PRESIDENT'S CORNER:

Let's all get our feet wet!

Last year in one of our columns we deliberately and shamelessly tried to fan the flames of a red hot membership contest among the larger local chapters. Denver, Chicago, and Seattle somehow dropped out of the contest, but our own Southwest Los Angeles Chapter and the San Francisco Chapter staged a torrid neck-to-neck stretch drive ly chalking up over 1,100 L.A. winning the so-called ICBG award.

RACKETS — The special senate committee investigating labor rackets has been airing the International Brotherhood of Teamsters' dirty linen in public of recent weeks. The result has been some sensational headline material and a new insight into the ways of the racketeers who perverted that union to their own selfish ends.

The man who heads the Teamsters is one Dave Beck of Seattle. By coincidence, he found pressing business in Europe at a time the senate committee would most have liked to talk to him. And oddly enough, this story has a Nisei angle because many Issei and Nisei were forced to contribute to Beck's coffers at the time he was just beginning to become a power in Teamster circles.

In the depression-ridden mid-thirties Beck was busy extending the jurisdiction of his Teamsters. He had two reasons. He wanted a large and powerful union. And he knew that members have to pay dues.

Looking around, he saw a sizable labor force of Japanese Americans who were not unionized. The reason for this was that most labor unions of the time had a color bar and would not accept Issei or Nisei. Beck got around that by organizing a Jim Crow union specifically for the "Japanese."

AN ISSEI CONTACT - Beck's contact with the Japanese was through an Issei who operated a dry cleaning establishment. He had known Beck when Beck was just an ordinary truck driver and the dry cleaning shop was one of his stops. Beck authorized the Issei to "organize" all Seattle Japanese connected in any way to trucking. (So liberal was Beck's interpretation of a teamster that even automobile salemen were taken in as members.)

Issei and Nisei truck drivers, produce handlers and others were called on by this person to join the Teamsters union. The newspapers in those days frequently reported beatings of recalcitrants by goon squads. The Japanese had no choice but to join. The word got around that it was wise to sign up, that this Issei would fix things up for you if you needed a union card.

DUES WITHOUT RIGHTS — Under Beck's plan Japanese members of the Teamsters Union were granted the privilege of paying dues.

In return for these dues, they were allowed to keep the jobs they already had with their Japanese employers.

But their working conditions did not change. Their wages remained lower than the union scale. They were not permitted to vote in Teamsters Union elections. They could not attend meetings. They could not get jobs in most union shops. If any accounting was made of their dues they paid, the rank and file never saw the reports.

And because the Teamsters were tough, because the Issei and Nisei were inexperienced and untutored in unionism, because they were unorganized, they continued to be victimized.

DUES FOR NOTHING - When World War II came, the federal government ordered the end of passenger automobile production. Car salesmen were thrown out of jobs. One Nisei auto salesman in Seattle went to Teamsters Union headquarters in Seattle and asked for an honorable withdrawal card. He was told that he'd never been a member of the union, and therefore a withdrawal card could not be issued.

He argued that he'd been paying dues to Beck's Issei representative all along. In reply, he was told point blank that payment of those dues had never constituted membership in the Teamsters Union. He never did get his withdrawal card.

If the senate probers wanted to poke around deep enough, they'd come up with a lot more strange and interesting material.

$90,000 advertising TV campaign signed by Kikkoman Shoyu

SAN FRANCISCO. - Kikkoman Shoyu will be publicized in two Southern California areas under a $90,000 TV contract recently signed by Pacific Trading Co. and plans are now being considered to expand the advertising program to local television outlets.

According to Kazuaki Kuwada of the local importers of the Japanese shoyu, his company has contracted to sponsor the Thomas Mitchel's O. Henry Playhouse, over KHJ-TV in Los Angeles and XE-TV, a Tijuana station covering the San Diego area, for 26 weeks

The series will start over KHJ for 26 Mondays from April 15, 8:30 to 9 p.m. and Thursdays from 7 to 7:30 p.m. in the San Diego area.

This same program series will be shown here on Mondays from 7 to 7:30 p.m. over KPIX-TV under another sponsorship.

Kikkoman Shoyu through Pacific Trading sponsored the presidential election results over KPIX last November.

Several months earlier the San Francisco importing firm started an extensive advertising campaign to introduce Kikkoman to the general U.S. public. Pacific Trading holds the U.S. distributorship for this brand of shoyu Japanese manufacturers, Noda Shoyu Co.

VISALIA. — Sentenced two weeks ago to a six-month jail term for speeding in Tulare, Richard K. Ishibashi, 19, a San Jose State collegian, was released on $100 bail last week.

Attorney Mikio Uchiyama had filed a petition for a writ of habeas corpus, asserting Tulare judge Ward C. Rush has imposed an illegal sentence. Under state law, Uchiyama said the maximum for first speed conviction is a $50 fine and five days in jail. Judge Rush had imposed a $150 fine and six-months, after the youth pleaded guilty to speeding 80 miles per hour on Hwy. 99.

Artful and Beautiful

Denver

Whether you call her Shirley, Li Shiang-lan, or Yoshiko, the Yamaguchi girl is admittedly not only a beautiful dame but an artful actress as well.

Her portrayal of Hana, wife of a Japanese surgeon, in last week's Robert Montgomery production of "The Enemy" on the NBC-TV network, was a carefully constructed portrait of a cautious, devoted, timid wife. But above everything else, Miss Yamaguchi has that undefinable ability to project—a quality that is an essential "plus" to all the other attributes of an actress.

She was especially grateful for her role in "The Enemy," however, for it was, according to an interview with Richard F. Shepard of the New York Times, "the first time in this country that I am able to play a human being. From the point of view of an Oriental actor, there is frustration in most roles."

"You know how Americans think a Japanese should act, especially in Hollywood where they write to please a big audience. They make us cold, without showing feelings. But it's not true-you made it up," she added.

The Japanese star knows whereof she speaks, for she has had her differences with Hollywood, particularly in "House of Bamboo," a 20th-Century-Fox production involving gangster skullduggery against a Japanese background. It was a pretty far-fetched tale, and Miss Yamaguchi felt compelled to apologize for it after Japanese audiences all but hooted it off the screen.

Except for "Japanese War Bride," the role which introduced her to the American screen more than five years ago, most of Miss Yamaguchi's portrayals, in films and on TV, have been necessarily stereotypes. She has been "frustrated" by the limitation of the writing, since most of the characters were mere cardboard conceptions of Oriental women. Such a part was Miss Yamaguchi's most recent Hollywood venture, Allied Artists' "Navy Wife," a comedy based on an American woman's experiences in Japan during the occupation. "Navy Wife," which came out last year, was a dismal flop, except for the fact that it gave employment to a number of capable performers of Japanese ancestry for whom there are too few opportunities.

Miss Yamaguchi is one of the most versatile of actresses, and Hollywood and U.S. network television have only scratched the surface of her talent.

For instance, she is well versed in at least three languages -Japanese, Chinese and English-and has made films in Tokyo, Hong Kong and Hollywood. She was better known to Japanese, at one time, as a singer than an actress, and her recordings of "Shina No Yoru" (China Night), a song featured in one of her pre-Pearl Harbor pictures, are among the most widely circulated of any Japanese popular song.

Miss Yamaguchi's singing voice has had only brief exposure on Broadway. She had the leading feminine role in "Shangrila", a musical version of "Lost Horizon", which lasted but a few weeks in New York last fall. The Japanese actress won critical approval for her singing and her acting, however. Her previous venture on the New York stage got only as far as the rehearsal stage. This was in a musical version of the Donn Byrne novel, "Messer Marco Polo," in which she was to play and sing the role of a Chinese maiden who falls in love with the Italian explorer. This was six years ago and, in the midst of preparations for a New York opening, the Chinese Communists struck in Korea. The financial backers of "Messer Marco Polo" doubted if the time was right for a friendly musical about China, and pulled out. "Messer Marco Polo" has never been resuscitated.

Frustrations, in fact, have marked Miss Yamaguchi's New York career. Last fall she was announced for the role of the geisha, Lotus Blossom, in the New York City Center production of "Teahouse of the August Moon," but Equity's rule against alien performers (no more than one role in six months) was invoked and she was barred from the part because of her participation in the ill-fated "Shangi-la." She also is believed to have been the actress who was in the mind of Director Joshua Logan when he was preparing a musical version of James Michener's "Sayonara" for the New York stage. Litigation involving rights to the Michener book tied up the project, and it was finally postponed despite the fact that Irving Berlin already had written most of the music for it.

Shirley Yamaguchi's role in "The Enemy," from a story by Pearl Buck, must have been a satisfying one for the actress, particularly since the TV critics were appreciative of her contribution to the part.

Miss Buck's story was something of a showcase for acting talent of Oriental ancestry. It was something of an innovation, also, that so many roles were taken by non-Caucasian performers.

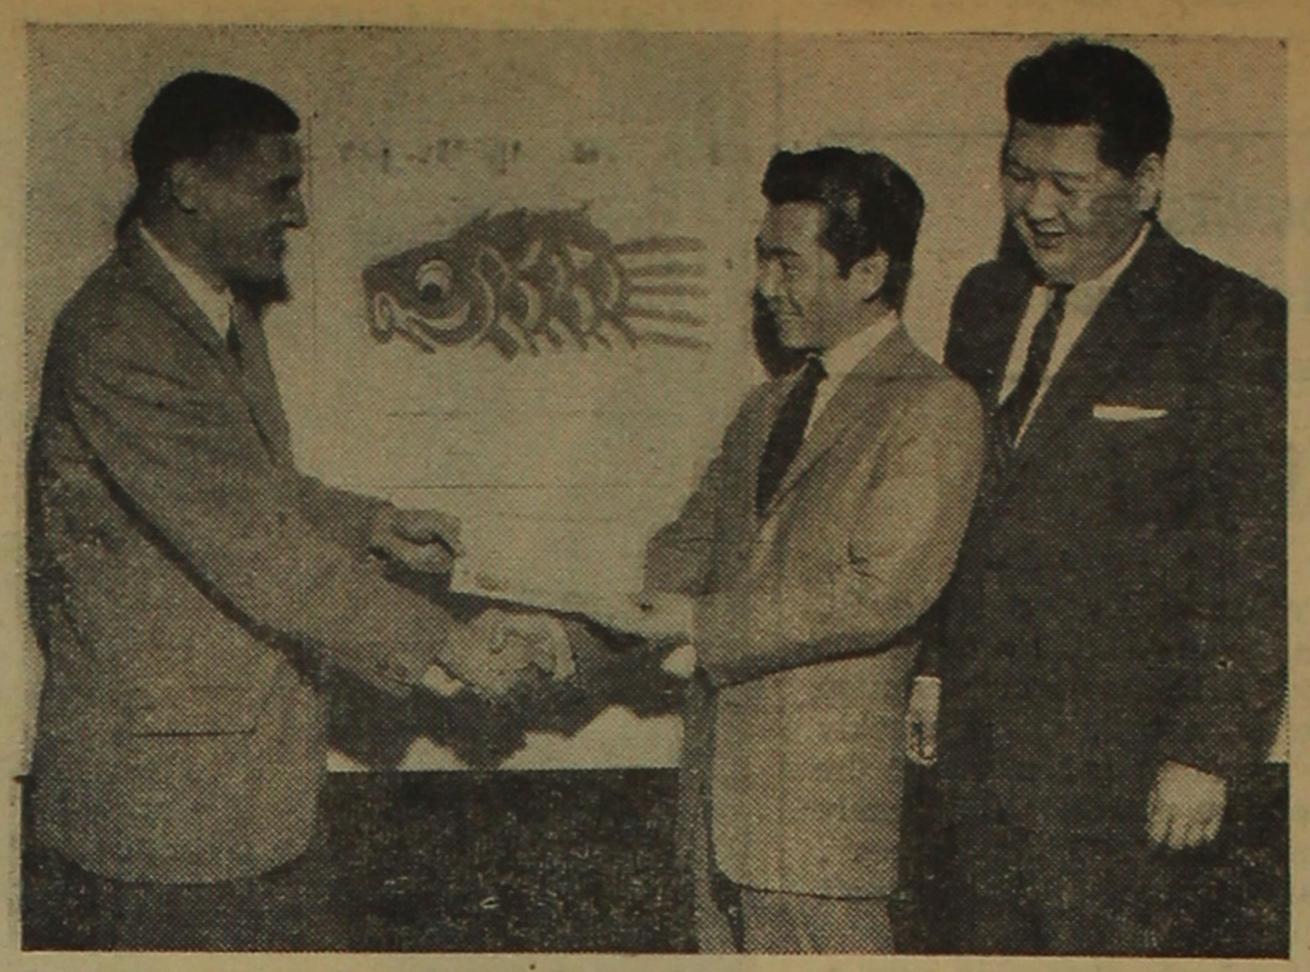

Not too lang ago a TV producer would not have dared to entrust a full hour dramatic show on a major network to a cast made up of Oriental Americans. But that was before "Teahouse of the August Moon." The play made professionals of a number of Oriental performers and they were available when the casting call went out for "The Enemy." From "Teahouse" came Shizu Moriya and Naoe Kondo for example, while Aki Aleong in the lead role opposite Miss Yamaguchi, Kaie Deei, Sho Onodera, James Kitayama and Norman Chi also appeared in Miss Buck's story of a Japanese couple who help a wounded Continued on Page 7

A type goof in this column's caption wasn't caught and corrected until almost a fifth of the weekly run had been printed. Unfortunately, we don't get to proof the heads—only the copy galleys. But soon's we noticed in the early press run that the first "s" was missing from "PC and Horses", we asked editor Honda to fix it quick. After all, we aren't the only advocates of phonetic spelling.

We deny flatly the suggestions of friends that this was a deliberate omission. After all, we still grimly cling to a threadbare remnant of good taste, it says here.

THIS BRINGS us to our Japanese lesson, this week on names.

Our JACL officials offer a fertile field for research. Take board member George Joji Inagaki. No comment on the first two names. His ancestor was a great persimmon eater, and while eating same, would say, i-na (Man, how delicious) gaki (this persimmon). 'Course it might have been i (stomach), naga (long) and ki (raw), meaning that last one won't digest.

While on the subject of edibles, the other board member, also a past nat'l prez, in fact the first one, is Dr. Tom T. Yatabe of Chicago, the "Grandfather of the JACL". A compelling name, its components are ya (Hey, you!) tabe (Eat it!). To which our 1st nat'l veepee from Cortez, Jackson Noda, would simply say his name, no-da (The answer is no, or, in the plural, no-dice).

CHICAGO RECALLS to us having met circa '48 a fiery orator from Texas, attorney Gus Garcia of San Antonio, one of the outstanding Mexican Americans in the country. In a recent case, Hernandez vs. Texas, he won a unanimous decision in the U.S. Supreme Court as a result of which Mexican Americans are no longer denied the right to serve on juries, which principle already has been applied by other states with other racial groups.

We met Gus again last Sunday when he was honored at a dinner at the Casa del Mexicano given by the L.A. branch of the G.I. Forum and its ladies auxiliary, members of both being predominantly Mexican American citizens.

The G.I. Forum is organized in eight states and the Ellay unit is headed by another former Chicagoan and ex-fellowresident of Hull House, Frank X. Paz. A recent action by Paz was to protest to the Denver chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution for having objected to a young Mexican American carrying the American Flag in a Washington's Birthday parade at school. He is also urging the local appointment of a "first" Mexican American to the bench.

THE MARCH issue of the magazine of the California State Florists' Association carries a shot of Mike Masaoka with Ralph Edwards and others in the TV show, "This Is Your Life". The caption credits Mike as having successfully looked after the interests of the flower industry of the state with reference to cooperative pooling of shipments. Bill Enomoto of Redwood City, chairman of the magazine committee of the CSFA; is past nat'l treasurer of the JACL-Anti-Discrimination Comn ittee.

THE APL luxury liner President Cleveland is inviting several travel agents and fourth estaters to sample their San Francisco to Los Angeles overnight cruise which leaves 'Frisco at noon today. Barring unforeseen events like a super tidal wave from the Aleutians, we intend to enjoy three sumptuous meals aboard and report on our trip in a couple of weeks. This is a real PR deal by American President Lines-they're even flying us up to Sanfran to catch their boat.

RECENT VISITORS: CL biggies from central Cal - Jin Ishikawa, Ethel Otomo, Kenji Tashiro and Dr. Bob Yabuno . . . Mas Hironaka, chapter wheel and to our knowledge the only Nisei supervisor of any mainland post office (San Diego) . . . kinsman Sim Togasaki from SF and Alameda . . . Sacramentan Ginji Mizutani.

STRICTLY PERSONAL

"We're willing and ready," says George Fujita, vice-president in charge of membership for the Southwest L.A. chapter, "to take on any chapter that wants to challenge us to a membership contest. We will give them a handicap advantage." A vigorous door-to-door campaign has been started in the meantime.—"Southwesterly".

Among the new faces on the Richmond-El Cerrito JACL cabinet are S. Richard Komatsu of the architectural firm of Hardison, Clausen and Komatsu. A member of the Kiwanis, he is married and has two children. Yoshie Wada is secretary for the Harr Wagner Publishing Co. in San Francisco. Kuni Urushibata, an Oakland mechanic, is past president of the Oakland YBA. Mrs. Chizu Iiyama has served as housing chairman of the Chicago JACL, associate director for the Chicago Resettlers Committee and served on the Chicago YWCA board. She, her husband Ernest, and three children live at 6035 Orchard Ave., Richmond.-Richmond-El Cerrito "Newsletter".

Congratulatory messages were received by the chapter from Dr. Roy Nishikawa, national JACL president, of Los Angeles, and from Masao Satow, national director, of San Francisco, which were read by Sim Endo and Dr. H. Tom Tamaki, respectively.

Dr. Nishikawa's letter was directed primarily to the new cabinet officers, who were reminded of their several responsibilities. Satow recalled the founding of the Philadelphia chapter in 1947 during his stint as the Eastern and Midwest regional representative, and alluded to the progress Japanese Americans have made, but he emphasized the importance of tend and strengthen democratic principles.

John Carlton of radio-TV WFIL paid tribute to the work being done by the local chapter and told of plans for a newer and larger Institute building expected to be realized in the near future. Carlton hoped that he could help spread the message, awareness and appreciation of JACL goals through radio and TV. He also entertained with "behind the scenes" stories of television and radio programs.

With the exception of three chapter presidents, all those who have headed the Philadelphia chapter were at the dinner meeting. Missing were Tets Iwasaki, first president (1947), who recently moved to Pasadena, Calif.; Naomi Nakano (1951), now Mrs. Joe Tanaka of St. Louis; and Mariko Ishiguro (1950), now Mrs. Harvey Aki of Chicago. It was this use of both Japanese and English terms that proved entertaining to some 40 Hollywood JACLers and guests present.

Dr. Roy Nishikawa, national JACL president, installed Kaz Kawakami and his 1957 cabinet as well as presenting the past president's pin to Danar Abe. ## Home-Buying Patterns

- Housing discrimination in Orange County is getting to be almost too popular to be comfortable. This past week, the Fred Hiraokas of Pasadena have filed a $10,000 damage suit as well as enforcement of their contract for a $21,500 home near Newport Beach . . . The most celebrated case involved Dr. Sammy Lee, the Korean American Olympic two-time champion, several years ago. Then a Negro Annapolis graduate, Lt. Harold Bauduit, met rebuffs early this year but managed to move in and be accepted . . . The disconcerting aspect of discrimination is all too well known for members of ethnic groups in the United States. The immature practice of some who take things and persons at "face value" can betray one's lack of intelligence.
- What the Hiraokas faced may well be repeated in the near future for other Japanese Americans—not because they wanted a $21,500 home near the beach in Orange County, but because they wanted a home near the place of work. . . Traffic in metropolitan Los Angeles (which includes Orange County) has become one snarling mess after another. One little accident on the freeway can tie up traffic for miles during the rush hours We have "sig-alerts" broadcast over local radio stations, pointing out such & such a freeway is to be avoided because of some mishap. But more often than not we hear these warnings a couple of cars too late—that is, we're jammed and unable to back out . . . Under such circumstances, it was best for the Hiraokas to move with Helipot Corp., when it relocated to larger quarters at Costa Mesa. Research engineer Fred spent up to two hours one way driving to work; sometimes more in going home . . . With Nisei employed in other industrial firms that look eastward for more elbow room, it is likely they would want to move with the company. Orange County, which is converting its agricultural acreage to fancytitled residential tracts as quickly as a farmer decides to quit, is burgeoning with pastel-colored stucco homes along spanking black-asphalted avenues. Real estate improvements there would even surprise an Angeleno who hasn't been there within the past year. The appeal of a new home would be hard to avoid for a Nisei couple who's looking for a house close to work.
- A pattern of home-buying among Nisei up to now has been to move into a bigger and better home, in which case, it meant living from 5 to 15 miles away . . . When the west coast was reopened for return of Japanese Americans from 1945, many settled in their old neighborhoods-in and around Li'l Tokio, Boyle Heights and Seinan (Southwest) district. With families growing, they gradually moved out of apartments and flats to such places as Gardena Valley, San Fernando Valley, East Los Angeles (which is beyond old Boyle Heights), West Los Angeles and the vast area southwest from the corner of Crenshaw and Olympic Blvds. . . . In due time, when new apartments come up overlooking downtown Los Angeles can we expect to see Nisei living near their old haunts of 1st and San Pedro Sts. again.

District Whing Dings

Orosi

During the remaining months of this year, each of our District Councils will be hold their respective biennial conventions. Aside from the general purpose of setting policy, electing new officers and charting the course for the next biennium, these conventions serve the dual purpose of rekindling interest and enthusiasm for the JACL in those who attend. My particular interest in these forthcoming conventions lies in the fact that this renewed enthusiasm invariably is reflected by a substantial increase in new 1000 Club memberships following each of these conventions. Much of this is due to the fun and frolic of the 1000 Club Whing Dings, which have become an integral part of these conventions.

Of the DC conventions already being planned, the PSWDC confab will be the first. It is scheduled for May 18-19 at the Disneyland Hotel. The East L.A. Chapter, recent recipient of the PSWDC Chapter of the Year Award, will host. The man behind the wheel is past prez Fred Takata, ably assisted by Roy Yamadera and Ritsuko Kawakami to name a couple of others. A well balanced program is planned and I am looking forward to an enjoyable weekend in May.

One which I would give my right arm to attend is the joint EDC-MDC conclave being planned for Aug. 30-Sept. 1 in the Windy City. Though I have no word as to what is being planned in the way of activities with Thousander Kumeo Yoshinari at the helm we can rest assured that it will be a topnotch convention. And as for the Whing Ding, my predecessors Shig Wakamatsu and Tokuzo Gordon will personally see to it that it will be a rib-cracker. What one helluva good time I could have. Going to have to start saving up some "lettuce" to finance this trip. Just in case, anybody in the market for a good right arm?

To add the frosting, I will be gallivanting to Idaho Falls In November for the IDC convention and the grand 10th Anniversary Whing Ding of the 1000 Club. This one is a "must." Trust I may have by then for our spud and beet growers up there, where the 1000 Club was launched, the good news of having reached our goal of 2000 Thousanders. In the interim, we will bend every effort to this end.

Adm. Togo's Visit

Seattle

THE PLUNKER of the portable from this corner frequently grices to the PC editor about not being too hep on Nisei community doings because of an exacting daytime job, other interests during the off duty time; and thirdly, a lessening of energy which may be ascribed to old age. But even when one doesn't hang around what is left of the Japanese community, things come up that stir recollection.

We encounterede a very good friend during the past year's wandering about town. She's a politically active ol' gal who got her master's degree at a midwest university by writing a thesis on the military campaigns of the Civil War. Intrigued by a woman choosing this sort of subject for a thesis, and by our virtue of an intensive ROTC course in military history, we felt qualified to carry on a lot of conversation that went beyond the scope of the War Between the States. What I mean is, the discussion included other wars. For example, will anyone this week describe to me the strategic or tactical significance of the Battle of Cowpens? (I vaguely remember this as an American Revolutionary War incident.—Ed.)

EYEBROWS WENT up at another question last week. "Did you visit the Japanese fleet when it came to Seattle?"

"Do you mean Admiral Togo's visit? Gosh, that was in

That August day, my father put on his striped pants and tails and took me on a never to be forgotten outing. I was couple months short of attaining the age 6. The kid brother Hero, four years my junior, was not yet eligible to go on an important excursion like this.

Dad and I took a trolley car to the waterfront and boarded a raval launch manned by neat efficient looking Japanese sailors in pancake sailor's hat. Whether it was a steam or gasoline launch, this juvenile doesn't remember. Once on the ship, the broad expanse of holystoned decks looked so CLEAN and so BIG. Under the guns of the forward turret stood a naval officer with stiff high collar and cap perched on top of his head.

There are only certain things that a 5-6 year old remembers-the formal bows-being ushered to a cabin topsidemaybe it was the officers wardroom-maybe the captain's quarters-or perhaps the admiral's suite-anyhow, dad had quite a chat with the navy guy-and we were served tea and macarooms-macaroons were entirely a new taste thrill to this little feller, although we don't particularly care for macaroons today.

Afterwards, a CPO (I guess) was assigned to conduct us about the ship-up and down the ladders, through the galley, and into the crew's quarters where we saw some of the hammocks that sailors slept in them days, and then came the climax of the day's events. We crawled up inside a turret and were allowed to look through the bore of a gun.

'Gee, who would think the inside of a 'cannon' looks like that?"

FOR WEEKS afterward, yours truly was a naval authority in the neighborhood, a neighborhood devoid of Nisei who might have contradicted my versions of naval supremacy.

"Gee, you should see those cannons. They don't shoot cannon balls! they shoot big bullets with a point in front which is much better. And those cannon balls with point, they are so heavy, they carry 'em on a wagon."

Yessir, we were pretty proud of Admiral Togo's navy but on the other aspects of that visit, we shall have to continue.

1000 CLUB NOTES: by Kenji Tashiro

Continued from Preceding Page Lake's bid for the 1958 Convention. For me this is particularly fitting, for it was in 1948 in Salt Lake City that I attended my first National Convention and the 1958 Convention, also being held there, will have marked 10 years of active participation for me in the JACL. Attending a National Convention for the first time and hearing first hand of the aspirations and goal of the organization, seeing the Nisei leaders of that time earnestly and intelligently discussing the issues at hand, it was inevitable that I should be deeply impressed; in fact, to the extent that I decided then and there that this was truly a great organization and that I would do my share.

The record and accomplishments of our organization over the past years has more than justified my decision. Moreover, my faith in JACL has increased with the years to the extent that I believe, as many of you do also, that JACL cannot rest on its laurels and be merely a standby organization but must continue to expand and grow.

JIMMY SAKAMOTO WRAPS FIRST '300' GAME AT NEW SAN JOSE ALLEYS

SAN JOSE.—In a session marked by a sensational 300 perfect game hit by Jimmy Sakamoto, the San Jose Nisei scratch league bowlers really warmed up for the National JACL bowling tournament last Mar. 5.

Sakamoto was not only the first Nisei to hit the 300 game in Santa Clara valley, but the first to do so at the new Sherman Oaks Bowl. For his feat, Sakamoto will receive a $1,000 check from Nick Bebek, alley owner.

Sakamoto also almost hit a 700 series, missing it by five pins with 695.

A 177-average bowler, he lives at 308 University Ave. and has been bowling for the past seven years. He was a member of the Sherman Oaks team, which participated in the 11th annual National JACL tournament last weekend at Albany.

Jockey boots SWLAers

IF FAME and fortune spoil a jockey, they certainly didn't do it to George Taniguchi. He's as friendly as they come and quite a regular guy. And his five-figure earnings during the last several years hasn't done anything to reflect his personality as "Mr. Rich," although his bankroll couldn't be too much on the thin side.

We got a big boot from his appearance at the Southwest Los Angeles JACL meeting last week simply because his informal talk was entertaining, informative and relaxing. Kango Kunitsugu, new SWLA president, contacted Wimp Hiroto, editor of Crossroads, to have Taniguchi appear, we understand. Taniguchi showed some interesting chills-spills-and-thrills films on horse-racing, much to the delight of his audience.

Dr. Roy M. Nishikawa, national JACL president, was there to install Kango and his new cabinet before Taniguchi was introduced.

The evening's fare turned out to be educational, horsewise, for some of the more ardent fans of Santa Anita. The dapper Taniguchi admitted that even jockeys really don't know who's going to come in first. That's common sense.

One enthusiastic race fan asked what was the highest paying horse Taniguchi ever brought in. The name slips our mind but the money (oh, that elusive stuff) was $109 and something. Did Taniguchi know the horse he was riding would come in first? "No," he admitted. "When the race was just about half over, I discovered the nag still had a lot of 'oomph' and before I knew it we were heading right straight for the wire."

ANOTHER HORSEPLAYER wanted to know how the El Centro-born youth turned to racing back in late 1950 when he started with bare-back training at James Monji's farm in Bakersfield.

The tide of fortune turns in a funny way sometimes.

Taniguchi wanted a major part in MGM's film, "Go For Broke," that year. He was chasing a booking agent, and went to Hollywood Park to see "a man about a picture," after learning he was there at the tracks. Taniguchi couldn't find his agent and so decided to make it an afternoon watching the races. He compared his own physical size with those of the jockeys and, of course, the rest is history.

THE LIFE of a jockey—early to rise, and late to rest isn't what one may call a bed of roses. It seems that for the slightest of moments, Kango once had desires to turn rider but after viewing the spill-laden pictures of horses falling over the jockeys and visa versa, he thought of sticking to a desk job as a civil engineering designer.

We later nudged Kats-the better and other half of the Kunitsugus for an exclusive: would you let your husband (Kango) become a jockey? Think of the dough, we gasped. "Yeh, but think of the spills. Nope, and them's are my sentiments," Kats retorted. So there went my job as Kango's agent, we thought sadly. Kango is pint-size and admits to weighing less than Taniguchi. The affable pilot said he doesn't make too many public appearances for lack of speaking ability before a group but he was really "on" that night. He kept the members in high spirit by answering many questions that one would not learn by reading racing forms.

Jean Sakata, besides being a loyal Democrat, is also a crackerjack secretary, while Seichi Hirai, another volunteer hero of the 442nd, studies law at George Washington University in his "spare" time.

All four Nisei know that they are in the "spotlight" of public scrutiny. They are Democrats and they must help their Delegate prove that Democrats too can represent their Territory ably and effectively. They are also of Japanese ancestry, with all that this implies. But there is a feeling here that without question this quartet will vindicate the faith of Delegate Burns who had the courage to designate them, of the Democrats in particular and of Hawaiians in general that they will not bring discredit upon their Territory, and of all Americans who believe that "Americanism is a matter of the mind and the heart, and not of race or ancestry".

American sailor to escape from Japan during World War II. The title, "The Enemy," referred to the American instead of the Japanese.

Shirley Yamaguchi was born of Japanese parents in Foo Chung, Manchuria. She was named Yoshiko in Japanese and Li Shiang-lan in Chinese, and the Shirley was added when she came to Hollywood.

When she was 15 years of age, Miss Yamaguchi studied opera and got two jobs at a Mukden radio station, one singing children's songs and the other singing Chinese popular tunes. A Manchurian movie mogul heard a broadcast and Miss Yamaguchi was launched on a remarkable career which was to bring her finally to the United States.

The latest project for which Miss Yamaguchi is being paged involves Hollywood Producer Ben Bogeus and Ray Milland. The picture is a new version of "White Shadows of the South Seas," and would be filmed in the Marquesas Islands of the Pacific.

The adventure novel by Frederick O'Brien, one of the most successful of films more than 20 years ago, will be brought up to date. Milland will play a self-exiled writer, somewhat on the Robert Louis Stevenson pattern, perhaps, and Miss Yamaguchi would be cast as a native girl with whom he falls in love. In the original, the romance had a tragic, "never the twain shall meet" quality and the native girl succumbed to a mysterious illness. This, of course, may be changed in the new script. Miss Yamaguchi, for the record, is interested.

Triplets born to Southwest couple

First triplets-all boys-to be born in Los Angeles this year greeted the world at the Queen of Angels Hospital here last Monday morning.

Proud parents are Mr. and Mrs. Jim Kajiwara, 3423-5th Ave., who have been married for about 21/2 years. Their first children, firstborn Mark was delivered at 2:22 a.m., followed by Douglas at 2:36 and Bruce at 2:37. One month premature, they weighed less than four pounds each: Mark (3 lb.-13 oz.), Douglas (3 lb.-7), and Bruce (3 lb.-15).

Attending physician Dr. Sakaye Shigekawa, who had been anticipating twins, said the babies were delivered normally and would be placed in incubators for two weeks.

Mother is the former June Iwamoto, 23, of Poppenish, Wash., and was working as a stenographer in the State Bldg. Kajiwara, 26, of Stockton, works as a produce truck, driver.

(Recent statistics show one triplet born in the U.S. per 100.000 total births in a year. We recall the birth of triplets at the L.A. Japanese Hospital in late November, 1955.—Editor.)

WASHINGTON NEWSLETTER By Mike Masaoka

Nisei Congressional Team

Washington

When one walks into the office of Delegate John A. Burns, the first Democrat to be elected from Hawaii to the House of Representatives in more than 20 years, he will be greeted by Miss Jean Sakata, receptionist.

Should one want an appointment to see the new Delegate, he will have to see Miss Mary N. Isa, secretary.

And, if one cares to discuss legislative matters, he will have to consult Dan Aoki, administrative assistant, who is the third member of this Nisei team that is helping to make the fourth-floor office of Hawaii's non-voting Representative one of the most attractive and active on Capitol Hill.

Then, on part-time basis, while working himself through law school, Seichi Hirai helps with the legal analysis and research.

Other Nisei have served on congressional staffs in both the House and the Senate, but never in the responsible capacities as those so ably filled by these young Japanese Americans, all natives of the Territory that hopes to become, partly through their efforts, the 49th State in the Federal Union.

One of the real reasons that statehood status has so long been denied to these Pacific Islands is that there are so many Americans of Asian, and particularly Japanese ancestry residing on the "Crossroads of the Pacific." Opponents have often commented-sometimes in public but mostly in private-about the "large Oriental population" and questioned whether the racial composition of the Islands has allowed those of Asian extraction to assimilate the "cultural heritage" of the mainland United States.

The valiant exploits of the 100th Infantry Battalion, the 442nd Regimental Combat Team, and the Nisei in G-2 in the Pacific have pretty well exploded the myth of questionable loyalty, so the racists and the bigots have turned to an un-American concept and generalization in order to delay long overdue recognition to Hawaii.

Aside from the fact that their appointments may be criticized by some as "good politics", to our minds these living, working examples of the kind of people that make up a substantial part of the Territory's population are visible refutation of such prejudiced allegations as the lack of Hawaii's "cultural affinity" to the continental mainland.

These statements are not intended to convey the erroneous impression that this Nisei quartet are the only ones in Delegate. Burns' office, or that only upon them revolve the responsibilities for that office, for most decidedly this is not true.

But, it is a fact that never before has any member of Congress, in either the House or the Senate, employed Americans of Japanese ancestry as an administrative assistant and as an executive secretary, both highly important posts second only to that of the elected officials themselves.

While Dan, Mary, Jean and Seichi are most appreciative of the confidence that the Delegate has placed in them, they are nevertheless, keenly aware that theirs are greater responsibilities than those normally associated with their positions.

They must, of course, carry out their routine activities effectively and efficiently.

But, perhaps more important in the long run will be their demeanor, their attitude, their conduct in their day-to-day relations with their fellow associates in congressional offices and with the elected officials, for by their "words" and by their "deeds" they can demonstrate to the 435 representatives and 96 senators the kind of people who populate their Islands. They are "living proof" of the Americanism of their population and the assimilation that has taken place in their homeland. At the same time, because of the geographical position of their Territory and because of their ancestry, they can demonstrate the tremendous contributions that those of Hawaiian birth can make as Americans concerned with America's destiny to a better understanding of the Pacific and of the Far East in the light of our national aspirations and our international commitments.

In their persons, congressmen are confronted not with statements, arguments, or appeals; they are faced with one important facet of Hawaiian life that they cannot disregard the so-called Japanese of the Territory. Thus, in their individual and personal ways, they may contribute much to the ultimate gaining of statehood for Hawaii, because they are a part and parcel of what Hawaii is.

The first of our ancestry ever to be honored by being named an administrative assistant, Dan Aoki, is one of the many heroes of the famed 442nd, having been not only a volunteer for the original unit but becoming a first sergeant, one of the more important yet unsung roles in any combat organization.

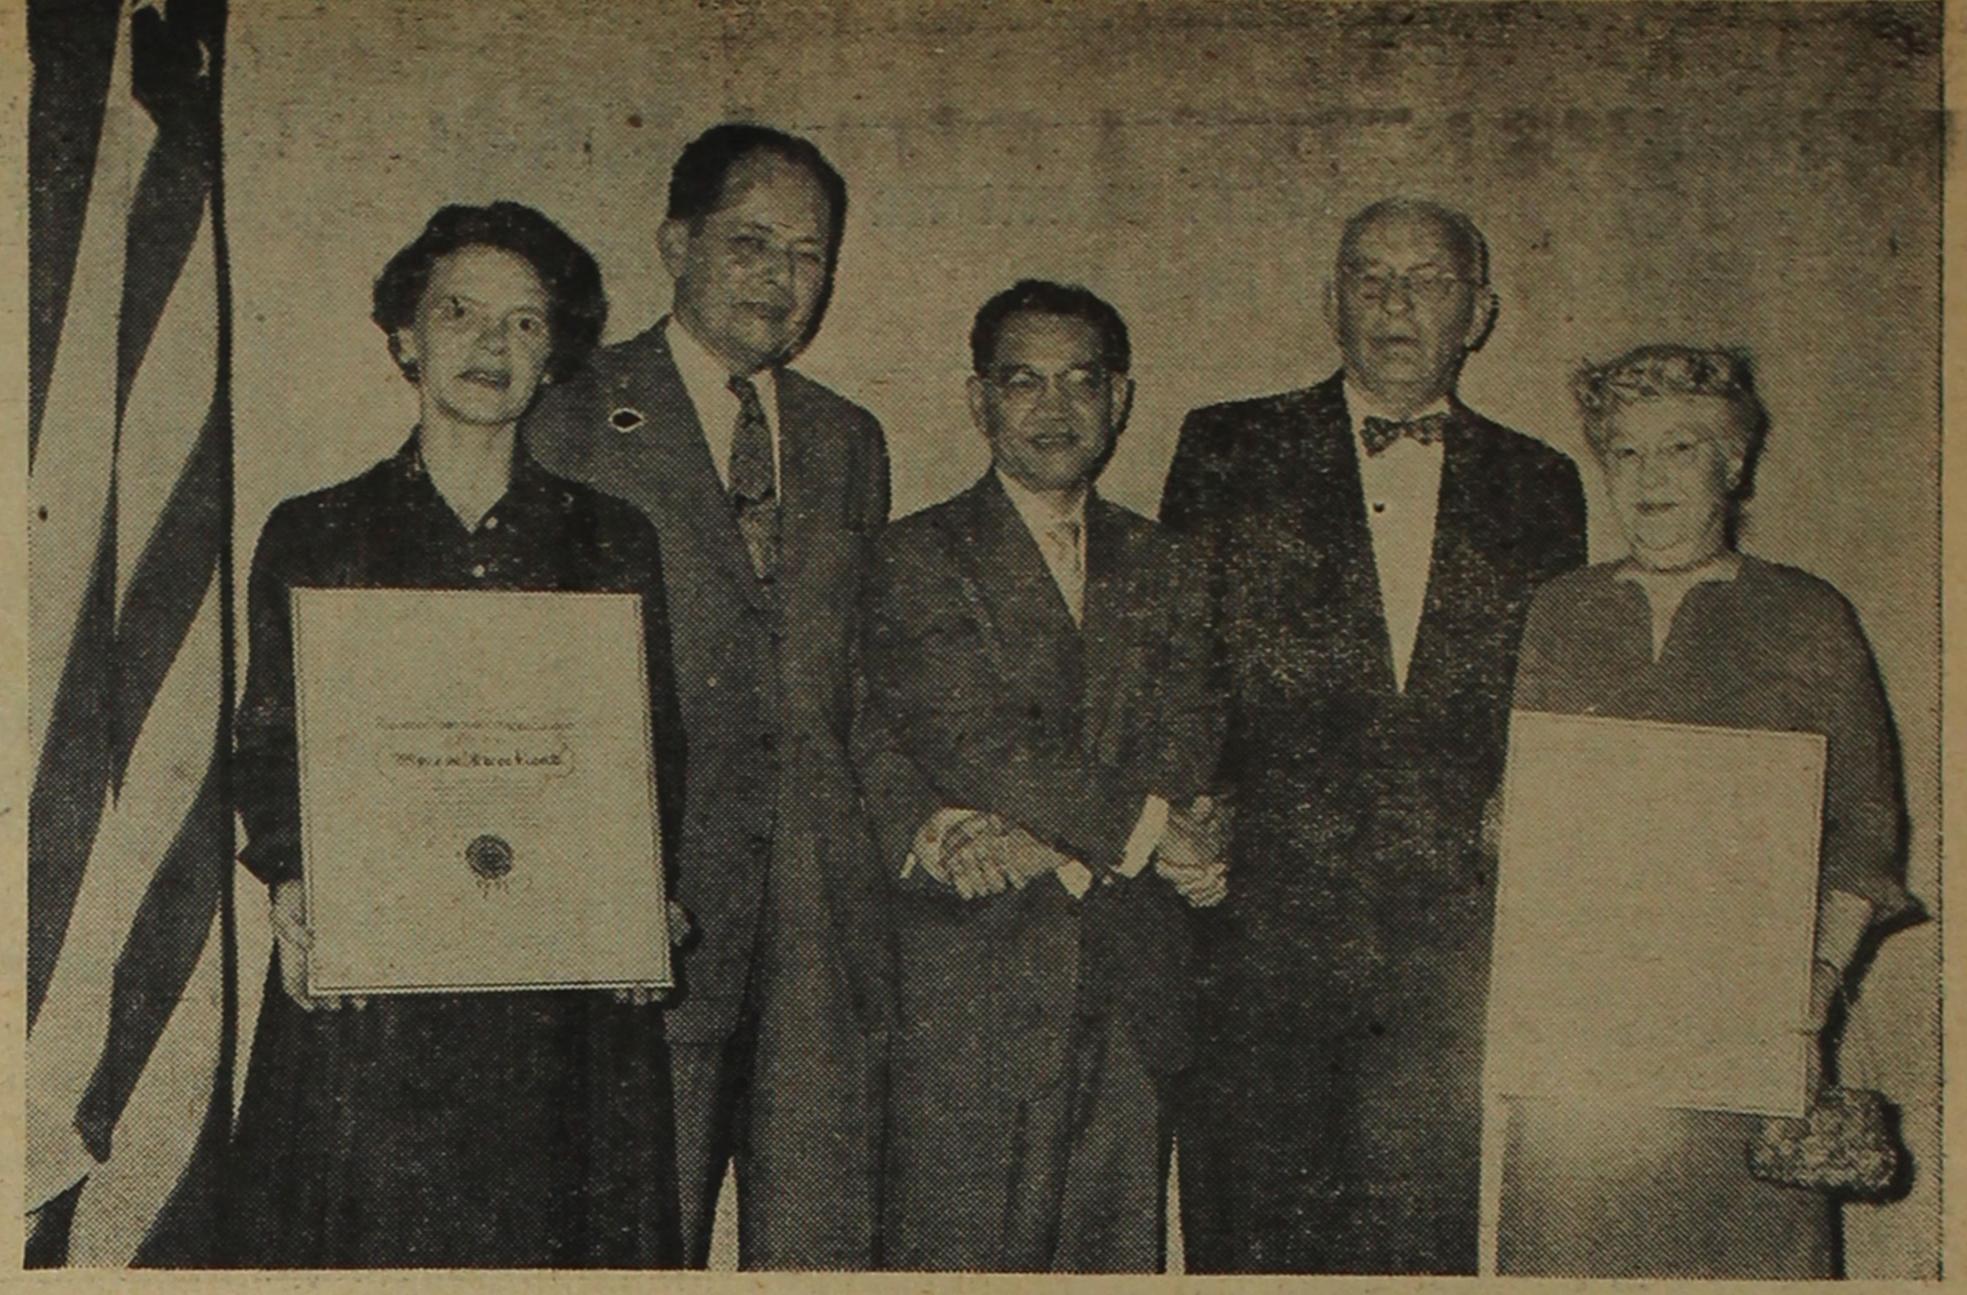

He first became interested in politics almost ten years ago and he has been one of the influential factors in attracting so many of his fellow veterans and "younger" Nisei to the Democratic Party. As in the Army, he was a volunteer who worked so hard at the job regardless of his assignment that he won deserved recognition.

Dan exemplifies the "Go For Broke" spirit of his 442nd days in his current responsibility and his contributions to the cause of statehood will be no less than his contributions to the heroic victory of the Combat Team over bigotry and prejudice.

Mary Nakako Isa was a member of the Territorial Delegation to the last Democratic Party National Convention in Chicago. She served on the Party's Platform and Resolutions Committee, being the first Nisei ever to be so recognized in shaping party policy.

Like her colleague Dan, she earned consideration for her position on her own merits as a secretary, as well as for her work in the last Territorial campaign in which her "boss" disproved the GOP dream that Hawaii was a "safe" Republican
