his arrival.

His oldest son, Robert, served in the Army in Germany, rose to the rank of major and is now a lieutenant colonel in the organized reserve. His second son, Warren, is also a war veteran. But the sacrifice came for Saibara when his youngest, Harvey, was killed two years ago while in training with the Air Force at Waco. The 27-year-old had earlier served with the Army of Occupation in Japan and returned home to enlist.

A reticent man who does not speak of himself without pride, the Kochi-born Texan habitually forgets to tell of his part in World War II.

To help the country which would not accept him, he took to shortwave radio at the behest of the government and explained to native countrymen in Japan that the United States was a place where a man was accorded dignity, where a farmer could grow his rice and prosper.

Sociological study of Santa Clara Valley Japanese to be made

San Jose

Two San Jose State College juniors have won Social Science Research Council awards of $600 each to be used for sociological study of Japanese communities in Santa Clara Valley.

Dean C. Taylor and Lawrence Y. Yonemura were winners of the stipends, according to Dr. Leo P. Kibby, head of the college Social Science department. The project will be supervised by Dr. Alexander Vucinich, assistant professor of sociology. It will be conducted this summer.

Yonemura is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Yonemura, 10491 Orange Ave., Cupertino.

Denver Issei quizzed on draft, citizenship held up

Denver

Despite the fact that Harry G. Matoba has passed his naturalization examination, the local office wanted to check his selective service records on the last minute and thus held up his citizenship papers last week.

(The Pacific Citizen erroneously reported he was among the first Japanese to be naturalized in Colorado.)

The Denver I&N office wanted to know why he did not serve in the armed forces during World War I. Facts show the draft board did not recruit him because of his alienage.

Eastern Oregonian passes citizenship examinations

Ontario, Ore.

Kango Wada, 66, was the first Issei to pass his citizenship examination in the area.

Wada was one of more than 100 Issei who joined an Americanization class this winter taught by Rev. Norio Yasaki at the Ontario High School.

Rev. Yasaki acted as Wada's interpreter when he took his citizenship examination Apr. 24 from Herbert Boss, Boise, area director of naturalization and immigration.

Joe Saito and Jess Adrian were Wada's character witnesses.

Kango Wada came to Malheur county 23 years ago. He first settled on West Bench near Vale in 1930. At that time the land was covered with sage brush. Wada cleared the land and had it ready for the irrigation water that came next year. He now has a row crop farm near Ontario.

Wada is the father of eight children.

He is a member of the board of trustees of the Community Methodist church and is past president of the Japanese Ancestry association.

Wada will be sworn in by Circuit Court Judge M. A. Biggs on June 4.

Col. Farrant Turner, original commander of 100th 'Purple Heart' Bn., named Secretary of Hawaii

By L. NAKATSUKA

Honolulu

Banzais rang out from a Japanese tea house in Waikiki on the night of May 7. The Oahu Contractors Association, composed of Japanese men in the building and construction trades, was giving a party in honor of an old friend, Farrant Turner, who had become Secretary of Hawaii a week before.

The Japanese contractors had gotten to know and respect Turner from his association with a large Honolulu building supply firm.

Some contractors remembered Turner from as far back as 30 years ago when he started as a bookkeeper with the firm, Lewers & Cooke, Ltd. He had risen to vice-president by the time Pres. Eisenhower nominated him to be Secretary of Hawaii, the No. 2 Territorial position in Hawaii, next only to the Governor and equivalent to a lieutenant governor of a state.

Most of Hawaii's people know Farrant Turner as the commander who led the first Nisei outfit into combat during World War II. He was the original commander of the 100th Infantry Battalion, composed of Japanese Americans of the Hawaii National Guard.

The 100th was organized by Lt. Col. Turner on June 5, 1942, and trained in Wisconsin, Mississippi and Louisiana before going overseas to Africa then to Italy in September, 1943.

That was the start of an epic battle career up the Italian boot, including the bloody episode at Cassino, that earned for the 100th the nickname of "Purple Heart Battalion."

After about a month in Italy, Col. Turner was relieved of his command. He spent most of the next six months in various military hospitals and was discharged in August, 1944.

His decorations included the Combat Infantryman's Badge, Italian Medal for Valor and the Legion of Merit.

The 100th later became a battalion of the 442nd Regimental Combat Team but retained its name.

The 100th veterans were among those who cheered loudest when Farrant Turner was picked to become Secretary of Hawaii by Eisenhower. The U.S. Senate confirmed the nomination on Apr. 30.

The next day, while more than 100 relatives and friends witnessed the ceremony, Turner took the oath of office at Iolani Palace the executive and legislative headquarters of the Territorial government.

Because Gov. Samuel Wilder King had to leave for Washington later that same day, Turner became acting Governor six and a half hours after being sworn in as Secretary.

Thus, within a 24 hour period Turner was vice president of a business firm, then Secretary of Hawaii, then acting Governor.

Turner was acting Governor for nine days, until Gov. King returned from a White House conference of state and territorial governors.

Turner is a "kamaaina" (old-timer). He was born in Hilo on July 16, 1895, and educated in island schools. Later, he studied at Wesleyan university, Middletown, Conn.

He was commissioned second lieutenant, after attending officers' training camp during World War I, but saw no combat during his service in France.

An active civic worker, Turner directed the Honolulu Community Chest in 1949, was president of the Honolulu Chamber of Commerce in 1951, and is a member of numerous community groups.

Mr. and Mrs. Turner have a son Army Lt. Albert Farrant Turner, stationed at Schofield Barracks, Oahu, and an eight month old grandson, Albert Farrant Turner, Jr.

STIGMA OF PROSCRIBED JAPANESE ORGANIZATIONS SEED FOR SUSPICION

Los Angeles

The "cloud of suspicion should be lifted" as it concerns persons of Japanese ancestry in the United States by removal of 21 Japanese so-called "totalitarian" organizations on the Attorney General's proscribed list of subversive organizations.

The members of the National JACL board and staff which first convened in Phoenix during the recent PSWDC convention and later in Los Angeles conferred with Frank Chuman, legal counsel and agreed to submit a blanket protest to the Attorney General.

"I am glad to see the JACL taking steps along this line now that the government has announced procedures for the contesting of these listings. The FBI and government agencies have reported no evidence that these organizations carried on subversive activities and certainly 11 years after Pearl Harbor, this cloud of suspicion should be lifted," Chuman said.

Procedures for organizations on the proscribed list seeking removal from the list have been published in the May 6 Federal Register, Chuman reported.

According to the Federal Register, organizations may file a written notice to the Attorney General that it contests such designation, such notice to be submitted within 10 days after the effective date of effective Order 10450 (Apr. 27, 1953) which becomes effective on May 26 following a 30 day period.

Failure to file a notice of contest within such a period shall be deemed an acquiescence in such a designation.

"In other words, failure to protest is equivalent to an admission that such an organization is totalitarian, subversive or Un-American" said Chuman.

Rules of procedure further provide that within 60 days of receipt of such a notice of contest by an organization, the Attorney General shall forward to that organization its reason for being proscribed.

Officers or directors of that organization shall then have the opportunity within a following 60 days period to reply to those charges and submit affidavits and other evidence.

The organization may request for a hearing.

The organization shall be entitled to appear with its attorney or representative and present oral testimony or documentary evidence. The Attorney General will subsequently determine whether that organization would be declassified.

Chuman noted that Japanese organizations are not separately listed but are lumped together alphabetically with Communist and other subversive organizations on the Federal Register on May 12, thus giving im-

San Francisco

Issei and Nisei community leaders in conference with Mike Masaoka Washington JACL representative, last week were unanimous in the decision to have the JACL request hearing with the Attorney General concerning the 21 proscribed Japanese organizations.

Attending the meeting were: (Issei) N. Akahoshi, S. Hamada, B. Hata, S. Hideshima, K. Kasai, Dr. K. Kiyasu, K. Koda, I. Motoki, S. Nakamura, F. M. Nonaka, I. Rikimaru, A. Sugawara, K. Suwada. (Nisei) Victor Abe, Yas Abiko, Kei Hori, Dr. Shig Horio, Fred Hoshiyama and Haruo Ishimaru.

New Mexico greets Issei as citizens

Gallup, N. M.

The first Japanese to become citizens in McKinley county took their oath of citizenship before District Judge David W. Carmody May 4.

Frank Utao Kuzuoka, 71, and Mrs. Chiyoko Miyamura Herrera, 33, took part in naturalization proceedings that saw 10 aliens from seven different countries become citizens of the United States.

Paul L. Stoops, immigration and naturalization examiner, said "to the best of my knowledge, Kuzuoka and Mrs. Herrera are first Japanese ever naturalized in the state of New Mexico."

Frank Utao Kuzuoka, came here from Japan in 1900. He has been living at the Henry Hotel. Mrs. Chiyoko Miyamura Herrera lives at 206 Rosita Ave., in Gamero. She has been in the United States since 1922. Only under a recent law were Japanese allowed to become citizens of this country.

Increase reported for immigration office budget

Los Angeles

Immediate and generally favorable replies from congressmen, senators and government officials were reported today by Ken Dyo, newly elected PSWDC chairman in response to resolutions adopted by the PSWDC convention in Phoenix urging appropriations to compensate evacuation claims and to expedite the naturalization program of the Issei.

Rep. Chauncey W. Reed (R., Ill.), chairman of the House Judiciary Committee informed the JACL that the Immigration and Naturalization Service appropriation for fiscal 1954 provides for $52,250,000, or an increase of $1,851,000 over the actual appropriation for the current fiscal year.

Increased appropriation is provided in HR 4974 and, according to the House Committee on Appropriations, the increase will allow full implementation of Immigration and Nationality Act of 1952.

Rep. Cecil R. King (D., Calif.) stated that "I find myself in accord with the purposes of the resolution and you may be assured of my cooperation."

Sen. Carl Hayden, (D., Ariz.) stated "I shall do all I can to be helpful in these matters."

MIKE MASAOKA

Without attracting the public concern that it should, one of the most fundamental changes in the powers of the President to enter into international agreements and treaties since the Federal Constitution itself was adopted 160 years ago is now being considered in Congress.

In the nature of two constitutional amendments according to the State Department, their purpose is to insure treaties shall not be regarded as superior to the Constitution and shall not have the same force as domestic law without action by both houses of Congress.

MASAOKA

Both are in resolution form. One, Sen. Watkins of Utah, would require action by the States to make common types of treaty provisions effective. The other, by Sen. Bricker of Ohio and others, would outlaw any treaty whereby a foreign power might "supervise, control, or adjudicate" rights of United States citizens within this country or any other essentially domestic matter.

Sponsors of these measures contend that these curbs and restraints are necessary to prevent the use of the treaty-making power to effect internal social changes. Although the Bricker resolution was introduced during the Truman administration, it is being pushed in the Eisenhower regime.

The present administration, joined by most of the so-called liberal and internationally-minded organizations, are opposed to these resolutions although most of these organizations are disturbed by Secretary of State Dulles' admission that this government will not sign the projected United Nations covenants on human rights and on the political rights of women and will withhold a request for ratification of the genocide convention which was signed by the United States four years ago.

They see in the Secretary's statements the undermining of efforts to promote human rights through international cooperation.

In testimony before the Senate Judiciary Committee, the Secretary of State warned that each of the resolutions would deprive the nation of treaty making powers in large areas, such as the international control of atomic energy and mass destruction weapons.

They would deny, he said, to all treaties the force of law, making their enforcement dependent upon subsequent action by both Houses of Congress or state legislatures in spite of the fact that they had to be ratified by two-thirds of the Senate.

They would subject the current day-to-day conduct of foreign affairs to impediments which might be stifling.

Dulles declared that the treaty-making power is a limited one, as indicated in all Supreme Court cases on the subject and that at present the effect of any treaty as internal law can be overcome by a simple act of Congress. He pointed out that since we became a nation a treaty has never produced the results which the proponents of these resolutions fear.

Japan elections . . .

It was not so long ago that Nisei Americans ignored almost completely Japanese election returns.

Since the end of the war, however, no group of Americans has taken a greater interest in the recent parliamentary election results than the Nisei, for they are today presumed to be an indication of the degree of pro-American sympathy among the people of our ancestry.

Prime Minister Shigeru Yoshida's Liberal Party, considered to be the most pro-United States of all Japan's many political parties, although failing to gain an absolute majority in the Lower House, won 199 of the 466 seats in the House of Representatives.

The Progressive won 76, Left Socialists 72, Right Socialists 66 Dissident Liberals 35, and the balance, 18 scattered, including one Communist. If the Dissident or Hatoyama Liberals had gone along with Yoshida, the Liberals would have had the 35 additional votes needed to give them control of the House.

A week after the elections for the Lower House, the periodic elections for a third of the Upper House of Councillors again demonstrated Yoshida's over-all strength as Japan's most popular political figure.

This outcome in both elections indicates that the Prime Minister can keep his followers in line and that the Japanese people, in the main, find no fault with his policies which were criticized before and during the campaigns as being "too pro-America".

The brief campaign for the Lower House was listless, being characterized by all as "the election nobody wanted" except for a flurry toward the end when opposition orators tried to build up an anti-American smear by charging that the United States was trying to meddle in the elections. The attempt fell flat. That and the election results generally show that this country retains a large and substantial amount of goodwill in Japan.

This is an asset of inestimable importance to this country in its international relations and to the Nisei who know now that the goodwill between this nation and Japan measures the degree of our acceptance in our respective communities.

The elections just concluded also resulted in the rejection of many so-called big-name candidates whose reelection had been taken for granted. Many of them were pre-war politicians who had reentered the political arena after Japan had regained her sovereignty a year ago.

For most Americans, the defeat of 92 year old Independent Yukio Ozaki, one-time Mayor of Tokyo who sent cherry trees to Washington in 1912, was the major upset. After 26 consecutive victories at the polls since 1890, the year the first Diet was organized, he met defeat.

For the Nisei, the defeat of Frank Tokizo Matsumoto, Hiroshima's Progressive Party candidate, was the big shock. Matsumoto, California and Harvard-educated, had many personal friends among the Nisei and was probably the best known of all the Diet members.

Another election casualty of interest was that of Noboru Tanigawa, also of Hiroshima but of the Liberal Party, whose parents still reside in Florin, California.

Canada may relax strict immigration policy against Japanese Canadians

Ottawa

Definite improvement in the general picture for Japanese Canadians with regard to the readmission and immigration to Canada of relatives was noted by several senators and members of parliament when George Tanaka, National JCCA executive secretary, and Rei Nishio of the Quebec JCCA recently made representation to the federal government.

Tanaka said that there was a definite change in attitude as contrast to previous years with the officials having a sympathetic and favorable attitude to the problem.

In reference to the return of Canadian Nisei who were forced to serve in the Japanese Armed Forces, for example, Sen. Arthur Roebuck stated "since the war is over, the sooner we forget the better" and that such persons should be readmitted on compassionate grounds.

Sen. Roebuck is one of the key senators in Ottawa and is influential in regard to civil rights, citizenship and other allied matters.

Hon. Walter E. Harris, minister of Citizenship and Immigration, whom they met on Apr. 30, seemed favorably inclined to the problem.

He assured giving close attention to the matter and that he would issue a definite reply in one or two months.

Urge educators teach citizenship in Japanese

Los Angeles

Vital need of an adult education program in Los Angeles was vigorously expressed by the more than 150 persons attending the "Community Leader's Dinner" sponsored by the Los Angeles Adult Education Principals Association May 7 at the Board of Education Bldg.

Some 2,000 students now attend adult education classes in Los Angeles at an average cost of $10 per student, it was revealed.

At least 14 per cent of the classroom instruction time is devoted to Americanization and citizenship, according to Attorney Saburo Kido, who represented the JACL at the dinner.

Kido called upon the Board of Education to give consideration to the teaching of Americanization and citizenship classes in the Japanese language, particularly in the light of the provision of the 1952 Immigration and Nationality Act which permits the taking of naturalization examinations in foreign languages for persons over 50 years of age who have resided 20 years or more in the United States.

Representatives of the Community Service Organization, JACL counterpart in the Mexican American community, made a similar plea and pointed out that the CSO has provided eight volunteer instructors to teach naturalization preparation courses in the Spanish language.

First nurses from once-held Japanese Micronesian islands study in Hawaii

Honolulu

Two young nurses from the Trust Territory of the Pacific Islands became the first Micronesians to come to this country to study nursing in Hawaii hospitals.

They are Kiyoko Sulial, 23, of Palau in the Western Carolines and Irminia A. Benevente, 18, from Saipan in the Northern Marianas.

The two have received a year's scholarship from the Hawaii Federation of Business and Professional Women's clubs to further their nursing education.

Both are undergoing intensive on the job training at Leahi hospital.

Miss Sulial, whose mother is a native of Palau and whose late father Toichiro Kawai was a Japanese, speaks fluent Japanese.

She was separated from her father when she was four. He had been operating a piggery farm in Palau but later went to Saipan with her elder sister to work in a honey manufacturing plant. He died there during World War II, she said.

According to Miss Sulial, she attended a Japanese school for five years before the war. Following war's end, she graduated from a training school for nurses on Guam and had been with the Korol hospital on Palau.

She said since tuberculosis rate in Palau is very high, she recently completed six months training at Leahi hospital on how to nurse TB patients.

Miss Benevente, who also attended a Japanese school for two years, said she was a classmate of Miss Sulial's at the Guam school for nurses. Her parents are both natives of Saipan.

Many consider their defeat due to the ever-increasing anti-American sentiment in Japan.

Matsumoto regards his defeat as one of over-confidence. Ueyehara says he did not have enough money. Sasamori says it was tough luck. Everyone has his excuse.

Cotton dealer. . .

To YPCC leaders in California, the name of Harry Naka of Livingston is very familiar. During the occupation period here, Harry was kind and patient assisting the distressed, winning the admiration of Japanese leaders.

His job was then as cotton consultant at the economics section under Gen. William F. Marquat. He helped to get the crippled textile industry on its feet. He persevered in telling the real picture to occupation authorities. His feat won him unanimous praise from Americans and Japanese. He was another Nisei whose reputation denies the awful accusation against the second generation.

Naka gradually won the support of Japanese business leaders. He established himself in Kobe, going into the cotton importing business.

English professor granted Ford Foundation award

Honolulu

Colorado-born Dr. Thomas H. Fujimura, assistant professor of English at the Univ. of Hawaii, will study this fall under the Ford Foundation grant at Harvard. He expects to do research on naturalism.

Altogether, 167 Nisei were working in the fields of a four-county area—Santa Cruz, San Benito, Santa Clara and Monterey. Added to the first contingent of 35 who were flown here two weeks ago were 167 workers who docked in San Francisco May 3.

A. W. Laederich, state Dept. of Employment farm placement representative here, said the operators of about 4,500 acres of strawberries in four counties advanced the transportation costs to workers who are guaranteed the prevailing wage and have arranged housing for them.

The operators, Laederich said, hope to reduce or do away with the need for importing Mexican nationals by using Hawaiian workers and drawing on the local labor supply.

Another group of 114 workers from the islands was expected to arrive within a few days.

They were recruited by the employment service of Hawaii at the request of the California employment service. The move helps solve shortages in the supply of strawberry harvest workers and helps to relieve unemployment conditions in the islands.

At the close of the strawberry harvest, the workers will be given the choice of returning to their homes or remaining California as leasers of strawberry farms, Laederich said.

Salt Lake class of 55 congratulated

Salt Lake City
Gilbert F. Gower, director of the Salt Lake office of Immigration and Naturalization, addressed 55 students of the naturalization class at the Inter-mountain Buddhist Church recently.

He congratulated the graduates in their sincere effort to obtain American citizenship.

Gower warned that citizenship is not a simple one-way gift. He stressed the importance of the tremendous responsibilities which will accompany citizenship.

Above all, one must give up his loyalty to his former country and must pledge allegiance to the United States against any foreign aggressor.

Gower deplores the policy of certain nationality groups in the United States in trying to influence our foreign policy in favor of their former country.

Acting as guide enables Kyoto student to study at Univ. of Michigan

San Francisco

Because of a friendly act, a Doshisha university student will be studying shortly at Ann Arbor, Mich. instead of Kyoto.

Tadashi Ishimaru, 26, cousin of Haruo Ishimaru, N.C. JACL regional director, recently arrived on the President Wilson to continue his studies at the Univ. of Michigan.

Some time ago, he had met three U.S. naval officers at Maruyama park in Kyoto and had been their guide during their shore leave in Japan. He later corresponded with them after they returned to duty.

One of the officers, a Lt. Leighton, wrote his father-in-law, Rudolph G. Rusty, formerly a professor at Univ. of Michigan, about his experiences with Ishimaru.

Through this chance meeting and letter to America, Rusty became interested in the Japanese student and now has taken it upon himself to provide the means of sending Ishimaru through an American university.

Nisei judoists star in first National AAU tournament

San Jose
Lyle Hunt of San Jose State was crowned Tournament Champion and the Hawaiian entry won the team championships as the first National AAU judo tournament was concluded before 1500 fans last Saturday night at Spartan Gym.

Some 93 judoists participated in more than 100 matches last week-end.

Hunt won the heavyweight division then threw Moon Kikuchi of San Jose Buddhist Church, the 180-lb. champion, and Charles Nakashima of Honolulu, the 150-lb. champion, to earn the ultimate honor.

Hawaii scored 11 points to be followed by San Jose State, 8, San Francisco, 8, San Jose Buddhist, 5, Chicago, 4, and Stockton, 3.

Nakashima had entered the finals against Hunt by throwing his Hawaiian teammate, George Hatae, the 130-lb. champion.

The winning Hawaiian team was presented with a championship trophy sent from the Kodokan Judo headquarters in Tokyo. It was presented by Haruhisa Kobayashi, Japanese Consul in San Francisco.

Competition was by the Black scoring system. Three points were charged against a competitor if he lost by a fall, two if he lost a decision, one if he won a decision and none if he won by a fall. Anyone accumulating five points was eliminated.

Hunt and Hatae won their weight championships without a point charged against them, but Hunt went on to win the Tournament championship and maintain his perfect record. He earned falls over nine consecutive opponents.

The first three place finishers in each division were as follows:

Heavyweight — Lyle Hunt, San Jose State; Vince LaRot, San Francisco; Ronald Heyse, Chicago.

180 lbs.— Moon Kikuchi, San Jose Buddhist; Arthur Broadbent, Chicago; Harp Didier, San Jose State.

150 lbs.— Charles Nakashima, Hawaii; Frank Morimoto, San Francisco; Fred Morimoto, San Francisco.

130 lbs.— George Hatae, Hawaii; Sam Omura, Stockton; Dick Moriguchi, San Francisco.

Tournament director was Yosh Uchida, San Jose State judo coach and Far Western AAU Commissioner for judo.

Bowling columnist warns Nisei bowlers participating in non-sanctioned leagues; cites case of Umon Nakanishi

Los Angeles
Umon Nakanishi, who rolled the highest scratch series in the recent Los Angeles tournament with a 705 (729-24), was disqualified and failed to win the city B championship. Officials dropped him when it was learned he rolled in a non-sanctioned league.

(Two weeks ago, The Pacific Citizen reported Umon Nakanishi had won the class B Los Angeles city bowling title with his 705 scratch series. Last week, the bowling officials found he had bowled in a non-sanctioned league. Paul Uyemura, bowling columnist in the Rafu Shimpo, asked: Who's to blame? His comments, the Pacific Citizen feels, should alert other Nisei leagues which are members of the American Bowling Congress.)

I heard that Umon Nakanishi lost out in the City bowling tournament because he rolled in a non-sanctioned league. Yes sir, his solid 705 series went with the breeze.

I wonder what league it was? Who is to blame for the negligence in failing to register the league with ABC? What was wrong with the bowling alley?

What can be done for the innocent victim?

From what I hear, Umon is not to blame for he had asked that the league be sanctioned. The ironical part about the whole thing is that Umon was asked to fill in until some was found to bowl, but as time passed, it looked like no one was to take his place and he stayed with the league. His inquiries must have gone unanswered and so this boot in the pants by ABC was not his fault.

However, out the window goes his record breaking efforts as well as the top money in his class.

This ruling by ABC, I believe does not take in just Umon but the whole league.

This means all members that non-sanctioned league will be ineligible to take part in an ABC sanctioned tournament such as all-Nisei tournaments have in and around Los Angeles. —By PAUL UYEMURA, Rafu Shimpo

SPORTSCOPE

Fuzzy Shimada of San Francisco, first Nisei from any West Coast city to bowl in a National ABC tournament, pounded a 1789 all-events tally Apr. 30 and May 1. Bowling for Salinas Valley Lettuce Growers, he rolled a way-off-his average 492 series, then rolled a 627 singles and a 670 doubles.

George Hinaga and Yob Tanaka are favored to win the Peninsula Fairways Golf Club's first annual spring tourney May 24 and 31—the first 36-hole event scheduled at Crystal Springs the final 18 at Sharp's Park.

Fred Shigemoto of San Jose's Lincoln High School qualified in the 100-yd. breaststroke event of the Peninsula Athletic League finals this weekend at Sequoia High School pool.

Stand workers . . .

It seems unbelievable fruit-stand workers labored from 12 to 4 hours a day, six days a week for $20 before the war. More startling is the fact that today their wages have increased 300 percent.

James Carothers, president of the Food Employers Council, has pointed out that while pay scales for food clerks in Los Angeles have soared, the cost-of-living has increased 90 percent since 1940.

It may shock some of the ex-market workers to note that in Los Angeles clerks are the best paid in the nation—higher than wages earned by other skilled tradesmen and professionals.

Carothers explains an apprentice starts at $60 on a 40-hour, five-day week. After a year, he makes over $4,000 a year at the rate of $77.20 per week, plus 15 cents an hour extra for any work after 7 p.m., double-time on Sundays.

If you venture to work on a Saturday, it's worth $38.60 that Naturalization . . .

The Walter-McCarran Act of 1952 is benefiting more persons of Japanese ancestry than the evacuation claims law of 1948. The more recent legislation has stirred unprecedented interest among the Issei, even surprising the most skeptical. Steps to naturalization are slow.

The sixth Southland Issei to become a citizen of these United States was Ted Ichiji Akahoshi, a ranchman, who took his oath yesterday. In line for naturalization May 22 are the late Dr. John Misao Yamazaki, St. Mary's Episcopal Church, and his wife, Mary Tsune. Another 15 are awaiting final approval of their petitions.

The local Naturalization Office estimates approximately 100 petitions for citizenship from Issei have been received.

Southland notes . . .

California has its sixth all-Japanese Veterans of Foreign Wars post. A group was formed this week in Gardena as Post 1961. The Gardena Valley VFW Post is named Seichi Sugino, World War II veteran, as temporary chairman until its formal elections May 25. There are 15 charter members.

Dr. George Y. Abe, 37, was accepted into the American Board of Psychiatry and Neurology, following his successful passage of examinations taken in April in San Francisco.

The Downey resident is a member of the Norwalk Hospital, and is the first Southland Nisei to be recognized in the national organization.

Regarding mental cases among the Japanese, Dr. Abe says they rank the same with the nation's average—about one out of five families or one out of every 20. He is a graduate of the Univ. of Cincinnati Medical School.

Vandals broke two large windows of Sam Minami's sporting goods shop in Gardena last week-end. Till recently he was quartered in Li'l Tokyo with Joseph's Men's Wear. Gardena authorities have reported vandalism has been on the rise in recent weeks and a patrol of the area has been initiated.

Some 100 teenagers swarmed into All Nation's on East Street last week to inaugurate the Friday night J.A.C. Club Service Bureau program. The community center is in the midst of celebrating its anniversary and the Sanei is treated to portions of the cake.

Transport crew, Californians pitch in to start dairy farm or Yokohama home

Tokyo
Cow-san a gift Guernsey from Americans to Japanese orphans waited in quarantine today after her 5,000-mile trip—in style—from California.

The cow, a promise of fresh milk for tots of the Nakazato Gakuen Orphanage, arrived this week aboard the lines SS President Pierce.

Cow-san—Japanese for "honorable cow"—is expecting a calf and officials of the orphanage pointed out happily she may well become the start of a dairy for the institution.

The Guernsey is a gift from the officers and crew of the Military Sea Transport Gen. Breckinridge, and from residents of the San Francisco area.

When Capt. Paul S. Maguire, commanding officer of the Breckinridge, heard the orphan children needed fresh milk, he and his crew decided to remedy the situation.

The help of Californians was asked.

Holthouse Brothers Dairy Sunnyvale, offered to sell

Cow-san—cheap.
The 4-H Club of Marin County guaranteed the purchase.

The Breckinridge crew raised funds for transporting the Guernsey to Japan. After 10 more days of quarantine, Cow-san will be delivered to the Yokohama orphanage.

Columnist disagrees with author of 'Nisei Daughter'

Seattle
While reviews of Monica Sone's book, "Nisei Daughter", in the main have followed this line of thought: that evacuation was just one laugh after another, The Northwest Times columnist of "Main Street" didn't find much to laugh about.

Writes Budd Fukei, who edited an English section here during the critical period of December, 1941, to April, 1942, "Mrs. Sone was writing to please a certain segment of the American population."

It was his belief the "true story has yet to be told".

Oregon scholarship winner doing good

Portland
Reports of achievements of their Oriental scholarship students filled with pride some 60 state officers and club members attending the recent Oregon board meeting of the Business and Professional Women's clubs.

Since 1948, $4,000 has been raised to bring women from the Pacific basin to study at Oregon State College.

One of the 1951 scholarship winners, Chiyo Matsushima of Japan, was graduated with honors from OSC, where she majored in clothing and textiles in June.

She is now supervisor of home economics with the prefectural board of education at Yamaguchi. In this position she heads the home economics department for elementary, junior and senior high schools on a county basis.

The post had been vacant for two years for lack of a qualified or willing administrator. Mis Matsushima also lectures at the Univ. of Yamaguchi.

The old fight

When discrimination strikes, there should be no hesitation in fighting for fair play, equality and just treatment. There is nothing wrong in demanding our rights. To do less would mean we are not fulfilling our obligations to our fellow men.

Our fight has not been for favoritism. Such victories as we have won were not handed us on a silver platter.

Our wartime and postwar experiences have taught us that in unity, there is strength. And this unity is best manifested through organization. The voice of a people can be heard most effectively under one banner.

Anyone afraid to fight for his rights discovers that very few will notice or care for his problems. Respect of the American people is given to those willing to stand up for their rights.

Some Issei do not believe in the National JACL. They think local chapters are sufficient. They regard writing to congressmen and meeting local authorities are adequate.

Their philosophy is decidedly defeatist in attitude. For instance, they won't want us to fight for better housing conditions by resisting racial restrictive covenants. "Why live where we're not welcomed" is their conclusion.

Could it be these Issei, whose days are admittedly numbered, are complacent — unwilling to fight for principles? If so, they believe living in ghettos, high rent for dingy rooms, extravagant prices for old houses. (And others can buy new homes on a small down payment because the government assists in financing.)

It is in the same negative tone when they say,

"Why try to eliminate names of proscribed Japanese organizations from the subversive list when the Issei directly involved are few and getting fewer?"

However, we are happy to note there are more Issei who still have the "old fight", wanting to improve conditions for their children and grandchildren even at the sacrifice of inconveniences and persecution. They're willing to fight for what is right. Their outlook is not warped by misguided modesty.

Concerning the proscribed organizations, we know the Issei will join the Nisei in this measure. It is the first time that an opportunity is being afforded to clear the notion that these prewar Japanese societies are in the same category as Communist and other Communist-front organizations. This list of the Attorney General's is to be a standard to determine one's loyalty to the United States. The utmost should be done to show the Japanese groups do not belong in the same camp as the Reds.

To be branded as a member of a subversive organization has dangerous implications. This fact alone necessitates action to have the names stricken from the list.

It is true that this list has no bearing on naturalization proceedings as far as the Japanese organizations are concerned. They have been defunct since Dec. 7, 1941. The Walter-McCarran Act permits the statute of limitations (of 10 years) to apply. But the danger still lurks because this list can be used in many ways—such as loyalty tests for civil service positions and in immigration matters.

The joint effort of having the Issei bring to light the nature of these proscribed groups and the Nisei present them to the Attorney General, we believe, can eliminate many—if not all—of the 21 names on the proscribed list today.

The Old Ball Game

by Bill Hosokawa

Denver

Mike, Pete and I went to the baseball game the other night. The Denver Bears were playing the Lincoln Chiefs in a Class A Western league contest. We got there early so we could see the teams warm up before the game. That meant that we spent about three hours at the ball park.

In that time the kids, with a small assist from me, consumed a full pound of peanuts, three cokes and a big box of popcorn. If the checker had been in better shape we would have had some hotdogs, too. Pete was most impressed by the little tractor that smoothed out the infield. Mike showed wholesome respect for the way the catcher threw the ball back to the pitcher. It smacked into the pitcher's glove with such vigor that Mike, who suffers from a tender skin, was feeling right sorry for him.

On the way home, Pete fell asleep in the car. A good time was had by all. The score? Denver won, 4 to 3, with a run in the bottom of the ninth.

When and how does one teach a child honesty?

I had occasion to wonder the other day when Mike and I went into a sporting good store to buy a bat. Mike had been saving his dimes and nickels—no one seems to bother much with pennies any more—to buy a bat and it was a big event for him. (Or one thing he blamed his inability to hit on his not having a good bat of his own. He figured that if he had a real good bat, he'd be slamming out homers like Mickey Mantle.)

So we went to the store and Mike hefted a few bats and found one he liked. The price was $2.65, which seems like a pretty fat price to pay for a little old softball bat.

The clerk said: "Do you play for a league team?"

I learned a long, long time ago that league teams always get discounts on equipment. I would have said: "Sure, and what's the discount?" whether I played on a league team or not. You get shrewd that way when you have to count your pennies, as most of us Nisei did when we were kids.

But, Mike, he had to be honest. He mumbled "No" and I saw visions of the discount flying out the window.

Maybe the clerk was hard of hearing. Maybe he just wasn't listening. Anyway, he just said: "Okay, league players get a 55-cent discount. For you, the bat is $2.10." So Mike paid $2.10 plus six cents tax, and got his discount even though he wasn't trying to.

What should I have said and done? Darned if I know. What's the moral of this story? I don't know that either. Sometimes it's sure tough being a parent.

There's nothing particularly amusing about the experiences of an American soldier captured and imprisoned by the Chinese Reds. But Corp. Ernest Contreas of Denver, the first PW to return to this city, has a sense of humor. In recounting life in a PW camp, he told of the frequency with which fish heads appeared in their meals, and wondered who got to eat the fish.

"Maybe," I suggested, "the guards ate them."

"No," said Contreas, "far as I could tell they weren't eating any better than we were. Come to think of it, the fish in Korea must be so poor they're nothing but heads."

Very Truly Yours . . .

Shinagawa Comes Home

by Harry K. Honda

This Korean war has had many ups & downs throughout its near-three years of campaigning. Among the blessings was the recent release of sick and wounded prisoners by the Communists . . . The Pacific Citizen carried the first story two weeks ago. Last week, our Honolulu correspondent sent in the Army photo of the arrival home of Pfc. Susumu Shinagawa, the only Nisei to be returned . . . This week, let's refer to the front page articles in the Honolulu dailies of this dramatic moment.

"Even Iron Mike cried," the Star-Bulletin gal Friday Sarah Park began. (Sarah, Korean-born newspaperwoman, was among those recently naturalized.) Iron Mike is Lt. Gen. John W. O'Daniel—the living symbol of a hardened soldier, and commander of the U. S. Army in the Pacific . . . Jack Burby of the Advertiser and International News Service correspondent enshrined Shinagawa's first words as he got off the giant transport plane at Hickam Field. "Mama, don't cry now. I'm back" . . . Last week's engraving couldn't show the tears welling in the eyes of his mom and sister, but the glossy photograph depicts them clearly . . . Sarah pointed out he was a corporal and not a private first-class as originally reported . . . There were 21 relatives at the field, swarming about him in a sea of wild, tearful emotion . . . He was quartered in the general's suite at Tripler Army Hospital, had a tooth pulled the next day and declared fit enough to go home to Kauai for a 30-day furlough . . . "I didn't think the American government would afford my son this much respect," his 58-year-old father later told the press in Japanese, which a Nisei sergeant translated. Both Mr. and Mrs. Shinagawa speak English, but in the emotion of the day broke naturally into the Japanese language. "It is something that could happen only in America" . . . And like all good mothers, Mrs. Shinagawa was worried: "I cannot help thinking about the other mothers who still have sons in Korea" . . . Mrs. Sam Wilder King stood a little way off from the corporal, her eyes misty, too . . . By the time the press got in close to shoot their pictures and questions, the 24-year-old soldier's eyes were red from the grit of emotion . . . He told how he was captured 40 miles south of Seoul 11 days after the war started. Food at times was "pretty rough" . . . Until the plane came, Mrs. Shinagawa was so nervous she took a teaspoonful of red liquid to "quiet my nerves" . . . Little Gloria Jean, 5½, sat on the floor reading comic books . . . Elder Shinagawa told reporters he was World War I veteran, a naturalized citizen, and has worked 38 years as a stevedore for Consolidated Terminals . . . Mrs. Shinagawa told of receiving a letter from Jean A. Ferris, who used to be Susumu's English teacher in 1946 at Waimea High School. The teacher now lives in Tucson, Ariz. and expressed happiness at his safety . . . There are two other boys in the family: Charles, 20, who expects to be called; and Fred, 17, a Waimea High School student.

I thought it'd be a treat to read something aside from cold statistics of the number of casualties or of the bombing and shelling of Korean hills, roads and supply depots . . . Those we can read every-day if we want to.

MINORITY

Rev. Henry C. Collins was elected city councilman in Bakersfield, the first Negro in the state's history to be so honored.

Boston U's Phi Sigma Kappa fraternity suspended by national group because it initiated a Negro.

Leon Jolson set up a $250,000 foundation "to promote better understanding between all races, creeds and nationalities on the community level." He came in this country in 1947 with only a few possessions, his memories of a Nazi concentration camp, $6 in cash and a will to succeed in the new world. Today, he is a citizen and president of a multi-million dollar firm.

Opinions from Other Newspapers . . .

Language Purges

Did you ever hear of the Saint Joachim Valley? Or the town of Departure, the Snowy Mountains, the cities of Modesty, Butter, Wild Cats, The Baths, Saint Andrew? These names (San Joaquin, Salida, Sierra Nevada, Modesto, Manteca, Los Gatos, Los Banos, San Andreas) are the anglicized versions of Spanish names used in this state, and of course there are many more of them. They would be adopted if California followed the policy set by the Federal District of Mexico in purifying the native language.

Down Mexico way an official order has gone out changing the names garbled by Americanism back to the pure Spanish. Hence hair will be cut in a peluqueria instead of in a barberia, and tourists will not dine in a loncheria, but in comedor. Doubtless the effort is part of the eternal struggle to maintain a language in its pure, classical form, and the fight is a losing one.

Plenty of trouble would be encountered by Americans trying to find new words to describe tamales, enchiladas, arroyos and canyons. They would be compelled to give up cafeterias and chili parlors, and to stop cinching up belts.

It is unlikely that the effort in Mexico and any such attempt in the United States, particularly in California, will meet much success. There are few languages, indeed, which are not indebted to others, and the tries at purification serve to limit expression rather than to enlarge it.

—Stockton Record.
(It'd be interesting to leaf the latest editions of U. S. dictionaries to see how many words of Japanese derivation have been incorporated in our language.)

Insurance

Editor:

Columnist Henry Moss doesn't ride too well for relations with his comment in the Apr. 24 issue about anti-discrimination bill to prevent automobile insurance firms from refusing to write out policies to applicants because of race.

The Pacific Citizen isn't concurring, I hope.

(It does not. Opinions expressed by contributors do not necessarily reflect the JACL or the Pacific Citizen's Editor.)

Citizenship query

Editor: From the enclosed clipping are we to assume that it is not necessary for Issei to take examinations for citizenship providing he is 50 years old and in the U.S. over 20 years. Please explain this in your next issue.

The clipping was published in the Fresno Bee, Apr. 30 as follows:

SAN FRANCISCO — UP — A group of 162 Japanese from Santa Clara County filed naturalization petitions in the United States Immigration Service headquarters here.

The Japanese will be sworn in for citizenship within 30 days under the McCarran-Walter Act abolishing the previous law against Japanese naturalization. The act provides any person over 50 years of age, who has lived in the U.S. more than 20 years does not have to pass a language test, and becomes a citizen providing he passes the loyalty and moral requirements.

Bruce Barber, the director of immigration service here, said 15,000 Japanese in Northern California are eligible for citizenship under the act.

—MRS. YAMADA Kerman, Calif.

(The new law still requires naturalization applicants to have a knowledge of American history and government, however in the case of those over 50 years of age and in this country for more than 20 years the examination need not be in English.—Editor.)
