applied use of this technique brought the Southern Negro unprecedented civil rights gains. It also helped bring the Nobel Peace Prize to Dr. Martin Luther King. Who can say with absolutely finality that morally wrong laws that stand for a seeming eternity should not be fought with such a tool?

Some Nisei have speculated about whether civil disobedience would be a tool to use, were another evacuation foisted upon us. I don't believe it is necessary for JACL to endorse or disavow civil disobedience. The JACL has always made it amply clear that it believes in the rule of law. It has fought its battles almost exclusively through the courts and the legislatures of our land. It has gone on record in support of all lawful activities designed to gain equal rights for all Americans. In all honesty it is clear that, at this

SHIGERU YOSHIDA

When Shigeru Yoshida passed away October 19 at the age of 89, Japan lost her greatest post-World War II leader and statesman.

Through five terms as Prime Minister, from 1946 through 1954 with only a brief interregnum, the longest of any Premier since the parliamentary system was established in 1870, with his aristocratic personality, unique political style, and undoubted conservatism, he led his nation back from the devastation and destruction of defeat to the threshold of greatness as the New Japan.

Probably more than any single Japanese, he shaped the course and destiny of his country after the end of hostilities. Millions of soldiers had to be demobilized, famine had to be averted, the land rehabilitated and rebuilt, a new constitution promulgated, and a new spirit inspired in the people-all this and more during a period of Occupation.

He guided Japan into the western orbit, away from Communism, as a democratic, free enterprise, pro-American nation.

The Japan of today, the fourth largest industrial complex in the world and the leader of the Asian regional development movement, is the living monument to his genius and vision.

Aside from his leadership in the reconstruction of a war-torn country, history will probably best remember him for the unprecedented "no war" constitution he helped draft, the Treaty of Peace which he signed in San Francisco in the fall of 1951, and the security pact he negotiated under which Japan's territorial integrity was assured by the United States.

A distinguished diplomat before World War II, having been the Japanese Ambassador to Sweden, Italy, and Britain, he was one of the few leaders in his country who consistently refused to join the military-feudal clique that was leading Japan down the road to war and ruin. At the time of Pearl Harbor, he smuggled a letter of sympathy to his friend, United States Ambassador Joseph Grew. As late as 1945, he was jailed for advocating peace negotiations through the British.

Though 66 when the Japanese surrended, General Douglas MacArthur selected him to head the government during the American Occupation. In that post, he pursued a policy of causing as little trouble to the occupying powers as possible, in order that they would lose interest in Japan as a defeated enemy and would permit Japan to ease out of the yoke of occupation without too many difficulties. To this was coupled the determination that Japan's future was in continuing close partnership and cooperation with the United States. In addition, he encouraged industrial growth as the salvation of Japan's crowded islands.

Although termed a United States puppet by some, and hated by both the fanatical right-wing and the Communists, he was generally recognized by all as a man of integrity and honesty. Charged often with high-handedness and one-man rule, he remained a member of the Diet (Parliament) until he resigned in 1962 at the age of 84. Even then, he remained as the elder statesman of his Government Liberal Democratic Party, with two of his "pupils", the late Hayato Ikeda and Eisaku Sato, becoming Prime Ministers in their own right.

The fifth son of Tsunashi Takeuchi, a member of the Japanese Diet, Mr. Yoshida was born in Tokyo September 22, 1878, and, as it is not uncommon in Japan, he was adopted by an acquaintance of his father, Kenso Yoshida, who wanted a young man to carry on the family name. After graduation from Tokyo Imperial University, he married Yukiko, eldest daughter of Count Nobuaki Makino, an intimate of NATIONAL CONFERENCE ON CITIZENSHIP: the Imperial Household.

After holding consular posts in Manchuria and China, he served in Europe. While serving in the Court of St. James, he became an admirer of Winston Churchill, to whom he was compared by many in later years as Japan's counterpart.

As one of the few prominent men who were not involved in any of the military purges after the war, BY KENNON NAKAMURA he first became Foreign Minister in the short-lived government of Prince Naruhiko Higashikuni that took office August 17, 1945. In 1946, Mr. Yoshida became Okabe of Chicago, and I had president of the Liberal Party, which subsequently the honor of representing the became the Liberal Democratic Party in 1948.

In 1945, he was able to persude his political collaborator Baron Shidehara to form a government, which took office October 9, and in which he remained a Cabinet Minister. When this government resigned in April, 1946, Mr. Yoshida took his Liberal Party into power for the first time when he became Prime Minister on May 22.

Except for the brief government led by Socialist corps and the civic action pro-Tetsu Katayama and Moderate Rightist Hitoshi grams in Vietnam by people Ashida in 1947 and 1948, Mr. Yoshida was Japan's who were there. Prime Minister until he resigned in 1954.

Adviser's Report

Chaperones for this unique project was an immediate problem because it involved crossing the border and evening accommodations for the mixed group somewhere in San Diego.

Isao Horiye, San Diego Jr. JACL adviser, commented that the problems of housing arrangements were solved easier than anticipated because the youth knew the rules and adhered to them.

White many of the youth from out of town motored to San Diego, it was thought necessary to charter a bus from the border to the orphanage because of Mexican motor vehicle laws. But adult members came to the rescue -though the road leading to the orphanage was unpaved. A chartered bus is a "must" the next time.

Items Needed

Meanwhile the Jr. JACL clubs in the district (Avantes, Chanels, Charmes, North San Diego, Orange County JAYs, Santa Barbara, Selanoco, Arizona and San Diego) began to collect funds and material for the service project.

The orphanage needed sewing materials, items to refurbish the home, safety pins, toilet paper, blankets, mattresses, gardening tools, hammers, etc. The youth were also informed to bring toys to entertain the children.

To have the project materialize, the DYC project committee engineered a heavy correspondence campaign in-

Chatter

Our favorite philosopher said the other day that Americans made such a fuss about being practical that any ideal had to be clothed with something useful before there was any action.

We in JACL go through a lot of trouble about public relations yet we tend to overly worry about the remarks from a few vocal persons. We are a talking society and sometimes quite like the barking dog Monterey Peninsula - Jr. JACL that never bites. We talk about open housing, we san Francisco-Jr. JACL dance, talk about desegregating schools, we talk about equal employment, we preach on panels and yet, it seems that the only thing the civil rights movement has won so far is the talking war. It's like a legislature passing bills expressing the most wonderful ideals and not appropriating a penny to carry them out.

We chatter a great deal about solving problems the first time since 1954 U.S. as though human beings were all robots. If a certain receive equitable payment for formula was followed, ergo, a certain result would transporting U.S. mail. Such be obtained. We try to find the K.I.S.S. #### MATA KAERIMASU (I SHALL RETURN)

Sign of a swell vacation is that feeling there wasn't enough time, there's more to see and do and a longing to return. As of this weekend, a group of footsore but fascinated JACLers will be leaving Japan.

Each heads for home with nothing but pleasant Civil Rights bill nears floor action memories of three weeks in a land that has become an industrial giant among the nations of the world. However, in its bid for economic prestige and production records, social progress in Japan is sadly lagging — a point which the tour guide admits from time to time. Steps to improve public sanitation, the tion. roads and public welfare have begun and if the fortunes permit, these areas will be attended to.

The old caution that foreign tourists should avoid drinking tap water no longer applies in the cities and towns. The water is sweet tasting. The washing of cessful opposition last Conhands and rinsing of the mouth with water before one enters a Japanese shrine as an act of purification lends a refreshing mood for the pilgrim. Leaving out religious symbolism, rinsing of the mouth after dusty walk is a bracing experience.

Another caution that fresh fruit produce are unsafe has also been erased in the cities and towns- housing section. now that chemical methods of soil fertilization has demonstrated its mettle. Persimmons, nashi (Japanese pears that look like golden apples), chestnuts and mikan (some are seedless) are the fruits in season. The muscat grapes from Okayama are the sweetest we've tasted this year.

And adding a real Japanese touch to the chef's registration, jury service, emsalad at lunches were slices of fresh renkon (lotus roots) and curling over the skin of tomatoes partly, making them appear as petals of a vermillion bloom.

The suggestion that we would go hungry because of the profusion of fish dishes in Japan (We're strong jected a House-passed section where the Majority Leader intake in recent years) has also been dismissed com- crime to cross over state lines making it the "pending busipletely. We're eating fish seldom or never seen back home—a variety of barracuda broiled over charcoals at a Kamakura mountain-top restaurant (actually its home) proved a surprise not only in flavor but in erage. size. The entire fish on the dish was no longer than 6 inches and back home, barracudas are called "logs" because of their length, 2 feet plus.

Civil Rights

Many who are critical of JACL, accuse her of not being involved more actively in Civil Rights. In the JACL structure; there are difference of opinion on Involvement. True we have the National Civil Rights Resolution. But as First Vice President Tom Shimasaki wrote (PC Oct. 15) "many are not satisfied and the hue and cry of some is that we quit talking and start doing something," suggesting that we exert all means within our organizational framework and rise to the Negro cause." We concur with Tom Shimasaki iBM 407 Opr., 1 yr exp. that our involvement in Civil Rights should be careful and objective. Many advocating active involve- Dr. ofc Girl-Asst, B.H. ment, do not have practical suggestions on what or how of involvement.

The October "Nations Business" U.S. Chamber of Commerce) has five related articles concerning civil rights under the general heading "Business and Industry Our Last Hope." These five cover the problems from all angles with analysis of the failures and shortcoming of past and present Federal Anti Poverty Programs. In it, Dr. Kenneth B. Clark, psycologisthumanitarian-educator, accuses the Government, Unions, Education, and Churches of defaulting on their obligation to the Negro underprivileged.

He contends only the business and industry, large and small, can be effective in the area of housing, enced Lab techs to test & calibrate transportation, education and jobs. Being a Negro, plete systems. Opportunity to ad-Dr. Clark has the validity to his opinion. Frankly his statement that "race riots has increased in frequency with increase in Civil Rights Legislation" appears to be correct. When things promised (under Civil Rights Legislation) are not delivered, there is general feelings of resentment, rage and thus riots. Dr. Clark contends only thru government tax incentives, for a realistic by theoretically extending participation of private capital investment, in areas of "protection" to every one.
