CHAPTER CLINIC FOR PSW CHAPTER OFFICERS READY

Venice-Culver JACL Hosting One-Day Meet At Veterans Memorial

CULVER CITY. - This Sunday, newly-elected chapter officers of the Pacific Southwest District Council will meet with national and district JACL officers in the 11th annual Chapter Clinic at the Culver City Veterans Memorial Bldg., 4117 Overland.

The meeting, being hosted by the Venice-Culver JACL, is being arranged by Jack Nomura, chapter president and clinic chairman.

The clinic, traditionally held in February, was advanced to November to initiate new officers of their responsibilities before their term of office commences in Janu-

At the same time, the November clinic date was suggested to accommodate the movement to have chapter elections in the fall months of the year, thus better prepare officers to launch chapter activities with the best foot forward on Jan. 1.

To assist the 1964 officers, the PSWDC chapter clinic will conduct five workshop session, each chaired by an experienced leader. Subjects concern the day-to-day operation of a chapter, making officers aware of the various problems that might be encountered and possible means to resolve

SENATOR INOUYE VS. CLOTURE

One of the most difficult Washington Newsletters that Mike Masaoka has had to write dealt with Sen. Daniel Inouve's maiden speech defending his views on the so-called cloture rule (see last Feb. 8 PC). The Senator said he would not support the moves by liberal senators to make it easier to shut off debate and thereby break filibusters.

And Masaoka, who had spearheaded a mainland committee to elect the first Nisei congressman to the Senate, was as surprised as the other Washington observers were when Sen. Inouve joined 41 others, Democrats mostly from the South and "small" states and Republicans from the Midwest, to table the proposal whereby the Senate, like the House, would be able to vote on the rules at the beginning of each congressional term.

This week, the Senator reveals in a letter to a high school student in Hawaii that he would vote to limit debate on the civil rights legislation. That should allow a big sigh of relief to the many Mainlanders who supported the eloquent Democrat from Hawaii. For when the Senate voted last Jan. 31 to retain its present rules, the liberal elements regarded it as a victory for those who were against civil laws. rights.

As the Senator stated in his maiden speech, his regard of the cloture is democracy at its best. "I have heard so often eloquent and good men plead for the chance to let the majority rule. That is, they say, the essence of democracy. I disagree, for to me, it is equally clear that democracy does not necessarily result from majority rule, but rather from the forged compromise of the majority with the minor-

MASON-DIXON LINE

JACL Chapters experience all kinds of growing pains. In Southern California, it is particularly prevalent with the constant influx and changing of the Nisei population within the chapter area. "Strictly Off the Cuff," Orange County JACL Newsletter editor Roy Uno's column, feels it's time to split the chapter in half - North and South, or as he puts it: a "Mason-Dixon" line is appearing in the Reading between the lines, it might seem their split would develop a chapter comprising of old-timers in the one and newcomers in the other, or of conservative-minded versus the liberal-minded. The strength of a chapter, however, depends upon both old-timers and newcomers working together, of the conservative-minded and the liberal-minded giving and taking together to sustain the JACL lifeline in a particular area.

Such is the challenge that keeps chapters alive.

When that challenge slips away and indifference creeps in, the JACL lifeline atrophies. JACL was not born of indifference and it certainly finds no sustenance in it today. Founded over 30 years ago as a national organization, JACL gave citizenship meaning to persons of Japanese ancestry-to the Nisei, an American by birth right but deprived then of certain rights, that they were an integral part of the United States and to the Issei, historically denied the privilege of naturalization allowed to others who immigrated to and adopted this country, an opportunity to call this land their home.

Today, JACL has joined in a national movement to assure the same meaning of citizenship to other lessadvantaged Americans. It is a noble endeavor-though the means to this end are subjects for discussion. That is why the PC has been trying to stay on top of the present civil rights campaign in Congress and across the nation.

DISCLAIMERS

It is an unfortunate turn of events that the Pacific sion takes time and conviction did my share; let someone else Citizen must place "disclaimers" over certain kinds of articles appearing in the paper. Topics, in the opinion of the editor, which are controversial in nature will be tagged hereafter with the note as found in the reprint of the Saburo Kido comments on the appeal for pardon of Tomoya Kawakita.

I suppose in a "membership publication" of the JACL, which the PC is, how an article is featured or the subject matter presented can be misunderstood for tacit approval or disapproval of JACL policy or views. In order to avoid such needless misunderstanding and possible embarrassment to the JACL as well as the PC, the hardly-noticed "disclaimer" in the editorial masthead above this column will be restated within the article involved.

However, this shall not defer us from trying to print all the news of significant interest to persons of Japanese ancestry. We have long realized that the PC reaches a vast audience of Nisei who rely upon the PC as their only source of news and comments of Japanese in America.

We firmly recognize that the PC is also a "JACL house organ" and certain commitments to JACL chapters submitting reports should be acknowledged . . . though we often feel chapter news of a serious nature goes unreported while publicity of an up-coming social event rates.

Early Elections Asked

An increasing number of chapters are holding their election of officers before the end of the year, enabling new officers to take over at the first of the year. We encourage this practice since it makes for efficiency and eliminates the usual early-year lull caused by late elections.

At the same time, we appreciate the fact that local conditions and situations govern this matter and it may not be possible for all chapters to have early elections.

Even though new officers may not be elected at this time with various district councils holding meetings or conventions in November and December, it would be to the advantage of the chapter as well as potential officers to attend, become exposed to District affairs and get acquainted with other chapter delegates.

I thought: suppose Mike, Mas, Pat and others took the same attitude, where will JACL be?

JACL will go on like religion years after we have done our share. There will be others to follow only if we give it life and sustain it. As long as the third, Logan, Utah fourth, fifth and other generations of Japanese Americans come along with the Oriental features and no one seems to be able to change nature, we and they will have problems which will concern our group and will need an organization such as JACL to stand up for us.

For the sake of our sons and daughters and for others, we need to have members feel and take on the responsibility which is ours to help financially, and actively support the program of our chapter, if only to attend the meetings But better still hold an office when you are asked and see the workings of the District Council and the National Convention. When the meetings are over you will get the glow of satisfaction in seeing that you had a part in this organization which is a life line of our spirit.

From the Frying Pan

Denver, Colo. THE FLEETING DAYS-Pa, who has long since gone to his reward, used to say that the older he became the faster the years seemed to fly by. I can understand now what he meant. No day seems long enough to complete all that needs to be done and the once almost inexhaustible well of energy runs low long before

I got to thinking about this the other day while looking at the calendar. It is almost Thanksgiving now and the stores are beginning to display their Christmas wares. Before long spring fashions will appear in the windows, but out in our backyard the petunias are still abloom. Where has the year gone?

For us here in Denver it has been an odd year. Drouth gripped us through the spring and into a miserably hot early summer. Then the rains came in August, drenching the mountains and bringing forth an enormous harvest of mushrooms. Winter should have come long ago to these latitudes, yet the leaves still cling to the trees as though reluctant to let autumn flee. These are the glorious days of Indian summer and we savor each of them.

That's the way Pa lived his autumnal years, too. He loved to hunt and fish. At the first he was a miserable marksman. He must have missed ten times as many birds as he brought down. But at fishing, he was a wizard. He could think like a fish. He knew where they lay, and what they hungered for, and he could load his creel while others were working the streams fruitlessly. He was fortunate, in his sunset years, to be able to indulge his hobbies, and thus he slowed the swift passage of time. I hope I shall be as fortunate, even though there has been scant opportunity so far to develop the arts of leisure.

LOOKING BACK-Musing about the years is no longer an impertinence of youth where the Nisei are concerned. Mainland Nisei in their sixties are no longer an oddity. Issei who were in vigorous maturity at the time of the Evacuation are doddering oldsters today. Sansei born in the War Relocation Camps are rearing families of their own. It would seem that the average age of the Nisei today is about what the average of the Issei was at the time of Evacuation, or at least pretty close to it. It is hard to which fought against him. realize that many of my Issei friends were younger than I am now when first they came to Denver from the War Relocation camps.

There is no better measure of the flight of the years than the children. For a time this column reported on their activities and Nisei parents in many parts of the country saw recognizable experiences out of their own lives. Now the youngsters have grown beyond the cute and quaint stage; the older ones are adults and dent of Pacific Trading Co. the younger ones nearly so. Their antics and sayings no longer make column material. They would be embarrassed if I mentioned them and their activities. It must be the same with other Nisei Food Corp., of San Francisco, Stockton Buddhist Church at 148 parents.

The problems and interests today are not of toys broken and needing repair, the antics of the new pup or the loosened tooth that defies pulling. What matters now are serious things-like preparation for a profession, courtship, and what to do about the mess their elders have made of the world.

These, then, are the thoughts that go on in one Nisei's mind eralized and fought in Guadal- board, headed by Frank Kosugi. on an Indian summer evening when there is a bite in the air and canal. the last of the leaves cling in stubborn refusal to recognize that summer is gone. It is a nice time, to be enjoyed to the fullest before winter's chill sets in. And after that comes spring.
