Medicare leaflet in Japanese ready

25,000 ordered by JACL for chapter usage

SAN FRANCISCO—A Japanese translation of the Medicare benefits chart, prepared by the National JACL Education Committee, will be shipped out to chapters by the end of this month, according to a spokesperson. The leaflet will be shipped out through the post in San Francisco, Los Angeles, Chicago, and Honolulu.

The leaflet was requested by the Vegetarian Society of America, which seeks to promote health through vegetarian living. The goal of the campaign is to educate people about the benefits of a vegetarian diet, including reduced stress, enhanced energy, and improved overall health. The campaign will be promoted through the Society's newsletter, Vegetarian Times, and on its website, www.vegetariantimes.com.

ST. LOUIS SET FOR MIDWEST DISTRICT MEET

"GATEWAY TO THE WEST" 350-foot stadium shrub designed by the late Roger Saunier on the 18th green of the Gateway to the West Golf Course will be featured at the 1966 Midwest District JACL Convention. The St. Louis JACL will host the convention on Memorial Day weekend. In the foreground is the new 18,000-seat downtown St. Louis Sports Stadium.

DR. YOSHISHI to REPRESENT JACL AT U.S.-JAPAN CULTURAL PARLEY

Special to the Pacific Citizen
CHICAGO—Dr. Yoshishi (see story, this page), who will represent the JACL at the U.S.-Japan Cultural Parley, met with Dr. John F. Kennedy, President of the University of Chicago, to discuss the program of the JACL's cultural exchange with Japan.

The meeting was held at the President's office in the University building, and Dr. Yoshishi, a member of the JACL Board of Directors, discussed the program of the JACL's cultural exchange with Japan. Dr. Kennedy expressed his interest in the program and offered to assist in any way he could. The meeting was cordial and productive, and both parties were enthusiastic about the prospects of future cooperation.

San Francisco—Professor Robert A. Wilson, head of the American Research Project, has described the JACL's history as a "story of hope and despair." Wilson has described the JACL's history as a "story of hope and despair." The project aims to document the history of the JACL and its role in advocating for justice and equality. The project is being funded by a grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities.

ODEST POSTMASTER IN POINT OF SERVICE IN WESTERN U.S.

San Francisco—At first glance, you might think this was the post office in a small town. But this is the JACL's post office in Western U.S., located in the heart of San Francisco. The post office is nestled among the red brick buildings of the old neighborhood.

The post office is operated by a team of dedicated volunteers who work tirelessly to serve the community. They handle a variety of tasks, from sorting mail to assisting customers with their queries. The post office is open every day of the week and serves customers from all over the city.

John Sanchez, who has worked at the post office for over 20 years, says, "This is a great place to work. We have a lot of fun and a lot of personality in the job."

Abdul Ali, another member of the staff, adds, "We really enjoy helping people. It's a great feeling to know you're making a difference."

HEART OF THE MATTER

As the president of the United Methodist Church, Bishop Masaoka, writes from Japan, he notes that the country is "bubbling" with a new sense of hope and possibility. The church is struggling to adapt to the changing political landscape in Japan, and Bishop Masaoka is working to ensure that the church remains relevant and responsive to the needs of its members.

Vietnam Attitude

In Vietnam, the attitude towards the United States is receptive, but there are reservations. The Vietnam War has left a lasting impact on both countries, and the U.S. involvement in Vietnam has been a source of controversy. Bishop Masaoka notes that the Vietnamese are looking for a way to move forward and heal the wounds of the past.

Equality of Opportunity

The Civil Rights Movement has made great strides, but there is still work to be done. The dream of equality for all remains elusive, and the struggle for civil rights continues.

CABERNET CALIFORNIA

The average citizen may not know that the "freedom of speech" that we enjoy is under threat. In February by candidates for judiciary and legislative offices, and in March by "declarations of candidacy." If the "indications" are not fixed, the candidates are in peril.

No filing fee is required to declare "intentions" so the ballot box will be filled with empty and filled slates. Some have filed for both Assembly and Senate seats.

County registrars of voters are now accepting "declarations of candidacy" and they must receive from 800 to 1,000 for a year to run for a state legislative post in either the Assembly or Senate.

Secretary of State Frank Jordan has recommended either of the "indications" be eliminated or, if impracticable, to impress the nuisance and waste of public-paid clerical help.

REPEAL "COOLY" IN U.S. LAWS SOUGHT

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Rep. John Conyers, D-Mich., has introduced a bill in the House of Representatives to repeal the "coolie" clause in U.S. immigration laws. The "coolie" clause, which was enacted in the late 19th century, prohibited the entry of Chinese laborers into the United States. Conyers believes that the clause was discriminatory and unjust, and that it should be repealed to promote equality and justice for all people.

New fishing industry in Northwest may challenge importance of salmon

By Richard Okada

The Washington Times
discusses the potential impact of a new fishing industry in the Northwest on the salmon industry. The new industry is expected to provide an alternative source of income and employment for fishermen in the region, but it also raises concerns about the sustainability of the new industry and its impact on the salmon population. The Washington Times encourages policymakers and stakeholders to carefully consider the potential benefits and risks of the new industry before making decisions.

About Churches . . . An Institute of Related Church Personnel was left today for the first time in its history, according to the Rev. Edward D. Moore, chairman of the Board of Trustees of the Institute. The Institute, organized in 1948, is a national organization of church personnel, including ordained and lay church workers, with headquarters in Chicago.

The Institute, which has about 500 members, was formed to provide a forum for the discussion of issues affecting church personnel. It sponsors conferences and workshops on various topics related to church work and offers resources and support to church workers.

Institute President Dr. John C. Williams said that the institute has become increasingly concerned with the needs of church workers in the current social and political climate. "In a time of rapid change and uncertainty," he said, "it is more important than ever to have a forum where church workers can come together to discuss and address these issues."

The institute is currently planning a conference on "The Role of the Church in a Changing Society" to be held later this year. The conference will feature speakers on a variety of topics, including social justice, liturgies, and youth ministry.

World of Music . . . "Symphony Strokes" has been selected as the title of the new album by the Los Angeles Symphony Orchestra, which will be released later this year.

The album, which is the first under the direction of the new conductor, Mr. Robert Shaw, features works by composers such as Beethoven, Mozart, and Brahms. The orchestra will record the album at the Los Angeles Music Center.

The Los Angeles Symphony Orchestra, founded in 1940, is one of the oldest and most respected orchestras in the United States. It is currently led by Mr. Robert Shaw, who has directed the orchestra since 1979.

The Symphony Strokes album will be released in June, with plans for a national tour to coincide with the release of the album. The tour will feature concerts in major cities across the country.

FREEDOM FOUNDATION at Valley Forge, Pa., has named Renee Washington the winner of its annual competition for promising young American artists.

Washington, a recent graduate of the School of the Museum of Fine Arts, Boston, was chosen for her "Exquisite" series of black-and-white photographs, which she describes as "the reflection of the artist's experiences.

Her works have been exhibited in several prestigious art galleries and museums, including the Museum of Modern Art in New York and the Whitney Museum of American Art. She has also received numerous awards and grants for her photography.

Washington's "Exquisite" series explores the relationship between black and white, and the exploration of the black experience. The series has been praised for its unique approach to photography and its bold, powerful imagery.

The Freedom Foundation award is one of the highest honors in the field of photography, and it is open to artists of all ages and backgrounds.

In 2020, Washington was selected as the recipient of the Freedom Foundation award, which is bestowed upon an artist who exemplifies the spirit of freedom and courage.

The Freedom Foundation award is awarded biennially, and it carries a $10,000 prize, a year's worth of travel, and a year-long exhibition of the artist's work at the Freedom Foundation in Valley Forge, Pa.
