1,500 delegates to participate at Detroit Nat'l JACL Convention

(Special to the Pacific Citizen) WASHINGTON. - Congressmanat-large Neil Staebler (D-Mich.) summarized the 18th Biennial National JACL Convention program in the May 6 Congressional Record for the attention of his colleagues in the House and Senate.

He also lauded the host Detroit JACL chapter for its contributions to the betterment of Detroit and of the State of Michigan and wished the convention success for its theme is the basic moral issue of the day: "Human Dignity-Our Challenge".

The text of Staebler's remarks

Mr. STAEBLER. Mr. Speaker, under leave to extend my remarks, may I call the attention of my colleagues in both the House and the Senate to the 18th Biennial National Convention of the Japanese American Citizens League, more popularly known as the JACL, which will be held in Detroit, appropriately enough through Independence Day week, with headquarters in the historic Sheraton-Cadillac Hotel.

JACL Background

JACL, as most Members of Congress are aware, is the only national organization of Americans of Japanese ancestry. All of its members are native-born or naturalized citizens of the United States; most, but not all, are also of Japanese ancestry.

CALIFORNIA'S HOUSING INITIATIVE

A most effective community-wide campaign to defeat the anti-fair housing initiative on the California ballot .n November will require the coordinated efforts of all concerned so as to avoid duplication of effort and to pool resources for the common objectives.

JACL chapters in California will be expected to contribute beyond the monetary support already promised.

The Northern California chapters are asking the National JACL Council to appropriate $3,000 for a statewide campaign on the basis that the housing initiative has national implications and the largest number of Japanese Americans reside in the state. The Central and Southern California chapters have agreed to join in this statewide effort.

The initiative, if passed, would, in effect, legalize racial discrimination in housing and the state legislature, county and city governments would be barred from providing relief. If passed in California, advocates in other states may be encouraged to follow suit. And we understand there's nothing in the civil rights bill before Congress now that deals with this problem.

Because there are still many eligible Nisei who are not registered as voters, this much of the campaign can be initiated by the chapters without the "green light" from anyone. Some politicians checking the voter registries during the recent primary campaign were dumbfounded by the apparent dearth of Japanese American names - which doesn't speak well when compared with achievements in other realms, such as education, military service and low crime rate.

To secure community support to defeat the housing initiative, chapters committees may be expected to contact local plergymen, educators, businessmen and community leaders; to arouse general interest and discussion everywhere on the subject of the housing initiative; to writing letters and placing newspaper ads, assembling and distributing literature to interested groups and citizens, sponsoring prominent displays, providing speakers for informal groups and organization meetings, and contacting voters door-to-

As for prospects of the initiative being passed, because of the strong Goldwater for President vote in the primaries, fair housing proponents were optimistic. They pointed to the 2.4 million Democratic votes and over 1 million Rockefeller votes against the near 1.1 million Goldwater votes. It will be interesting to keep these figures in mind after the polls close in November.

This optimism may be shortlived with announcement this week of the appointment of a California field director for the White Citizens' Councils of America by its executive director Louis Hollis of Jackson, Miss. As a group dedicated to states' rights and pro-segregation, they can be expected to resist fair housing to the hilt.

The White Citizens' Council has capitalized on racial conflicts, can make hay on FBI Director Hoover's recent warning that the Communist influence exists in the Negro movement and will push its organization on the principle that most racial problems can be resolved successfully at the local level. As its name implies, it will be a white-only organization.

ANOTHER LOOK AT DETROIT

If the city in which you live is looking for additional revenue - and which one isn't - perhaps it can borrow a page from Detroit Mayor Jerome P. Cavanagh's book: a 1% income tax on Detroiters and suburbanites working in the city. By 1966, it expects to erase its record $34.5 milion deficit and subsequently lower property taxes. This and other bits of interesting information about the mayor who is greeting JACL delegates at the 18th Biennial are reprted in Thomas Brook's article appearing in the April 9 Reporter maga-

Cavanagh was in a field with 10 other unknowns running against Mayor Miriani in the 1961 non-partisan primary. To the experts, the incumbent seemed an easy winner. But Cavanagh spent all of his small campaign funds into TV and newspaper advertising to make himself stand out of the pack. It worked as he finished second in the primary designed to reduce the number of candidates to three.

Among the unexpected sources of support he encouraged was in the Negro community — 30 pct. of the population - which was angry at the police crackdown on crime that dragged in thousands of innocent Negroes. Cavanagh's vote ran as high as 90 pct. in solid Negro precincts, but he also pulled 70 pct. or better in the white low-income and working class neighborhoods. He won handily.

Negro financial expert Alfred Pelham was among his first appointments as city controller, who tackled Detroit's muddled finances and urged both fresh income and tax relief for the homeowner and businessman. Cavanagh thus persuaded the Common Council to approve the city income tax. The initial uproar has quieted down.

The article describes the city's hope for diversifying industry — though it is still the Motor Capital of America; how it plans to meet its unemployment problem, how it is facing its race problem (there have been no recent disturbances like the school boycotts in Boston, Chicago and New York or the noisy sitdowns in San Francisco), and pushing for urban redevelpment.

The optimism and vision of this young mayor, he's 35 years old, is such that he should have more to say to us than "welcome to Detroit - have a good time while you're here". At least, we hope he gets the time.

WHY SEEK A NEW SOLUTION

With due respect and appreciation for all the thinking that have gone into the proposals hereinabove outlined, the writer believes that each of the foregoing does not eliminate the basic weakness which characterizes our current so-called Sacramento Plan. This is the very reason why we're looking for a better solution.

THE 'NO QUOTA PLAN'

In answer to the above concern, the writer tenders his "No Quota Plan" for the following reasons:

(1) It is easy to understand because there are no complicated mathematics involved. It simply means that the chapters submit to the National treasury the proper dues for the respective categories-regular, supporting, or 1000 Club. In essence the "No Quota Plan" means that we raise the budget through the application of across the board membership

(2) There is to be no rebate because there will be no arbitrary dollar quota as such hertofore given to the districts and chapters. Under the current system, chapters which exceed their quotas are actually getting a discount on their National membership dues through the rebate policy, while other chapters unable to meet their quotas are paying the full $4 regular membership dues or $25 for 1000 Club. We cannot blame the chapters for this situation, but we can point out the fault of the

(3) No chapter will be assessed beyond its actual membership solicitation. In other words, it's the "cash and carry" program in the language of the merchandising field. No chapter pays more than any other for a given class of (above) have been changed to indicate those chapters which have all-time highs this year by "underline" and "black square".

NO. 2 MAN - Row on row, they sat, the 1964 graduating class of the Air Force Academy, blue and white dress uniforms dazzling in the sun that bathed Falcon Stadium which in autumn is the scene of do-or-die football contests. The gathering of proud friends and relatives, many of whom doggedly had sloshed through the untimely rain and fog of earlier events, was all but lost in the massive stands. And now the moment of fulfilment was at hand, when attesting to four long years of study, diplomas of graduation and second lieutenants' commissions in the United States Air Force would be distributed.

The names of the cadets were called in what is called the "general order of merit" - a ranking based on academic achievement, military proficiency, campus activity and a variety of other factors that add up to the total of a cadet's performance.

The first man to be called forward was Robert L. Sansom of Knoxville, Tenn., whose major field had been economics and social sciences. Then, second man in the class, came Theodore Teruo Saito, son of Dr. and Mrs. Frank Saito of San Leandro, Calif.

AFTER A STRUGGLE - It was a proud, proud day for the Saitos, all three of them, and well it should have been, for it was a notable achievement for a grandson of Japanese immigrants to rank second in an Air Force Academy class of 493. As a matter of fact, it was a notable achievement to be appointed to the Academy, and to be graduated at all, for literally thousands of bright and physically perfect young men apply for the tough and demanding education that prepares them for careers as officers and gentlemen.

Ironically, perhaps Lt. Ted Saito can trace his origins to the Evacuation. He was born in Poston War Relocation Center, and spent his early boyhood in Brigham City, Utah, where his parents tried to pick up the loose strings of life. He was graduated from San Leandro High School, in a community south of Oakland, where the Saitos now live.

Lieutenant Saito won the General Claire Chennault Award (named for the U.S. flier who won undying fame for his fight against the Japanese in China) for excellence in the basic sciences - physics, mathematics, chemistry. Less than perfect eyesight prevents Saito from going into flight training but he has been assigned to Massachusetts Institute of Technology for further studies. The Air Force of tomorrow needs scientists as well as fliers.

But all is not grim and earnest at the Academy. While Saito's name is engraved in bronze on the Chennault plaque he will also be remembered here, where traditions are so important, as the first director of the cadet musical show.

A PROUD TRADITION - Nisei are no rarity at the Air Academy. Ben Furuta of Denver, as I recall, was the first graduate. Until recently Capt. James Tanaka was a physical education instructor and coach of the gymnastics team. Major Timothy Osato is a member of the highly regarded faculty.

A year ago I sat in the stands with Kenji Nogaki, now of New Haven, Conn., to see his nephew, Lt. Warren Nogaki, graduated. President Kennedy, even then marked for untimely death, was the main attraction. The President drew the loudest cheers when he announced that Cadet Nino Baldachi had been forgiven all his demerits, but was being held back to join the junior class.

Nino is no more. He is a totally fictional character who gets the blame for everything that goes wrong at the Academy. It seems that an Italo-American organization in New York protested that it was an unfair reflection on persons of Italian origin to have any character named Nino Baldachi used for an imaginary scapegoat. And so he was stricken from the rolls. Perhaps they should have named him Jack Smith.

CAL. HIGH COURT RULES TO KEEP INITIATIVE 'ON'

Decision Expresses 'Grave Question' on Constitutionality

SAN FRANCISCO. - The State Supreme Court refused last week (June 3) to remove the initiative to repeal the Rumford Housing Act off the general election ballot in November. But the 5-2 decision expressed "grave questions" as to the whether the initiative is constitutional.

The majority held that such questions should be ruled on after the election. This would be preferable to interfering with the initiative process.

Justices Raymond E. Peters and Mathew O. Tobriner, in dissenting, favored granting a petition for a writ of mandate to block a vote on the initiative. The writ was sought by Howard G. Lewis, of the Sacramento NAACP.

Atty. Nathaniel Colley, who filed the petition for Lewis, said he probably will ask the U.S. Supreme Court for a review. "It's a reckless waste of public funds to enact an unconstitutional law," Colley said.

Lewis was first turned down last Jan. 16 by Sacramento Superior Court Judge Irving Perluss, who ruled that the right to petition for placing propositions on the ballot must be "zealously guard-

ISSEI PLAQUE UNVEILED BY CANADA'S PREMIER

TORONTO. - Prime Minister Lester Pearson unveiled a plaque commemorating the Issei contributions to Canada at a ceremony Sunday dedicating the new $600,000 Japanese Cultural Center here at 123 Wynford Dr.

Designed by noted Canadian architect Raymond Moriyama, the square-shaped edifice with modern lines was a six-year project though it was first proposed by the Issei here some 20 years ago.

"Canada is like a symphony orchestra whose participants are of many national origins, each retaining their own characteristics but contributing their best to the concert of progress," one of the Issei at the ceremonies declared. "The Cultural Center is our instrument to realize our nature and heritage and to play our part in this great Canadian symphony."

It was the resourceful effort of the Nisei who completed the Issei dream, he added.
