CCDC ISSUES ITS STATEMENT ON CIVIL RIGHTS

Fear Precedent Created by $2,000 Donation to Civil Rights Group

FRESNO. - The Central California District Council, at its Aug. 30 meeting, set forth its views on civil rights and the National JA-CL's $2,000 donation to the National Leadership Conference on Civil Rights by National JACL.

The statements were issued this week by CCDC Chairman Ben Nakamura. The views were formulated after a report by the council's legal-legislative committee.

Recognizing that many Americans suffer discriminatory treatment in the matter of civil rights "in certain areas of the United States", the CCDC civil rights statement noted that "civil rights brings with them the concomitant obligation that such rights be not abused".

While civil rights can be and should be legislated for all Americans regardless of color or creed, social acceptance cannot be legislated, the CCDC statement continued. "This is an individual matter. Color or creed cannot and should not protect an individual from his own failings, nor should it endow him with virtues he does not possess."

The manner and procedure fol lowed by the special National JA-CL civil rights committee meeting in Omaha was regarded by the CCDC as "contrary to the express provisions of the JACL constitution and greatly fears the precedent this has created".

Realistic Appraisal

Any realistic appraisal of the current parliamentary situation in the Congress suggests that no substantial immigration legislation will be considered this session, no matter how long it remains in business this year.

Nevertheless, as among those organizations most concerned with equality in immigration opportunities, JACL welcomes the introduction of these various bills, not only for their general educational value to the public but also as the rallying point for individuals and organizations interested in seeking equality of peoples and nations for In addition, Representative Ma- immigration purposes and othertsunaga is the author of legisla- wise modernizing our immigration tion to eliminate the discrimina- laws to meet the changed situa-

Anticipating arguments based on the current unemployment conditions in our country, Senator Fong spent much of his speech in demolishing such opposition. And as the first non-white to be elected to the United States Senate and also the first of Asian ancestry, he questioned the traditional arguments used against the admission of immigrants from the Orient.

It may be significant that Democratic and Republican Senators have praised the Chinese-American lawmaker for his speech, describing it not only as eloquent and impressive but instructive and informative.

All stressed that Senator Fong's documentation that increased immigration would not add to the unemployment problem was a most significant contribution to an understanding of the true nature of immigration as being in the best interests of the Nation.

As a member of both the Judiclary Subcommittee on Immigration and Naturalization and the Judiciary Committee, Senator Fong is in a key position to secure action on immigration legislation and to influence the provisions of any such bill.

Bills Under Study

JACL is now in the process of studying not only the Hart and Administration Bills but also that of Senator Jacob Javits of New York. It will soon determine which bill, if any, we will support, though the probability is that JACL will urge a combination of all the bills naga relating to naturalized citi-

JACL endorses the principle of eliminating the national origins system and the Asia-Pacific Triangle discriminations in the Administration's bill, although we have some grave reservations regarding the suggested procedures. JACL prefers the increased annual immigration quota of the Hart Bill and the non-immigration provisions of the Javits Bill that deal with exclusion, deportation, and Denver, Colo.

MEASURING THE EARTH - An erudite group known as the Association of American Geographers met here early this month, and among the speakers was Toshio Hoshide who used to be a pretty snappy sandlot centerfielder back in Seattle. Hoshide, who has been with the Army Map Service since early in World War II, presented a paper entitled "Long Distance Measurements-an Aspect of Note in Our Knowledge of the Earth," and what he said was as impressive as the title.

The Army Map Service, he reported, has been using satellites to measure distances on the surface of the earth and has made some odd discoveries, such as that the earth rather than being perfectly round is slightly pearshaped. The North Pole, he said, is about 15 yards farther from the center of the earth than the South Pole. There is a slight "neck" around the North Pole and a small bulge a few yards thick in the southern hemisphere. It's also been found that the equator, rather than being perfectly circular, is slightly elliptical.

You'd think grown men would have better things to do than go around destroying illusions about this old globe of ours, but minute measurements become progressively more important as missiles and satellites shrink distances. Hoshide could talk knowingly about the size and shape of our earth, but he didn't have time to make it out to our house which is only miles from the center of town.

OF MEN AND MUSHROOMS — Although Mitsu Yasuda writes from New York that mention of mushrooms is torture for displaced Northwesterners, the season cannot be allowed to pass without additional comment about how amazingly prolific our Rockies are in a rainy season.

With the intention of sharing our goodies with the less fortunate, and perhaps turning a quick buck besides, Frank Torizawa at the Granada Fish works on Lawrence Street advertised last week that he would buy mushrooms, $2 per pound for buttons, $1 per pound for the mature open variety. Such a flood of mushrooms inundated the market that he quickly cut the price in half. Even so, last Monday an estimated ton of mushrooms were delivered and that makes an astonishing sight.

These mushrooms were crated and air-freighted to food brokers in Los Angeles, San Francisco, Chicago and New York where, no doubt, they have been snapped up by eager - addicts at a fearful price.

The odd thing about mushrooms is that they seem to bring out the greed in people the way nothing else can. What does a fisherman do? He exaggerates shamelessly about the big one that got away, and he brags about how many he caught. But a mushroom hunter (picker? gatherer? seeker? harvester?) becomes suddenly modest, disclaims any great luck, and pretends he was lucky to escape from the deep -woods with his life even though he walked himself bowlegged carrying out his haul. Does a mushroomer tell you where he's been? Not on your life. He points in the general direction of the high Rockies, and you can't worm out any detailed "information about his favorite haunts with threats of mayhem or offers of bribes.

A mushroomer may have his freezer chock full, his friends may be satiated, and he has no further use for fungus, but he climbs precipitous slopes, clambers over fallen timbers, and risks life and limb for even more mushrooms. It was inevitable, therefore, that what was wonderful sport should be converted into a crass business, like harvesting sugar beets and selling it by the ton. It is a sad thing to see. Sadder still is the way the more fanatical of mushroomers have torn into the humus beds and mossy glades in search of the objects of their greed. In the absence of any bag limits, their avarice is endless. I weep for next season.

Efforts to place Cal. housing law on referendum failing

LOS ANGELES. - Opponents of the Rumford fair housing law appeared Monday night to have failed in their efforts to qualify a November, 1964, referendum on the measure scheduled to take effect Friday.

It would take 292,662 valid signatures in Secretary of State Frank M. Jordan's hands by midnight Thursday to block implementation of the anti-discrimination housing law. But tabulations indicated there were only 159,802 petition signatures certified as of Monday

Benjamin S. Hite, Los Angeles County Vote Registrar, said h certified 93,312 signatures out o 123,047 filed with his office.

In addition, Hite was told by Asst. Secretary of State Walter Stutler that Jordan's office already has 66,490 certified signatures, have graced many national exhimaking grand total of 159,802.

An additional 132,860 signature would be required to qualify the referendum petition sponsored by the Citizens' League for Individual Freedoms.

Valid signatures here ran just over 75 per cent of the total filed. It was estimated at least 180,000 more names would have to be obtained to certify the required number to Jordan by midnight Thurs-
