Separate Sessions

Except for the opening roll call of senior and youth delegates Tuesday morning, their meetings will be separate.

Though it is hoped that a Wednesday night extraordinary session may not be required for senior delegates, that possibility is likely in view of the agenda. It may be averted if sessions start on time, according to National Director. Mas Satow.

Opening session Tuesday will include greetings from Kumeo Yoshinari, national president, and Paul Tamura, interim youth council chairman, San Diego chapter president Abe Mukai and convention chairman Mas Hironaka.

Reports have been filed for the senior delegates covering youth, president's office, national director, Washington office, budget-finance, Pacific Citizen, personnel, nominations, planning commission, History Project and legislative-legal.

Youth, in separate session Tuesday morning, will hear district reports bringing their picture up-to-date before accepting the various national reports covering constitution, credentials, programs, budget and resources.

Youth Adviser Workshops

Youth advisers in attendance will have three workshops scheduled during the week. Specialists in youth work will serve as consultants.

Prof. Harry H.L. Kitano will preside at the first youth advisers' workshop Tuesday afternoon to determine what the ideal adviser is. The second workshop Wednesday will be with youth giving their views on the adviser's role. Third workshop Saturday morning will wrap up the points previously discussed.

Six national JACL committees will convene Tuesday afternoon to discuss in detail the proposals before the convention. Official delegates will be asked to participate in at least one of the committee sessions.

LAW SOUGHT BY CAL REPUBLICAN

Finch, Lt. Gov. Candidate, Supports Rumford Act Repeal

LOS ANGELES - Robert Finch, Republican nominee for state lieutenant governor this fall, told the OBS Newsmakers Sunday that a better law on housing than the Rumford Act can be drawn.

The Los Angeles lawyer said he envisions some system whereby a person charging discrimination in a housing dispute could go to a court of law for a hearing.

This need not be an existing superior or municipal court but could be some special adjunct of the judicial system where rules of law would apply, Finch explained.

The complainant would have to hire a lawyer to press his case but added "I don't think this will be difficult".

Repeal Rumford Act

Finch also said he agrees with Ronald Reagan, GOP gubernatorial candidate, in having repealed the hotly contested Rumford Act aimed at prohibiting racial bias in certain housing sales and rentals.

Plans are also in the works to circulate an "indirect" initiative to repeal the Rumford Act, according to Frank P. Doherty, chairman of the newly organized California Property Owners and Tenants Committee, of Los Angeles.

Petitions would require signatures of 292,662 voters and place before the 1967 legislature a bill to repeal the Rumford Act. Under the state constitution, the legislature would then be required to decide within 40 days whether or not it would repeal the Act. If they do not repeal the act within that period, the Secretary of State would then submit the question to the voters in the next general election (1968, unless a special election for that purpose is called sooner).

Prop. 14, approved by voters in 1964, did not repeal the Rumford Act technically but prohibited the enactment of state laws denying the right of any person to dispose of his property as he chose. The Additional nominations may California State Supreme Court has invalidated Prop. 14 as unconstitutional and its appeal nia Real Estate Assn.

New Asian Policy

Washington

It may be a fortuitous circumstance that the 19th Biennial National JACL Convention is being held in San Diego next week, for the United States is embarked on a new Asian policy. On July 12, President Johnson announced a radical departure in American foreign policy, from the historic Europe-First principle to one giving equal consideration to both Asia and Europe.

In the words of the President: "Asia is now the crucial arena of man's striving for independence and order—and for life itself. This is true because three out of every five people on this planet live in Asia . . . "

He then went on to explain why the United States had to shift from its traditional Europe-First policy: a "First is the determination of the United States to puter Research for Lockheed medical retirement. meet our obligations in Asia as a Pacific power.

"You have heard arguments the other way. They are built on the old belief that 'East is East and West is West, and never the twain shall meet.'

"They claim that we have no business interests in Asia; that Europe, not the Far East, is our proper 'sphere of influence'; that our commitments in Asia are not worth the resources they require; that the ocean is vast, the cultures alien, the languages strange, and the races different.

"These arguments have been tested and found wanting."

The President concluded: "Earlier this year, the Foreign Minister of Singapore said that if the nations of the world could learn to build a truly world civilization in the Pacific through cooperation and peaceful competition, then-as Theodore Roosevelt remarked before him—this may be the greatest of all human eras-the Pacific era.

"As a Pacific power, we must help achieve that outcome. It is a goal worthy of our dreams and of the deeds of brave men."

As a youngster in school many years ago, it used to somehow irritate me that the history books spent so much space on Europe, with only a chapter or two devoted to Asia and a page or two to Japan.

Subsequently I learned to understand America's ruo Ishimaru, Sen Francisco, Sel for Sunday preoccupation with Western Europe. We ference sponsored by the Hotions, trade, practices, etc., had their beginnings in Europe.

At the same time, I was disturbed because of this Europe-First mentality, the so-called problems of the Japanese on the West Coast and of Japan itself were more or less ignored, or at best left to Pacific Coast politicians.

Thus, the Yellow Peril myth was tolerated and even encouraged by this lack of concern on the part Veterinary Medical Assn. of most Americans for the plight of persons of Japanese ancestry in Western America for most of half of Broiler chicken production in this century. The Pacific War and the Evacuation were also the tragic consequences of a diplomatic policy that always gave first priority to Europe, with only secondary or less consideration to the Orient.

Even as recently as World War II, when though the attack that provoked United States entry into that global conflict came from off the Asiatic Mainland, America gave first priority to defeating Hitler in Europe, before shifting our main resources to the Pacific. And, even after total victory, the first efforts to Fair. The appointment is for rehabilitate and reconstruct were directed toward four years and he succeeds Europe, as witness the Marshall Plan.

But, war in the Pacific initiated widespread concern for Asia. After that, the Korean conflict, the challenge in the Formosa straits, Laos, and now Vietnam have forced American attention on the once mysterious and far-away Far East.

At the same time, since the devastation and destruction of defeat, Japan has developed into an ever increasingly influential ally that faces on its western frontier the two great Communist powers of earth-Mainland China and Asiatic Russia, otherwise known as Siberia. From the Frying Pan

Denver, Colo.

A TIME FOR KIDO-On the eve of another national JACL Convention, I see by the program that a luncheon is being set aside as a testimonial to Saburo Kido. The first impulse is to ask: "Is Kido an elder statesman already?" And then: "Why have they waited so long to do honor him?"

Kido was a big man already when I first met him Chihara, head of the mathe-30 years ago. That was the summer of 1936 at the national convention in Seattle. Many of the wheels of that convention are gone now-Jimmie Sakamoto, Clarence Arai, Takeo Nogaki, Walt Tsukamoto. A hardy handful remain—people like Sim Togasaki and Hito Okada, and of course Mas Satow, although Mas is still so full of enthusiasm that he seems hardly to fall in the category of elder statesman.

Before the 1936 convention ended, Kido had to hurry back to San Francisco. We drove him to the ate of Seattle University with old Boeing airfield on the foggy Duwamish river flats post-graduate degrees in and saw him board what the newspapers used to call mathematics from Purdue, be-"a giant, two-engined DC-3". I'd never before seen a Nisei who was so busy and so well-heeled that he flew, and was properly impressed.

AUTUMN OF AN ERA-The News Capsules sec- legiate Mathematics. A nation in last week's Pacific Citizen (which is recommend- tive of Seattle, he is married ed, by the way, as a place for getting a great deal of information about Nisei-Sansei activities) carried a thought-provoking item: Dr. Tsuneo Murakami was identified as the only active Issei physician in Southern California.

Could so much time have passed? Could he be law degree in 1956. He was of Consul General Toshiro Shi- ticularly of the Japanese en- sion; legislative-legal, civil al, state and local officials as the last of so many dedicated doctors who ministered to the ailments of Issei and Nisei?

As Issei men in Portland died one by one, Pop and Mom made it their regular Sunday duty to pick up as many Issei widows as possible and drive them to church. Then came the day when Pop could no longer keep up with the traffic safely, and so he gave Jews, Municipal League and up his driver's license. When they go to church these days, they take the bus.

MYSTERY SOLVED-A couple of columns back I mentioned seeing a big yellow school-type bus near Portland with the words "Kaz Fujii" painted on its the youngest elected state back, and wondered in print what it was all about. official in the history of Wash-Ruby Izui of Chicago, who identifies herself as "a former farmer," clears up the mystery which, as it turns out, isn't really mysterious at all.

"The answer is simple," she writes. "The berry growers in that area-which includes the Gresham-Troutdale chapter of the JACL-in order to obtain berry-picking help, have resorted to purchasing buses, so that they may pick up helpers. This has gone on for quite a few years—and it seems that for farmers with large acreages this system is quite a boon in that pickers may commute easily from home without worry of transportation and living problems. Apparently in 1964 and one of three Commodore Perry's former when you overtook Kaz Fujii's bus at 6 a.m. he was on his 'picking up' route."

Thank you for writing, Ruby Izui.

YATAI IN DENVER-In a prominent place in ber Mrs. Owen, who has Denver's new Stapleton International Airport terminal is a Japanese "yatai," or float, painted scarlet and black and trimmed with gilt, standing nearly two stories tall. The yatai was brought to Denver two years ago by the delegation from Takayama attending the Sister Cities festival.

The yatai was introduced to Denverites in a parade gent of Washington State Unithrough the downtown streets that featured the fes- versity, overseer of Whitman tivities. In Japanese, "bai sha ku nin', stands for "go- Ole '66: between" in marriage arrangements. In JACL's National Youth Program, (NYC) the National Youth Commission (NYC) serves this function. That is, the NYC acts as the "go-between" for the senior and youth groups.

Through this relationship with the NYC chairman, the NYD operates within and through the National Youth Program (NYP) and National Youth Organization (NYO), as well as in the senior structure through his staff responsibilities Project money has been rewith the National Board.

I believe this relationship clearly indicates to everyone that the NYD is hired by the senior organization to work directly with the NYC (the major volunteer arm for youth) administering the "total" NYP under JACL.

NAMES AND STRUCTURE—Different terms are used in the diagram to designate various youth areas. From the Detroit Convention in '64 to the National Convention this year in San Diego, the term National tal are obvious, one is the Interim Youth Council (NIYC) has been used to indi- quick and easy contact possicate the National coordinating body of all the youth ble between the Jr. JACL and groups sponsored by JACL. At the grass-roots level, the term Club is substituted for chapter to make the distinctive difference from senior chapter. Here the basic leader is indicated "Constitutional Convention" by the term president. The President then has the chapter adviser as a consultant.

TWO FINAL WORDS—By rendering distinct terms to indicate the various levels in both the senior program. The capacity for a and youth organizations, we hope there is less con- varied and balanced program fusion. Youth and seniors have referred to their governing bodies with the same names: councils, districts,

In this farewell column I am presumptuous to state what I believe to be some of the more important challenges to be resolved during the National Council sessions.

THE JUNIOR JACL

There is no doubt that the young people are to actuate the National Junior JACL. There is also an inherent obligation, which the JACL has, to counsel and subsidize their needs to give every encouragement to the group to flourish into a worthy entity meriting the membership support of the Sansei.

This will not be a short For a long time we have Akagi, James Ushijima. self-sustaining division.

PUBLIC RELATIONS

Recognition for equality of opportunities and the acceptance of our presence by the general public were the very premise which motivated the need of the JACL to be organized on the united means to foster positive public relation for ourselves in opposition to those who were discrediting our desirability as worthy members of American society. LONG RANGE PLANNING

Random thoughts by our Washington colleague Mike Masaoka, dean of JACL's professional staff with 25 years service, has provided in a memo to the National JACL Planning Commission meeting this Sunday at San Diego-some recommendations and alternatives we wished he might have discussed in his column much earlier than this.

Basic question, as Mike sees it, is: What kind of organization should JACL be?

1-Should JACL return to its first intention and Do you open doors? become truly a fraternal organization? Thus JACL would not worry about large membership, only about providing more and more beneficial services to members only, restricted to Americans of Japanese ancestry exclusively with privileges of a home for the aged, a hospital for the sick and injured, special insurance programs, etc.

2-Should JACL become a social service agency, Doors?" which was printed in fact that the Pacific Citizen is directed toward community services to those of Japa- the July 15 Pacific Citizen! one of the best laid out newsnese ancestry? With Medicare and other government From his first penetrating papers in the country? Its programs available to all citizens, perhaps JACL should question, "What shall we hon- page layouts could be used concentrate on making certain that those of Japanese or Nisei leaders for?" to his as textbooks with much profit ancestry secure every possible public service and be- cogent analysis of why we do by many another news sheet. nefit. With juvenile delinquency on the increase, should the hesitation waltz over the JACL take leadership in such civic problems as education, civil rights, slum clearance, etc.?

3-Should JACL move out to serve the larger through Page 5 and right to community needs without fear or favor?

4-Should JACL become a political action organization for the less-advantaged Americans, including the Japanese Americans, and particularly active in civil rights on the local level? With political action becoming an increasingly important aspect of American life, perhaps JACL's greatest contributions can be in this field.

5-Should JACL become a strictly citizens organization of Japanese Americans concerned only with encouraging and promoting better citizenship among Japanese Americans? Or a citizens group endeavoring to secure better social legislation and social services for all citizens?

6-Should JACL become an active advocate of better cultural, educational and commercial ties & exchange with Japan? The Japan-America Societies are more social and do little in the congressional and economic areas.

7—Should JACL continue pretty much as it is now doing, trying to do many things in many areas, some not so well and others quite badly, but managing seattle-Human Relations Mtg. paration was accomplished. Reevaluate Attitude . . . somehow to grow even though the specific goals and objectives are not too well defined? In a way, this has Progressive Westside-Chanels been the very genius of the JACL in the past, providing the JACL the flexibility and leadership to move and meet new challenges and to cope with new problems as they arose to threaten the future of Japanese Americans.

"Once we have determined this fundamental question of what kind of organization JACL should be, it seems to me that we will be in a much better position to consider the structure we need, the kind and Chicago-Jr. JACL Mtg. size of member, program and activities, qualifications of staff, financial responsibilities, future of the Endowment Fund, editorial and news direction of the Pacific Citizen, etc.," Mike says.

This fundamental re-examination may be studied in the coming biennium for San Jose if not at San Diego, Mike adds. If this question is settled, other questions regarding staff, financing, programs and activities may be easier to solve.

Mike covers other corollary issues such as: 1-Should national officers be elected as nominal, honorary figureheads with a strong well-paid professional staff empowered to make and carry out decisions and programs? Or should officers be required to take active leadership, perhaps with some small honorarium and expense accounts, and run the organization with a small administrative staff?

2—Should JACL be more nationally oriented, or to local chapter problems on a more or less autonomous basis?

3—Should JACL be concerned with servicing its own membership than the general Japanese American public?

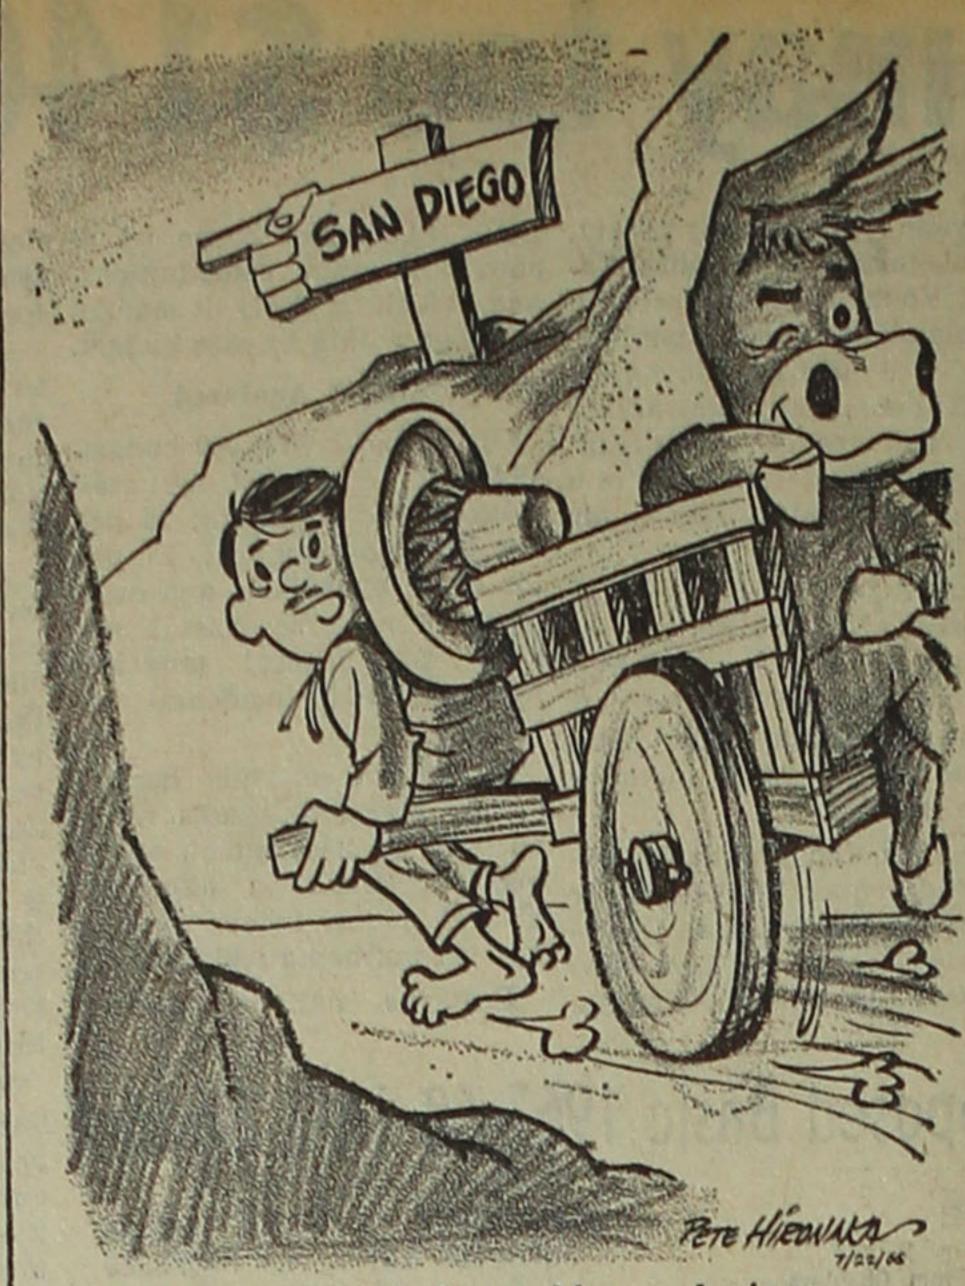

Mike feels that after 36 years, it is time for JACL to undergo a critical examination of its basic goals and objectives. With a new generation of leaders coming into JACL, is this not the proper time to invite such an evaluation?, he asks. Such a review by members and chapters would provide an active, interesting biennium with district council conventions next year initiating the preliminary discussions that may revitalize and remotivate the JACL.

Times and conditions have changed since 1930, when JACL was founded. No longer is racial discrimination against those of Japanese ancestry a major problem and promising opportunities in almost every area of human endeavor welcome Japanese Americans. And with JACL following the national pattern, with most chapters now urban or suburban in character as against the agricultural background of most 1930 JACLers, there is a new membership in JACL as well as new leadership. Since we're not in midst of some great project, such as equality in naturalization, Mike suggests this may well be the logical and appropriate opportunity to stop, study and solve the JACL dilemma-"whither

JACL?"

Perhaps many JACLers have had questions of a similar nature in mind, but we're glad Mike organized his "random thoughts" for us to squeeze them into this column the weekend before the 19th Biennial commences. His talent for presentation of ideas under pressure of deadline (like his weekly columns) is one we have appreciated for many years and find hard to match.
