National Board

Washington

In the past, the JACL National Board met once a year. This year, the Board will depart from past procedures and meet for the fourth time in November. The Board needs to convene more frequently to carry out its constitutionally mandated responsibility to "implement the resolutions and decisions of the National Council" as well as to cope with the increasing complexity and diversity of JACL programs and to be more responsive to member needs and interests.

An earlier meeting soon after the National Convention would have been desirable. But a meeting would not have been useful before ratification of the By-Laws amendments, which will make official the new dues structure approved by the National Council. (As of this writing, the final results of the voting on the amendments have not been reported. But I am optimistic that the vote will be favorable and will assure JACL the revenues needed to carry out essential programs.)

That the Board has not met as yet does not mean that new program actions have also been deferred. Funds have been disbursed to the Asian Law Caucus, Inc., to assist in financing further planning for the establishment of the Asian American Legal Defense and Education Fund. The Development Office and a Development Committee, both needed to obtain the funds for implementing many or most of the newly approved projects and new programs, are being established. The JAYs have been assured that their Projects of the Biennium will be funded. (These are three of the four top priority projects approved by the National Council.)

The Washington Office has been in close touch with the Leadership Conference on Civil Rights to follow-up on the pending action on the FCC broadcast licensing bill. Preliminary contacts on Capitol Hill have also been made in regard to possible reparations legislation. A preliminary paper on Jaing activities on Japanese Americans has of the members at large.

A CONTROVERSIAL PRO-ARIYOSHI SPEECH

Two weeks before the primary election day in Hawaii (which was last Saturday), a speech delivered for Acting Governor George Ariyoshi sparked a controversy that screamer racism in politics. That speech was reprinted en toto in the local press. Probably no other campaign speech was afforded such prominence.

faced at the Univ. of Hawaii where Ariyoshi was a guest at a question and answer session on campus. Student Paul Murakami who heard a campaign speech earlier at a meeting of the Club 100, a Nisei WW2 veterans organization, told Ariyoshi: "It sounds into the campaign. Is the color of my skin tied to my vote?"

. Ariyoshi responded by first denying any knowledge of a racially aimed campaign effort by his supporters. He added "a lot of racism has been thrown around in this campaign-I've heard many racial slurs thrown my way."

Thrust of the Club 100 speech was that the time has come in Hawaii when someone from any race can be elected governor. Dan Aoki, who delivered the speech, said it was written by campaign organizer Robert Oshiro to be for or against. a "philosophical" speech aimed at burying the spectre of racism in Hawaii politicsthe point being that anyone history that all Americans should understand. This book is a unique contribution to that understanding. -David E. Ushio

National JACL Executive Director There are numerous books available on the wartime treatment of Japanese Americans, but most of them are written as textbooks at the college and university level. Jack's collection of old camp cartoons (is) an important educational tool in the primary grades. There is a real need to tell the unpleasant story of a great American mistake to millions of children who may never learn about the tragic error unless it is introduced to them early in the school system. This book is designed to do just that. -Edison Uno
