Weeks to Go EDC - MDC Convention - Sept. 1-4

Washington Newsletter: Mike Masaoka Takeso Shimoda

Since the week-long Mid-East war happily appears to be over, even though difficult political, economic, and diplomatic problems remain to be resolved, and since there were no apparent special Nisei angles to that Israeli-Arab confrontation, we shall devote this Newsletter to Takeso Shimoda, who is scheduled to the 1967-68 term. A business arrive in Washington early next week to assume his post as Japan's Ambassador Extraordinary and Plenipotentiary to the United States.

The 60-year-old Shimoda succeeds Ryuji Takeuchi as Japan's envoy to Washington. He will be the sixth post-World War II Japanese Ambassador to the United

The new Ambassador joined the Foreign Office free of responsibilities to at- the community and fostering in 1931, after graduating from Tokyo Imperial University. In addition to having been the Minister of the Embassy here a decade ago, Shimoda has served in such posts as Chief of the Treaties Section, Ambassador to Belgium, Ambassador to the Soviet Union, and Vice Minister of Foreign Affairs, the highest post in the Foreign Ministry available to career diplomats.

In an address to the America-Japan Society of Tokyo and the American Chamber of Commerce in Japan late last month, the new Ambassador outlined his thoughts regarding the relationship of Japan and other the United States, as he prepared to leave for his James, through college. latest assignment.

Noting that "various changes have occurred in the relationship between the United States and Japan, as well as the situation in Asia" in the ten years since he was last stationed in Washington, the new envoy declared that, "During this period, Japan completed the process of normalizing its relations with other countries, with a few exceptions including Communist China. This whole process took more than 20 years and was concluded, curiously enough, by normalizing its relations with its closest neighbor, the Republic of Korea. Emerging from its so-called postwar era, Japan has entered a stage where it attempts to formulate and carry out foreign policies on its own from a new point of view.

"Parallel to such renewed foreign policy activities on the part of Japan, there are trends in Asia which have been so aptly described by Secretary Rusk as the 'new wind in Asia'. What, then, is this 'new wind' in the eyes of the Japanese people?

"The most notable aspect of this 'new wind' is that, in spite of their differences in political and ideological views or positions, neighboring countries of Asia are making concerted efforts towards the most fundamental goal common to all Asians, namely, the conquest of poverty. Asians can look back upon a in New York. He is married period in their history, thousands of years ago, when to the former Ruth Enomoto their civilization enjoyed a position of preeminence in of Los Angeles. the world. They have now resumed their steps towards the long-term goal they share of rebuilding an Asia which would enjoy an improved standard of living, as well as a high standard of social and cultural achievement, an Asia which would be worthy of its tradition and history."

Shimoda then went on to summarize Japan's participation and leadership in the cooperative regional programs that have been established for the economic, social, and cultural development of the area, expressing the hope that "the United States would continue its support to and cooperation with the efforts of · Asians, since the United States does have a great stake in peace and stability in this region."

Explaining that the "Peace Constitution" of Japan distinguishes the relationship with the United States, as compared to American relations with the Western European nations, the new Ambassador emphasized that "Japan is unable to make any military contribution to collective security measures within or the first master of the Rinzai outside the United Nations." At the same time, how- sect of Zen to carry the faith ever, Japan is lending "cooperation in the economic outside Japan. field or in the field of social welfare, including medical care, for the purpose of peaceful construction" in Vietnam "as a part of the broader cooperative efforts towards the achievement of the common goals of Asi-

Turning to specific Japanese-United States relations, Shimoda noted that, "What is characteristic to the recent relationship between Japan and the United States is the continuing shift of emphasis in the subjects of their communications from bilateral issues to multilateral questions with broad international implications. It is not that bilateral issues have disappeared before us. There are, for example, problems concerning Okinawa or difference of our interests in tion of the Watts community fisheries. Emphasis, however, has come to be placed on health program. consultations concerning such subjects as the Vietnamese questions or the question of Chinese representation which have extensive international implications, or on such multilateral negotiations as the one concerning the treaty on non-proliferation of nuclear weapons or the Kennedy Round negotiations."

While conceding that "discords and differences are bound to exist between two independent countries," he declared that, "We have always succeeded in resolving differences between us and coming to mutually satisfactory settlements. The question of fundamental importance in this regard is whether, despite these differences, the two governments and the two peoples are willing to make their efforts to understand and respect each others standpoint through frank exchange of views. So far as our relations with the United States are concerned, I need hardly repeat here that the Japanese Government and the overwhelming majority of its people would answer this question in the affirmative.

"We can derive further encouragement from the fact that today there are hardly any Japanese who have prejudices against the United States due to their memories of the war or who, on the other extreme, regard the United States as a unilateral protector in view of their experiences during the occupation period. In their place has arisen a generation which has been brought up free from memories of war and which has been nurtured in the political and economic environment of a new, developing Japan. Without having any prejudice against the United States, they would speak out in the international arena in a most forthright manner. They also expect their country to act on the basis of a strong sense of independence and responsibility fitting to a country of the first rank. These are the people who can from the genuinely solid foundation for establishing a new partnership between Japan and the United States.

"I think that we are now at a point where we should return to the clean slate, so to speak, to the time when we first established diplomatic relations one hundred years ago, and to develop a new friendship between us, marching forward together, sharing joys and sorrows in this world filled with hardships and respecting independence and freedom of action of each other."

Denver, Colo.

THE ART OF PRINTING — Those of us whose reading is oriented primarily toward daily newspapers and magazines are inclined to overlook the enormous strides being made in the printing of books. A few Tanita, son of the Tadashi years ago we thumbed through some art books in Tanitas, $500; (2) Carol To-Hongkong flawlessly printed in Red China. More recently we saw samples of fine printing in the Soviet exhibit at Expo 67 in Montreal, and some spectacularly beautiful color printing in the Czechoslovakian pavilion. Obviously the Communist nations are making a good deal of progress in the art of fine printing; they are turning out quality as well as quantities of propaganda material.

All this leads up to a visit the other day by Katsuhiko Sakiyama, the young assistant vice president longtime friendship and counof Kodansha International, the American outlet of one of Japan's most distinguished publishing houses. Kodansha International has set up offices in Palo Alto, Calif., and is distributing a number of remarkably handsome volumes, most of which have to do with some aspect of Japanese or Oriental culture.

Many of Kodansha's books are not cheap. For example, its prize-winning "Decorative Arts of Japan," with 112 color plates, sells for $32.50. The two-volume "The Arts of Japan," translated by Prof. Glenn Webb of the Univ. of Washington, is $25 per volume or $42.50 for the set. However, for one who appreciates good printing or is a student of the Japanese arts, these volumes are collectors' items.

POSTWAR PROGRESS — Good printing requires a good many skills — the skill of the paper-maker, the skill of the typographer and pressman, the skills of the binder, the color engraver, the layout designer —and it is obvious the Japanese printing industry has developed each of these skills.

There was a time before the war when Japanese publications left much to be desired. They were much like the products of other Japanese industries—shoddy, substandard. The paper quality was low. Antiquated type faces were used. Sometimes rusty staples 5an were used to bind the pages.

Kodansha's books are proof that the printing industry has been upgraded in the same fashion as Japan's automotive, electronic, shipbuilding and other industries. They take back seats to no craftsmen anywhere in the world.

IN AMERICAN ENGLISH—Equally as impressive as the quality of printing in the new books from Japan is the quality of writing. It used to be that Japanese scholars with an inadequate command of English tried to tell us about such complex matters as the Noh drama, flower arrangement or woodblock prints. Americans who tried to translate Japanese manuscripts simply did not know enough about the subjects to do an adequate job.

Not so any more. Both Japanese and American scholars are well-enough acquainted with their respective subjects that their writing is both lucid and readable.

Books such as these should be of particular interest to Nisei who, if you'll pardon the expression, in middle age are demonstrating a brand new curiosity and concern about Japanese cultural arts. Men and women who ignored or resisted exposure to Japanese culture have developed an interest in learning more about Japan's contribution to the world's store of fall. beauty. One need but thumb through a volume such as Torao Miyagawa's "Modern Japanese Painting" to understand how contemporary Japanese artists have combined ancient and modern techniques with strikingly beautiful results.

Kodansha's fall catalogue includes some 45 titles ranging from the arts to sports, fiction to sports, cooking to folk tales, and they all look interesting.

Instead of making the trip by ourselves, we decided to go with a "kankodan." Fred Ochi gave the invoca- thought this would be something new for us.

The group which gave me the best schedule as to the time of departure was the Miyako Travel Service. When the itinerary was announced, we discovered that there were too many "hot spring visits".

My sister-in-law, Mrs. Martha Harada of Sacramento who had agreed to join us when we had decided on the date of our departure, was going to visit Japan for the first time. Consequently, we thought we had to depart from some extent. When April of this year ap-

Every time we have made a trip out of the country, we had gone to Dr. Paul Yamauchi's office for the necessary shots, carrying with us the yellow certificate card. We were told that the typhoid shots were no longer necessary, especially if the trip was to be confined to Japan. We had a booster for the tetanus shot as a precautionary measure. And we had the customary three shots for typhoid, too.

We remember when we made our first visit to Japan back in 1952. We had the same typhoid shot reaction like we did when we were preparing to go the relocation camp. The second shot gave us a stiff arm and fever. But this time, we did not have too strong a reaction from the shots.

When we were advised that we can go to Bangkok with the addition of $40 per person, we decided to join the Aki Tour of San Francisco, with Martha. For this, we had to have the shot for cholera.

This may be something for the JACLers to keep in mind for the future when they make another visit to the Orient. This coming tour may be the forerunner of other visits to come. $800 is the round trip plane fare to Bangkok, which will include stopovers in Hongkong, Taipei, Manila and Oki-

When the birth certificate is based on such a judgment of court, the passport may not be a simple matter. This was the situation which confronted our sister-in-law. She had the passport issued barely on time to be able to join the party. One reason why the fare is cheaper than the ordinary tours for the JACL tour is that everyone must go and return together. PSW Potpourri

Let's talk this week about what's been happening in the Pacific Southwest District.

Although the PSW is running a poor second in membership for the 22nd consecutive year, we have one very bright spot in the West L.A. Chapter. Membership chairman, George Nakao, has made the chapter, with 604 members, Ichiban in the district and fourth nationally behind San Francisco, San Jose and Chicago. I guess this calls for a bottle of champagne Fowler JACL presents ... At the other extreme, Coachella Valley Chapter has had only one member for the past seven years. And this calls for a bottle of Listerine.

NEW CHAPTERS — It seems almost a certainty now that the San Gabriel Valley Chapter will be reactivated into our 90th chapter. Twenty-five members have signed up and a committee has been appointed to draw up a constitution. Temporary officers elected are Dave Ito, chairman pro-tem; Marvel Mivata, secretary; and Deni Uejima, treasurer. Pasadena is the sponsoring chapter.

There is also another chapter taking form in the and has served the chapter Modern art Riverside-San Bernardino area. The first organization- well as a PR project. al meeting was held on May 29 with eight members George Shunsuke Uchiyama, Peters, who teaches art, adof the sponsoring Orange County Chapter attending along with Dave Miura, 2nd National Vice-President; Ted Tsukahara, District Vice Governor; James Kasahara, National Membership Chairman; Alan Kumamoto, National Youth Director, and myself.

PENNSYLVANIA BOUND — The District will suffer a tremendous loss at the end of this month when the much loved and respected JACLer, Father (Clement) Boesflug will leave for his new assignment in Pennsylvania. Reservations or inquiry may be made regarding the JACL sponsored dinner at 6:30, Thursday, June 22 by calling the Regional Office at 626-4471. Maryknoll Mission is holding a send-off party at 222 Hewitt Street at 3 p.m. on Sunday, June 25.

WHEN TO DECENTRALIZE

Though not of prime concern at the present time, the question of JACL's organizational structure has been attracting more attention than usual. A sum of about $500 was authorized to study the communications problem within the organization last year—pointing up the gravity of the situation. A specialist was employed to sift through the maze of communication lines existing within the organization, who recommended several steps to unravel or improve the lines. But more fundamental is the structure.

The structure as designed by the JACL national constitution is not the problem. It appears to be the execution or implementation of mandates and handling in regard to Concert Japanes- his talk was misunderstood by was favorable. the every day problems that arise.

Asked by Jerry Enomoto to prepare a draft for executive reorganization by July 1, we have had to brush up on principles of management, trying to elicit ideas from several current texts on the subject that can be applicable to JACL administration.

We may arrive at three organizational charts-one detailing the relationship between chapters, district councils and national board; another charting the lines of command and roles of service within the national organization; and one establishing the structure of the JACL professional staff itself. At this point, a complex diagram combining all three charts seems highly improbable to project so that it can be readily understood. the nominal amount the Board

As an organization made up of people, it is a basic principle that each member within the organization participates and shares in the business of striving for the objective for which JACL has been organized-"security through unity" and "better Americans hope that other chapters will Editor: in a greater America"—which we interpret as simply "more members".

It is also incumbent upon the organization that its members know what to do, what its share of the task at hand is, and help them acquire the necessary skill or knowledge to do the job.

JACL's stated policies, programs and activities help to motivate members to get more members. The although the attendance was been quite a little discussion responsible officers and members of the organization not quite as large as we had on the so-called racist type of This is the trip that the plained, "she is an American are then charged with fulfilling the various functions anticipated, the audience was humor and the many implica- Mas Satows and Pat Okuras just as you are." As a national organization which has continued to grow in size (additional staff has been hired, salaries have been increased, more frequent travel has been approved), burden on the top executives never abates, multiplication of programs affects quality and the need for decentralization becomes more real.

Our free time with the textbooks leads to us to one conclusion for the present: organizational executive charts can be changed at will and each organization must custom make its own charts.

A FORTNIGHT OF FAREWELLS

Starting with the three-day Maryknoll School carnival this week, JACL's chaplain and my onetime Father Confessor, Father Clement Boesflug will be saying goodbye to the hundreds of acquaintances he has made during his near 30 years in Los Angeles, Editor: four of them in the various War Relocation Authority camps during the bleak era following Pearl Harbor.

Father, who spent his early years as a missioner in the Kyoto area, hails from Bismarck, N.D., and on the occasion of his silver jubilee as a Catholic priest had his parents present here at the Maryknoll Mission on Hewitt St. for the celebration several years ago. Because his German surname was a tongue twister among the Japanese with whom he worked, they called him Fr. Clement; those in Japan affectionately called him Fr. Hiroshi, which also means clement.

Pacific Citizen Holiday Issue readers have long seen his by-line with stories about Christmas. JACLers across the country were unanimous in his selection of JACLer of the Biennium at the 1964 national convention in Detroit. Yet he continually abhorred publicity, quietly going about his duties for the good of the Japanese Americans in general. He was an "associate member" of a number of JACL chapters in the Pacific Southwest, caring for chaplaincy duties when asked.

His first brush with JACL came in 1954 when he pinch-hit for Fr. Hugh Lavery, then superior of the Maryknoll school and church here, who was being cited by National JACL for his work with Japanese during the war years. Since then, Fr. Clement has managed to show up at every JACL national convention. His Roman collar and clerical suit stood out no matter where in the Nisei world, in which Catholics are but a privileged few.

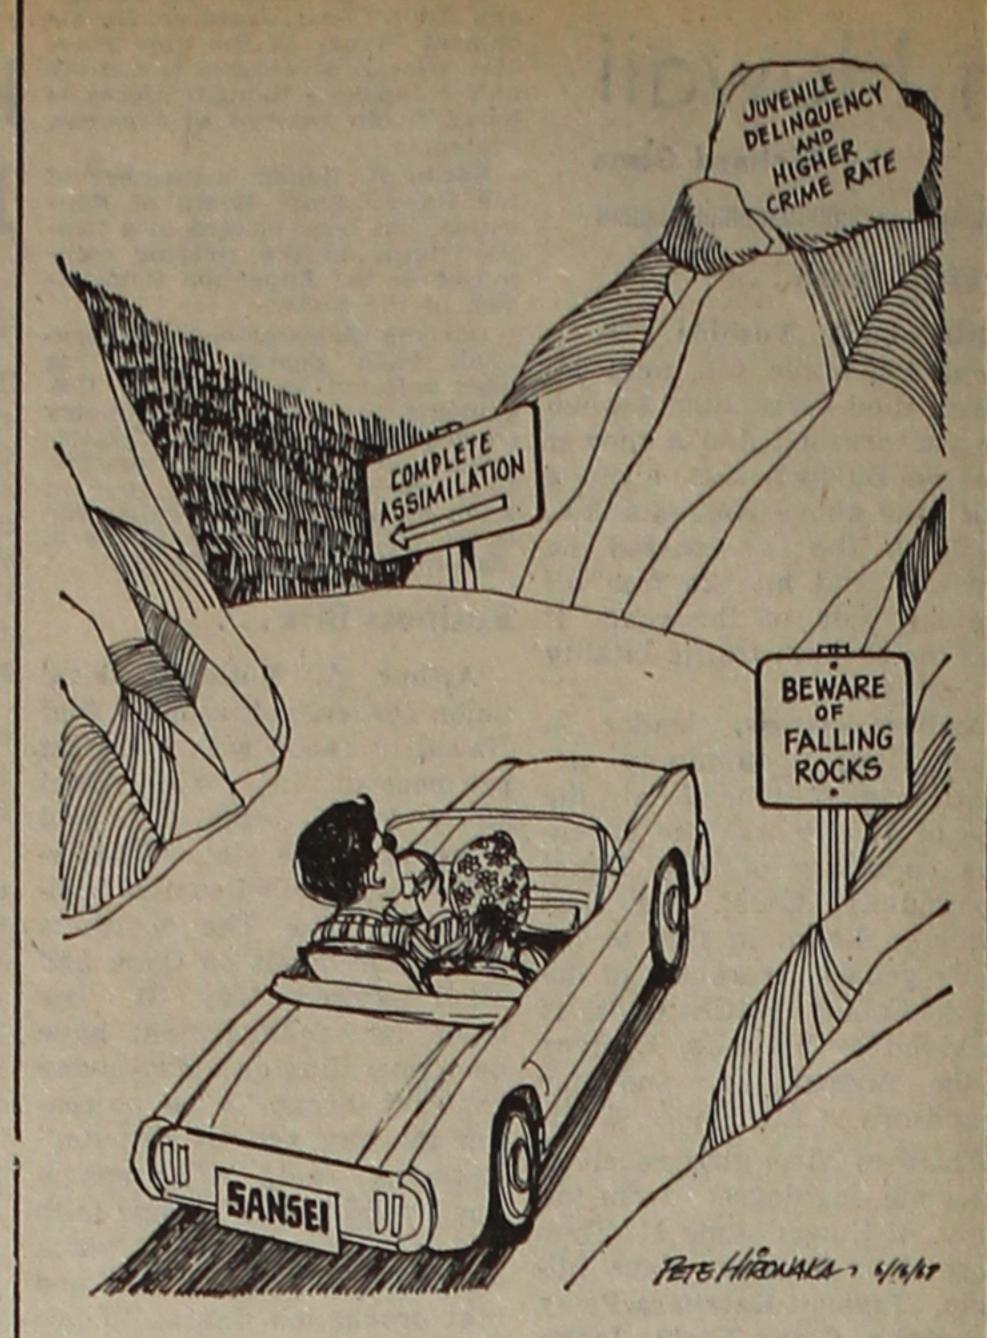

So, before July 1, his friends here will be saying "so long for a while" to Fr. Clement. The Maryknoll Mission is holding a farewell reception on Sunday, June 25, 3 p.m. We shall wish him success on his new assignment at the Maryknoll House in Clarks Summit, Pa., and know that our paths will cross again in the been Yoshiko Uchida's books. -National Assn. for the Ad- who returned home from as- uated. future.
